

25-Nation Lecture Tour Made by Pugh Professor

By STEVE CIMBALA

A globe-encircling trip, including visits to 25 countries and lectures at universities throughout the world, was recently completed by Dr. Haskell B. Curry, Evan Pugh Research professor at the University.

Dr. Curry resumed duties on campus this fall as professor of mathematics after a six-month leave of absence, which enabled him to take the trip.

He is one of the three Evan Pugh research professors at the University. These professors are financed by the University's general fund, do research in their specialized fields and are free of compulsory teaching duties. Most research professors are financed by private corporation grants or by the University department in which they are working.

DURING his trip, Dr. Curry attended the Colloquium on Information Theory at the International Academy of Philosophy of Science at Brussels, Belgium.

The academy, founded in 1948, is an open forum for discussion of scientific philosophy. Its 50 members from 19 nations include some of the world's most renowned mathematicians and scientists.

Albert Einstein and Neils Bohr, the renowned Danish atomic physicist, are two of the academy's more famous former members.

Dr. Curry is an "assesseur" of the academy, or a member of the six-man executive committee.

THE PERIPATETIC professor went behind the Iron Curtain twice, attending conferences and giving lectures in Poland and Hungary. He read a paper at a conference at Tihany, Hungary, and lectured at the Mathematical Institute at Warsaw, Poland.

Dr. Curry said he found living costs high in both countries because of the unfavorable monetary rate of exchange for Americans.

Curry and his wife made their trip from west to east, beginning at California last February. After first visiting the Hawaiian and Fiji Islands, they continued to Australia and New Zealand. In New Zealand, Dr. Curry lectured at the Universities of Auckland and Canterbury.

HE SPENT ten weeks in Japan, where he gave one of the principal addresses at the annual meeting of the Mathematical Society of Japan. He also lectured at the universities of Osaka, Kyushu, Hiroshima, Nagoya, Hokkaido and the Educational University of Tokyo while in Japan.

Visits to six nations in the Near and Far East preceded Dr. Curry's travels to Europe, where he attended meetings in England, Sweden and Finland.

Campus Religious Leaders Predict Better Relations Between Churches

A friendlier relationship between the Christian churches was predicted as the outcome of the current Ecumenical Council at the Vatican by campus religious leaders recently.

Barrett P. Rudd, director of studies of the University Christian Association, said that the council would probably serve to relieve tensions in the atmosphere between churches.

"It may lead to a softening of lines between Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders that could extend down to the grassroots—the laymen," he said.

Rudd, the Rev. Egbert H. Donovan, head Roman Catholic chaplain, and Luther Harshbarger, head of the Department of Religious Studies, all agreed that the council would facilitate communication between Christian churches.

BY GIVING all the churches present a common concern, the council will bring them closer together, Rudd said. Harshbarger added that the council would improve communication by giving Protestants and Catholics the same issues to discuss.

Harshbarger saw the possible extension of the doctrine of infallibility to Roman Catholic Bishops as an important outcome for the Roman Church.

"If accepted, this would make possible decentralization of authority in the Church, facilitating the handling of peculiarly American problems by the bishops," he said.

Rudd said there would probably be no immediate effects on the structure or organization of the American Protestant churches.

"The important thing is that the council was called," Rudd said. "It shows that the Pope feels the consideration of ecumenical problems is important, and that Protestants are recognized as 'separated brothers' if not as brothers."

Through the Looking Glass

Bulletin . . . to all you gung-ho football fans, this is your last chance! (Don't worry, it's not your last chance to go to Ethel Meserve's. You'll always find time for that.) Do you realize that this is the last home football game for '62? If you're the nostalgic type you'll be kind of sad as the football season draws toward a close, Sniff. (A moment of silence is in order.)

However, we enthusiastic college students can't be sad very long. Remember, bigger and better things lie ahead! (like finals, and sleepless nights, and more finals) All the more reason to enjoy this last game to the fullest. This involves keeping yourself warm and cozy. Anyone who suffered, oops, I mean sat, through the Maryland game will testify to that fact!

What's On Your Mind?

A hat? Well if it's not, it should be! A hat is just the thing to keep your mind, head, (brains?) etc. warm during a cold, windy afternoon at the football stadium. Ethel Meserve's has a wide selection of imported fur hats from Italy to satisfy every individual taste and personality. Speckled tweed hats for the sophisticated, tweedy, set; mohair for that collegiate, sporty look; and warm, furry wool hats for dainty, feminine types. All in a variety of colors and prices. Oh, by the way, if you're not the "hatty" type, don't sigh with despair. Ethel has wool scarves for you in a beautiful array of bright, gay plaids . . . only $6.95.

Coke, please?

Holding ice cold cokes at the game means cold hands. Unless you wear gloves, that is. That's where Ethel can help you. At Ethel's you'll find smart looking Italian kid gloves to keep your hands warm and beautiful. If you want something a little different, take a look at the good looking suede finish gloves from Holland. They're lined for extra warmth and comfort. Prices range around $7.95.

See you at the game, and at Ethel Meserve's.

Gotta run,
Gabbi
