

Planned ETV Network Of East Coast Stations May Include University

By DOROTHY DRASHER

A chain of inter-state educational television stations, in which the University would be an important link is tentatively scheduled for completion within the next six years. The ETV chain would stretch from Durham, N.H., to Pittsburgh.

The links with the ETV stations from Durham, N.H., through Boston, Mass., and New York City have already been completed.

Negotiations are now underway to add the fourth link which would be the newly allocated channel 12 (Very High Frequency) station in Philadelphia.

With these links, educational programs can be interchanged and broadcast along the eastern coast of the country and across Pennsylvania, C. R. Carpenter, director of the Division of Instructional Services, said last night.

THE UNIVERSITY will serve as the link between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. An application for an ETV station using Channel 69 (Ultra High Frequency) is almost completed and will be submitted by the University to the Federal Communications Commission within the next few weeks, Carpenter said.

In Pennsylvania, the Department of Public Instruction authorized a formal request to the FCC recently for the reservation of five additional ETV channels for the Commonwealth. There are presently four state ETV stations—two in Pittsburgh and two in Philadelphia.

Two of the five requested channels in the state are in central Pennsylvania. They are Altoona and Clearfield.

EVENTUALLY the stations in these two towns will be a part of a three-station ETV network in the state, of which the University would be the core, Carpenter said.

These additional ETV stations, as they are established throughout the state, will not necessarily be linked to the inter-state chain.

The transmitter for the University's ETV station will probably be located at the summit of the Tussey Ridge mountain just beyond Pine Grove Mills, Carpenter said.

Because most of the people in this region do not have UHF receivers and could not get educational programming from the University on their TV sets, cooperation will be sought from local cable companies.

LESLIE P. GREENHILL, associate director of the division of Instructional Services, said yesterday that signals from ETV broadcasts can be picked up by transformers and relayed into cable systems, enabling viewers to receive programs on VHF receivers.

Letters have already been sent to many of the cable companies in the local area and favorable replies have been received from many.

Tshombe Returns To Elizabethville

ELIZABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)—President Moise Tshombe came home to his U.N.-occupied capital yesterday with a sharp warning that the threat of sabotage still hangs over Katangan mines and utilities. Union Miniere de Haut Katanga, which owns most of the mines and utilities, agreed with him and appealed for cooperation to prevent it.

"In spite of all the trouble and bloodshed, I am back," Tshombe said in an interview at this presidential palace. He wore a crumpled gray suit and looked tired, but relaxed.

"MY MINISTERS and I have been very busy in Kolwezi preparing the demolition of all industries." With a button-pushing gesture, he added: "In that case Adoula, the U.N. or we will have lost everything."

Adoula is Prime Minister Cyrille Adoula of the central Congo government, prospective chief political beneficiary of the Katanga-Congo reunification plan that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant proposes to have in effect by next Monday.

Union Miniere, at least, fully agreed that the sabotage threat exists.

The giant copper mining company said Katangan police have mined essential dams and power stations and occupy all its pits and plants in the area of Kolwezi, 150 miles northwest of Elizabethville.

IN STATEMENTS issued in Brussels and at U.N. headquarters in New York, it appealed to all responsible parties "to cooperate in measures to prevent further damage" in the 11-day-old war.

Coincident with Tshombe's return came news of serious tribal fighting in Kasai province, where the U.N. Congo command had reduced its power in reinforcing task forces in Katanga. Kasai, a diamond mining region, is an old trouble spot that lies just northwest of Katanga.

The Congolese news agency, a semi-official organ, reported in Leopoldville that at least 370 Congolese were killed in a battle between two factions at Katenge and that two Belgian lumbermen, seized in a fight at Mweka, were murdered by their captors.

Snubbed as to further negotiations but assured by the United Nations that he would not be molested so long as he created no trouble, Tshombe heeded British and Belgian advice in returning to Elizabethville.

HE FLEW FROM HIS emergency headquarters at Kolwezi to a North Rhodesian airstrip opposite the U.N.-occupied town of Kipushi, had a can of beer and then made the drive to Elizabethville with the Belgian consul in a black sedan at 50 miles an hour.

U.S. consulate sources said the American consul, Jonathan Dean, was not informed until the last moment of Tshombe's return. The U.S. government has backed Thant strongly in the Katangan showdown.

Insurance Enrollment Will Close

Enrollment in the life insurance program endorsed by the Undergraduate Student Government was termed "quite favorable" recently by George H. Bonsal, managing director of University Life Plans, Inc.

The total number of students enrolled, he said, will not be available until after the official enrollment period ends tomorrow. At the start of registration last Thursday, Bonsal said that about 400 students had signed up.

A brochure describing the plan, an application and a letter from USG President Dean Wharton which explained the endorsement action of Congress were sent to the home addresses of all students in December, Bonsal said. The same materials are also available at the Hetzel Union desk now.

THE PLAN provides $10,000 of individual term life insurance. It is available to full time students at the premium rate of $20 per year from age 16 through 23. No medical examination is required for enrollment in the plan and a student's continued insurability is guaranteed.

At the policy anniversary nearest age 24, a student may convert the policy to a $10,000 straight or whole life plan. The annual premium on this policy will be $132.60. The policy may also be converted to a permanent plan at any time it is in force.

At conversion, a student may elect to be insured for an amount less than $10,000, although he may not initially purchase a smaller amount.

'Froth' Requests New Constitution

A constitution for a new humor magazine to be entitled "Froth" is under consideration by the Committee on Student Organizations, George L. Donovan, committee chairman, said recently.

Donovan said that the committee has held its initial meeting to review the constitution generally. He added that the group would meet again to finish its study before going over the document with representatives of the magazine.

The constitution was submitted by the editors of Froth, the humor magazine which lost its charter Oct. 23.

The difference in the name of the new magazine is that it will not be preceded by the words "Penn State."

930 Men Register For Fraternity Rush

The number of men who registered for fraternity rush this year is higher than any figure during the past five years and probably marks an all-time high, Philip Cozadd, Interfraternity Council Rush Chairman, said last night.

Nine hundred thirty men had registered to rush by yesterday, and the figure is expected to reach 950 today, Cozadd said. Although rush registration was supposed to have been completed by last Sunday, additional men may register at the IFC office, 203 Hetzel Union Building, until Friday, he added.

All men of second term or higher standing are eligible to rush. There is no scholastic average requirement.

MEN WHO WISH to rush are not required to register, Cozadd said, but registration helps the fraternities by providing a list of men interested in rushing. The list also provides rushees' scholastic averages.

Outlining rush procedure, Cozadd said rushees may attend dinners and parties at fraternity houses. Dinner is by invitation only, which may be extended by phone or in person.

Parties, which may be attended with or without invitation, provide a good opportunity for rushees to meet and become acquainted with fraternity men, he said.

Rushees are encouraged to visit as many houses as possible, Cozadd said. If dress for the occasion is not stipulated, rushees should ask, he added.

EXPLAINING rush rules, Cozadd said rushees are not permitted in fraternity houses past 1 a.m. on weekends or 2 a.m. on all-University weekends. Fraternity men are not permitted in the men's residence halls between 8 p.m. and 7 a.m. unless they have Board of Control permission.

Concerning pledging, Cozadd said bids may be issued and received at any date, but freshmen may not be officially pledged before Feb. 10. Rushees must have a 2.2 previous term average or an all-University average of 2.00 to pledge, he said.

All fraternities are presently eligible to participate in rush, Cozadd said. No pledge quotas for fraternities have been set by IFC, he said.

USG Program Called Success

The high school speaker program sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Government was "highly successful" and "was very favorably received" by high school students, Susan Hackman, program chairman, said yesterday.

Thirty-nine Penn State students spoke at 47 high schools throughout Pennsylvania during the Christmas vacation. Each student gave a short speech about the University and then answered questions.

Each speaker talked to a group of about 30 students interested in attending the University, Miss Hackman said.

Since the initial attempt was so successful, Miss Hackman said, additional programs may be scheduled for the spring vacation. Students interested in participating in the program may contact her.

New Pitt Campuses To Offer Courses in 3 Curriculum Areas

The University of Pittsburgh's new program of regional campuses will offer each of the three selected communities liberal arts, engineering and adult education curriculums.

The three campuses will begin operating in the fall of 1963 at Greensburg, Titusville and Bradford.

In a letter to The Daily Collegian, M. R. Rose, assistant in regional programs at Pitt, explained that the extensions will have programs "of identical quality with the courses offered on the Oakland (Pittsburgh) campus."

"Our purpose is to provide a quality education, at a substantially reduced cost to the students of these regions, that will enable them to matriculate from our regional campus into any degree-granting institute," Rose stated.

Graduate courses will also be offered "primarily in the field of education and other areas where there is a felt need," and we have the resources to meet the need." The adult education program will include both credit and non-credit courses.

"Basically," Rose said, "we endeavor to offer each community with a quality program that will be flexible enough to meet the needs of that community."

Mostly Cloudy Skies, High of 33 Forecast

Skies should continue mostly cloudy and temperatures will remain rather cold for the next two or three days.

Light snow or snow flurries are likely tonight and tomorrow morning.

Today's temperatures should be similar to those recorded yesterday and a maximum of 33 is expected.

Slightly colder weather is indicated for tonight and tomorrow. A low of 24 is predicted for tonight, and tomorrow's high should be about 30.

DO YOU KNOW...? Hometowns, curriculums and the weather are prime conversation topics for the girls participating in formal sorority rush. Rushees in the Delta Zeta suite sip Cokes provided during the designated refreshment time in second chatter dates.
