Designing Funds Request Submitted by University To State Planning Board

By WINNIE BOYLE

A request for money to plan a long-range $38 million expansion project has been submitted by the University to the State Planning Board as the first step on the long road toward construction.

Along with the request, a list of projects scheduled for design or construction in 1963-1965 was submitted to the board.

Ranked first on the priority list was a request for design money totaling about $227,000 for an addition to Burrows, the conversion of two buildings at the Pottsville campus, classrooms for the Scranton campus, and the extension of University utilities. The total money needed for the eventual completion of these projects is approximately $4 million.

EVERY TWO years the governor's budget officer gives the University the opportunity to submit a request for buildings for the coming six-year period. This list is submitted to him and is then given to the State Planning Board.

When this body reviews the request, the University is invited to discuss it with the Planning Board. This year President Eric A. Walker appeared before the Board on Oct. 18. He reported to the University Senate at its last meeting that he felt he had been given a warm reception.

The State Planning Board hears all requests and submits them to the governor with its recommendations. The governor then makes a recommendation to the legislature concerning what funds he thinks it should provide to the General State Authority. Depending on how much the GSA receives, it authorizes projects and begins procedure for the construction of buildings.

PROJECTS which were granted planning and design funds last year and for which construction funds are now being requested include: the completion of addition to Willard, a forestry research center, the final unit of a physical education building, an addition to Pattee Library and an academic services building. The amount necessary for completion of these projects is approximately $10 million.

Other projects for which the University is requesting planning money for the 1963-65 period include the first unit of a graduate school center, the second unit of the life sciences building, agricultural greenhouses, an engineering sciences building, and addition to Agricultural Engineering, the second unit of a chemical engineering building.

A PHYSICAL education building for women, an animal industries building, the third unit of an education and psychology building, a library lecture hall for the Ogontz campus, classrooms, laboratory, and office buildings for the DuBois campus, an academic building for the Mc-

Castro Threatens To Down Planes

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Reliable sources said last night Prime Minister Fidel Castro had sent a blunt warning through acting Secretary-General U Thant that Cuba will shoot down any U.S. planes flying reconnaissance missions over Cuban territory.

THE WARNING was contained in a letter given to Thant by a Cuban representative. Its contents were made known later to U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson by the secretary-general. Full details of the letter outlining Castro's position of the Cuban crisis were withheld at the request of Cuba. A U.N. spokesman said the communication will be published this morning.

The development came amid a new flurry of diplomatic activity in which Thant met jointly with Cuban U.N. delegate Carlos Lechuga and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov.

STEVENSON and Kuznetsov arranged a meeting last night at the Soviet U.N. mission.

Lechuga said he had presented no new proposals to Thant, but indicated the Castro communication would reflect the Cuban leader's latest position in the light of talks he has been holding in Havana with Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

Mikoyan's departure from Havana was reported imminent. He may stop in New York for talks with Kuznetsov on his way home.

Earlier, Cuban sources said Lechuga and Kuznetsov still were considering whether to push the Soviet-Cuban proposals they took up with Thant on Tuesday, either in their original or revised form.

THESE WERE understood to have been based largely on Castro's five-point demands, including U.S. withdrawal from the naval base at Guantanamo and an end to U.S. activities considered by Castro to be aimed at toppling his government.

The United States said that the proposals were not relayed after the Tuesday meeting. U.N. sources said Cuba and the Soviet Union did not want them relayed in their original form.

DIPLOMATIC sources took the view that Thant discouraged immediate relay on the grounds the proposals would meet outright U.S. rejection.

There was no word of agreement on U.S. demands for removal of the two dozen Soviet jet bombers in Cuba or for inspection measures in connection with the presence of offensive weapons in Cuba.

Meanwhile Castro has adopted a more flexible position on U.S. demands for verification of dismantling of Soviet missile bases in Cuba, sources said yesterday.

They said Castro ended his prolonged talks with Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan still standing by his five points for "peace with dignity." These include a demand for U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo Naval base.

NSA Delegates To Study 'Aims'

A top official of the National Student Association, probably Tom Manning, national affairs vice president, will present the welcoming address at the Aims of Education Conference which begins tonight.

The address, tentatively called "Is there a Future for Student Government?" will be given at 8 p.m. in the Hetzel Union assembly hall.

The Pennsylvania-West Virginia region of NSA is sponsoring the conference and the Undergraduate Student Government is acting as host.

THE MAJOR address of the conference entitled "Will the American University Meet the Challenge of the Growing Educational Community?" will be delivered at a banquet tomorrow night. Martin McLaughlin, special assistant for educational and cultural affairs for the Department of State, will be the speaker.

The 70 to 100 delegates expected to attend this weekend's conference will register this afternoon in the HUB. Living arrangements have been made for them by the NSA coordinating committee.

At registration, delegates will choose their seminars, which are the working divisions of the conference.

Seminars will deal with the following topics: the content of the liberal arts curriculum; student, faculty and administration relations and curriculum development and control; community government.

Also, the contribution of student government to university development; the role of the university in society; the development of teacher education; the role of the junior college in higher education; and the university in world affairs.

Fall Open Houses Dropped by KAT

Kappa Alpha Theta sorority will not participate in open houses this weekend due to the death last Monday of its president, Kathleen Bauman, Susan Henderson, a member of the sorority said last night.

The sorority will participate in rush activities the winter term, Miss Henderson said. A special request for extended charter dates will be brought before the Panhellenic Council at its meeting next week to determine the exact rushing procedure, she added.

Baker Reports on USG Goals

By MEL AXILBUND

A major aim of the Undergraduate Student Government and the reason for its existence is to fill the void between what the administration does for the students and what the students additionally want and need, USG vice president Morris Baker said last night.

In a statement prepared for the USG Reports program over radio stations WDFM and WMAJ, Baker also outlined two other aims of USG. These, he said, are to complement and extend the services and programs of the University.

REFERRING TO the reason for USG's existence, Baker said that a difference between what the administration is willing and capable of doing to facilitate and stimulate the learning process and what the students want and desire creates the void.

Baker said the reasons the administration is incapable of handling the many student-oriented programs and services now performed by USG are the cost and effort involved in them.

The administration, however, is not at fault for not being able to do the whole job of running the University, Baker said.

"If you think about it, you'll realize that many times in student affairs a student organization of all students can do more for all students because it's better aware of the students' problems," he added.

THE COMMUNICATIONS function of USG has two phases, Baker said.

The first is actual communication. USG fulfills this when it expresses an opinion for the whole student body, as in the Froth and ROTC issues, he continued.

"In carrying this function out, the Congress acts as the speaker for the entire student body," he said.

"The other phase is the newest and most challenging of USG's aims and that is creating social awareness." He said social awareness includes knowledge and awareness of national and international affairs and cultural events.

To encourage this climate of increased social awareness, Baker said, USG sponsors various programs, publicizes them and takes every opportunity to facilitate and stimulate the learning process both in and outside of the classroom.

Rain Due Tonight

Mild weather will continue today, but cloudiness should increase during the day and showers are likely to begin this evening.

Occasional rain is forecast to continue tonight and tomorrow.

A storm moving eastward from the central states will feed on the moist air that covers the eastern states to produce abundant precipitation over a wide section of the nation.

Colder air moving southward behind the storm should begin affecting Pennsylvania late tomorrow and tomorrow night.

Today's high should be about 54, and a high of 50 is indicated for tomorrow.

A low of 45 is indicated for tonight.

In yesterday's Daily Collegian, Bert Kapinus was incorrectly identified as a write-in candidate in the fall USG congressional elections. Bert Kaplan was the candidate.

Jackson Sees Chance for Shift To Serve Biological Sciences

Although the College of Agriculture would hate to lose the services of the biological sciences, there is a possibility that that field's needs would be served by the proposed reorganization of the University's colleges, Lyman E. Jackson, dean of the College of Agriculture, said yesterday.

On Wednesday night John R. Rackley, vice president for resident education, outlined a plan for a "core college" which would make the arts and sciences equal with the professional and vocational colleges.

THE CORE college would contain three units, the College of Arts and Architecture, the College of the Humanities and Social Sciences and the College of Biological and Physical Sciences.

To establish these colleges, a reorganization of departments will be necessary. One of the proposed regroupings would place botany and zoology in the College of the Biological and Physical Sciences, thus making the College of Agriculture a stronger center of professional fields.

President Eric A. Walker has approved the plans for submission for faculty approval, Rackley said. If the faculty endorses them, the administration will then recommend the change to the Board of Trustees.

"THE COLLEGE of Agriculture is not at all interested in losing the biological sciences because this is the basis for the field," Jackson said, "but there is a good possibility that its needs can be served by the new organization. Many colleges across the country are doing very well with this type of organization."

"I think there is a good deal of logic in the proposal," Jackson concluded. "If all works well, then we will have nothing to worry about."
