

Addition Approved for HUB

By WINNIE BOYLE

Sketch plans for an addition to the Hetzel Union Building, which will include a larger Lion's Den, ballroom and dining room, were approved by the Board of Trustees at its December meeting.

THE ADDITION is expected to cost approximately $2 million, and will be financed through loans. The initial structure cost more than $3 million to build and was financed in the same way. The completion date is set for September 1964. Bidding will be opened to contractors this June and the contract is scheduled to be awarded by August.

The plans call for the Lion's Den to be enlarged to three times its present capacity and a doubling of the dining room and ballroom space.

At present the Lion's Den accommodates about 300 people, and the dining room about 550.

Associated with the increase in dining facilities will be alterations to the kitchens to enable maintenance of efficient operations.

The present ballroom can accommodate about 650 people. The addition will adjoin the present room so that the two can be used jointly when needed.

THERE WILL also be alterations in the serving pantry of this area to provide for the expanded needs.

On the ground floor of the new addition an area for student organizations including offices and meeting rooms will be located.

The proposed addition will be located on the south side of the present structure, in the terrace area.

In announcing plans to go ahead with the addition, Stanley H. Campbell, vice president for business, said that the expansion has been under study for several years.

He said that the Board of Trustees first authorized the employment of an architect to draw plans in 1959, and since that time there has been much planning and re-planning.

He explained that the present facilities are considered inadequate for today's student enrollment of about 18,000 and long-range plans of the University visualize a steady increase in enrollment to 25,000 on the University Park campus by 1970.

HE ALSO explained that it is doubtful that any building can provide adequate facilities for all students. The University has, (Continued on page six)

Registration For Rush To Continue

Panhellenic Council will hold a special registration for formal sorority rush from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. today in 217 and 218 Hetzel Union Building to accommodate students who were unable to register during the regular period, Marjorie Zelko, Panhel rush chairman, said last night.

All second term women must have a 2.3 average for the fall term to be eligible and all upper-class women must have a 2.0 All-University average. Any student with a deferred grade should disregard it when considering the average requirement, Miss Zelko said.

Total registration for rush this term is 866 with 561 women dropping from rush activities since last term, she said. Most students have dropped out because of the scholastic requirement, she added.

FIRST ROUND chatter, dates will be held today and tomorrow with rushees visiting a maximum of 10 sororities. Party favors may not be accepted at this time.

All sororities must submit preference list to 129 Grange at 6:45 a.m. Monday. Rushees may pick up invitations from 10 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Monday in the main lounge of the HUB. They may attend a maximum of 6 second round parties. Sorority representatives may pick up invitations at 10 a.m. Tuesday in 105 Old Main.

Miss Zelko also said that a special registration for open bidding will be held after scheduled formal rush activities. Women who have dropped out of rush activities are not required to register at this time.

Walker Agrees to Aid Formula

The presidents of five Pennsylvania universities, including President Eric A. Walker, have agreed upon a formula which recognizes Penn State as the state university in dividing available state money.

In general, the formula provides that each of the schools—The Pennsylvania State University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh, Temple University and Drexel Institute of Technology—should get at least what they are getting now. The University currently receives $20.3 million.

The formula also stipulates that the schools should get more for what they do to step up research work, lower tuition and admit more Pennsylvania students.

The cost of the complicated formula could vary, but one figure mentioned as a Lawrence administration proposal is a $7.2 million increase for the 1963-64 fiscal year for the five schools. This would give the University an increase of $4 million. Temple would receive an increase of $1.5 million and Penn, Pitt and Drexel would divide the rest.

IN ORDER TO BE PUT into effect, however, the formula must still be endorsed by Governor-elect William W. Scranton and the new legislature.

Commenting on the formula, Walker said yesterday: "The formula worked out by the presidents of the five institutions recognizes the principle of a performance budget as the basis of future support by the Commonwealth. This is an equitable basis for determining support."

"As applied to Penn State, this set of principles recognizes our service to the Commonwealth and provides a basis for adequate support for us to move toward a university of 35,000 students by 1970. The formula for support of research and continuing education also will enable us to expand both activities on an orderly basis."

THE FORMULA DIVIDES the schools into three separate categories. The University is recognized as the state university and entitled to special help. Temple is called a "state related" school, apparently someplace between private and public status, and is to get special consideration by virtue of charging a relatively low tuition.

The third category is the "state-aided" schools—Penn, Pitt, and Drexel.

Florida Springs Gator Upset As Lions Leave Desire North

By DEAN BILLICK

There are many lessons to be learned from defeat and chief among them is a little intangible matter called desire — that will to win.

The Penn State football team learned this well on a dreary afternoon in Jacksonville, Fla., just one week ago and it's a lesson they're not liable to forget for a long time.

Florida knew the lesson well. Penn State didn't. And the result was the biggest upset in the 18-year history of the Gator Bowl, played before 50,026 cheering fans.

"The boys really wanted this one and they went out there and got it," smiling Florida coach Ray Graves said in the locker room after the 17-7 win.

"The only way we knew we could beat State was to come up with a strong pre-game practice program. We worked hard over Christmas and when practice was over I wondered if we had crammed too much football into our kids in too short a period. They were willing to sacrifice but it paid off. For a change we were the opportunists."

FLORIDA TACKLE Frank Lasky was even more pointed in his review of the game.

"We wanted it so bad we could taste it," the 260-pounder said. "As for Penn State. Well, I think they believed it was going to be just what the papers said it was going to be—a practice session. I hope they enjoyed their practice session."

On the other side of the field, All-American halfback Roger Kochman agreed with Lasky, but in a slightly different language.

"We weren't ready to play football today," the brilliant Lion speedster commented. "Florida was good, but we just weren't up for the game."

Brothers 4 Sign for Spring Week; Peter, Paul and Mary Cancelled

The Brothers Four will perform at the Interfraternity Council-Panhellenic Music Festival instead of Peter, Paul and Mary as previously planned. The trio will not appear because of difficulties in the contract, Spring Week Chairman Peter Lockhart said last night.

Any group of performers is free to break a contract until 30 days before an engagement, Lockhart explained. The possibility of the trio fulfilling its contract is only 50-50 at present, he said. However, the group may go on tour in Europe which will make the chances less, Lockhart added.

THE BROTHERS FOUR, however, are almost certain they can appear, and will perform for $500 less than Peter, Paul and Mary, Lockhart said.

The music festival, to be held Saturday evening, April 27, will replace the carnival, a tradition in previous Spring Weeks. Other events scheduled for Spring Week, April 25-30, include a float parade and spring casino on Friday and the Queen of Hearts and He-Man contest finals on Saturday.

The Queen of Hearts and He-Man contest preliminaries will open Spring Week on Thursday, April 25, and the annual awards night will end the festivities Tuesday evening, April 30.

Sunday, April 28, will be kept open as a rain date for the Queen of Hearts and He-Man contests and the float parade.

Registration Figure Stands at 12,271

Robert G. Bernreuter, dean of admissions, reported yesterday that 12,271 students had successfully completed registration by 5 p.m.

This figure is 348 more students than had registered at a comparable point last winter.

Bernreuter said he expects the enrollment to drop about 300 from the fall term figure of 17,668.

Approximately 380 of the more than 500 new students expected for the winter term will enroll at the University Park campus.
