

Booters Go Owl-Hunting Today In Search of Second Victory

By IRA MILLER

"I know we can do it," an optimistic Penn. State soccer coach, Ken Hosterman, said before he and his Lions departed yesterday for Philadelphia where they will meet Temple this afternoon.

If past performances mean anything, he could be right. In 28 previous meetings with the Owls, State holds an 18-6-4 edge. And the Lions' lone win this season (they're 1-4) came against one of the two teams to beat Temple (4-2). The Nittanians beat Bucknell, 3-0. The Bisons edged the Owls in their opener, 2-1.

THE LIONS' losses have come to West Chester, (3-1), Colgate, (5-2), Maryland, (4-2), and Navy, (3-0). Maryland and Navy are undefeated and West Chester's only loss was to the Middies. Temple's losses were both 2-1 games — to Bucknell and Philadelphia Textile. Three of the Owls' wins have come via the shutout route — against Gettysburg, La Salle, and Hofstra.

Temple last beat the Lions in 1959, 2-0. State prevailed the past two seasons, each time by a 2-1 score.

"I'M GETTING tired of saying it," Hosterman admitted, "but I know we can do it if we play ball. The ability is still there. One of these weeks, they're going to get together and play real good ball and some opponent will pay for it."

WHEN THAT day will be is anybody's guess, but the Lion coach hopes it's soon. State has three games left after today, and one more loss will ensure a fourth straight losing season.

What with injuries, dropouts and other misfortunes, Hosterman has been switching starters this year in a manner that would make Casey Stengel proud. Unfortunately for the Lions, they haven't been meeting with much more success than Casey and his New York Mets enjoyed.

This week, however, there is just one personnel change in the

Feeling that poor passing might be partly to blame for the Lions' inability to score (eight goals in five games), Hosterman has been working the Nittanians on playing together and on their passing during practices this week.
