

Froth No. 2 Seeks OK

By WINNIE BOYLE and ROCHELLE MICHAELS

Representatives of a new campus humor magazine will be asked to clarify sections of their proposed constitution today by the Committee on Student Organizations.

In closed sessions, the Committee has already reviewed the constitution. George L. Donovan, committee chairman, said yesterday that there are several phrases in the constitution which could be strengthened.

The constitution was personally submitted by Andrea Buscanics, co-editor of the former Penn State Froth, which lost its charter last Oct. 23.

THE ACTION was taken against the original humor magazine because of a failure on the part of those concerned to live up to its constitution.

The new constitution is being sponsored by a committee which was formed by the Undergraduate Student Government closely following the charter suspension.

Although a long period of study by both committees has finally led to definite action, it may still be a long while before the campus has a replacement for the Penn State Froth.

Fred Waelchi, member of both committees, pointed out yesterday that it took the reviewing committee quite a while to finish the Panhellenic constitution which they considered last term. That constitution was just a little longer than the document under study now.

Speaking optimistically, Waelchi said that although it may take awhile for the constitution to gain approval, he sees no "major problems."

Donovan commented that "a constitution is only as good as the people who will carry it out, and we are very interested in their intent."

If and when the constitution gains the stamp of endorsement of the reviewing committee, it must still be approved by the Administrative Committee on Student Affairs.

Robert G. Bernreuter, chairman of this committee, would not commit himself as to when his committee would be able to consider the matter if the constitution were referred to it.

He merely said that the committee would consider it "whenever the members decided to do so."

DONOVAN, who is also a member of Bernreuter's committee said he thought that the group would consider the matter shortly after it receives his committee's approval, if it does.

The representatives have not been given a list of the questions which the reviewing committee will ask them, because Donovan said, "this situation does not call for a defense, but a clarification."

Greeks Tentatively OK Kingston Trio Invitation

By TONY FOGGIO

The Greek Week Committee of the Panhellenic-Interfraternity Councils last night tentatively approved a proposal inviting the Kingston Trio to perform in Recreation Building on Saturday, Feb. 16, during Greek Week.

Fred Good, committee co-chairman, said the trio had cancelled another engagement for the same evening and had offered to appear during the annual fraternity-sorority week.

JEAN KENNEDY, Panhel vice president and committee co-chairman, said she had no authority to give Panhel's acceptance of the committee's decision. The entire Panhellenic Council would have to vote on the proposal, she explained.

If Panhel approves the idea, then the trio could be invited to perform as part of the Greek Week functions, she said.

If, however, the council rejects the proposal, the Kingston Trio would have to be sponsored solely by IFC and not as part of Greek Week festivities, Miss Kennedy said.

Since Panhel and IFC share the total costs of the week, all activities must be approved by both councils.

John DePetro, committeeman, said he expected the IFC executive board to decide whether or not to invite the trio by late last night. A contract will be mailed to them today if IFC approves the proposal.

Miss Kennedy said she would contact Panhel's executive board immediately and request a special meeting to consider the proposal.

DePetro also said that Recreation Building is available for the night of Feb. 16, and the only other event scheduled for that evening is an Artists Series concert featuring soprano Phyllis Curtin in Schwab.

COMMENTS OF "tremendous" and "fabulous" were heard when Good proposed inviting the folk-singing group to campus. He said that it would be "a great climax to our week" if IFC and Panhel sponsor the group.

The committee decided to postpone the Work Sessions originally scheduled for that date until the spring term.

John Swift, co-chairman of the work projects, said the projects would take place on seven week-ends with about 11 groups participating each time.

Gantt Wins Decision To Enter Clemson

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Harvey B. Gantt won a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision yesterday directing his admission as the first Negro to all-white Clemson College.

South Carolina officials announced they will appeal to the Supreme Court.

The 4th Circuit Court unanimously reversed U.S. Dist. Judge C. C. Wyche of South Carolina and directed him to order Gantt admitted to Clemson in the spring term which begins Feb. 1.

Wyche ruled last month that the 20-year-old Negro had not proved he had been denied admission because of his race. Clemson contended that Gantt, an architectural student at Iowa State University, had not met its entrance requirements.

GANTT'S ATTORNEYS argued that every time he complied with entrance requirements new ones were added.

They said it was no accident that South Carolina is now the only Southern state which has not, either by court order or voluntarily, admitted Negro students to formerly all-white institutions of higher learning.

Wyche said in his decision that it was the policy of South Carolina to discourage but not prohibit Negroes from enrolling in all-white institutions.

The appellate court commented, "The distinction drawn between prohibition and discouragement is a novel one in legal literature and we must hold it unacceptable."

IN SOUTH CAROLINA, State Sen. Edgar A. Brown of Barnwell, a member of the Clemson Board of Trustees, said plans already have been made for an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Brown said the question is whether the high court will grant a stay of the order directing Gantt's admission to Clemson next month, pending a decision on whether it will review the case.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, who has supervision over the 4th Circuit, normally would decide the question of a stay, although any justice has the authority.

14 Candidates Seek Vacant Seats In Special USG Congress Election

A record number of 14 candidates are seeking the six vacant seats on the Undergraduate Student Government Congress in the third of a series of special elections.

AT THE DEADLINE for the return of petitions and submission of transcripts at 5 p.m. yesterday, two potential candidates were disqualified from the race by George Jackson, Elections Commission chairman.

Robert Osman (9th-business administration-Marblehead, Mass.) did not return his petition and Terry Weirback (7th-business administration-Perkasie) was academically ineligible. Wierback had been nominated by Liberal Party.

Paul D. Miller, (8th-pre-law-Sunbury), a candidate from the Nittany area, will be docked and as yet undetermined percentage of his vote total because he failed to submit a transcript, Jackson said.

Candidates running for two vacant North Halls seats are Thomas Lavey and William Keller, nominated by Campus Party, and Lawrence Linder, who submitted a self-nominating petition.

The two vacant West Halls seats are being sought by James Anzalone and Ronald Ence, nominated by Campus Party, David Kopp, nominated by Liberal Party, William Kakareka and Gregory Young, both of whom petitioned for nomination.

In addition to Miller, the candidates for the lone Nittany seat are David Tanner and Terry Igoe, who also submitted self-nominating petitions.

For the one town area seat, the candidates are Danny Smichnick, nominated by Campus Party, Whiton Paine, nominated by Liberal Party, and John Blish, who nominated himself.

CAMPAIGNING begins at 8 tomorrow morning and will continue until the end of elections at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. Polls will be in operation in the dining areas of North, Pollock and West Halls from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. A poll situated on the ground floor of the Hetzel Union Building, will operate from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. that day.

Additional Groups Will Open Rush

Two additional sororities, Alpha Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Theta, are eligible to participate in open bidding, Marjorie Zelko, Panhellenic rush chairman, said last night.

Because the membership of these sororities is under 30, they have been granted permission to continue open rush until the end of the term. The sororities may also set their own average requirement for rushees, Miss Zelko said.

Registration for open bidding will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and tomorrow in 129 Grange. Any women who wish to participate and who have not previously participated in rush or who dropped out of rush activities last term may register. Women who have not previously registered for rush are required to pay a fee of $1.

BEST DRESSED FEET appear on campus daily by the thousands of pairs. Loafers for the tweedy look, sneakers for those habitual late sleepers, boots for those days when everyone hates to get out of bed and out of doors, and flats for Saturday night with short dates.

University Civil Defense Plan Nears Successful Completion

An investigation to provide adequate fallout shelter space for all students, faculty and staff members has been in progress since the early part of December and is moving toward a successful completion, William F. Fatula, project head, said.

Fatula explained that this committee had received phase two of the National Fallout Shelter Survey during the vacation. This survey sent a list of possible shelter areas, many of which are located in the residence areas.

To be included in the report, the shelter spaces had to have a protection factor of 100, or the potential of being converted to that degree of protection. They also had to have a capacity of 50 people, and adequate ventilation.

The capacity was figured on the basis of 10 square feet per person if the shelter is located above the ground level or 500 cubic feet in underground locations.

The areas fitting these specifications show only 12,880 spaces. J. Campbell Lester, State College director of civil defense, said. This indicates that all available campus shelter space will be occupied by students, he explained.

The National Survey is being supplemented by Fatula's committee. They are now investigating shelter areas which would be safe, but which would accommodate less than 50 people.

Other efforts made by the committee to provide a civil defense program for the University were the testing of Old Main's amplification system for the warning signal, and the University Power Plant for the possibility of remote control operation in the event of a nuclear attack.

The operation of the program plant is considered essential to other planning at the University in that it would continue to provide, possibly on a limited basis, heat for campus buildings as well as electricity needed to continue operation of pumps providing water. It also would make the operation of the sewage disposal plant possible.

Officials have said that because the water that supplies the campus is pumped from underground sources, it would not be contaminated by fallout, and that if the pumps could be kept in operation, one of the major problems would be solved.

Plans are in the discussion stage for a student training program to acquaint students with plans as they are developed. To date, students have been told only to return to their residence halls and

AWS Plans To Investigate Prexy Visits

An At-Home with President Eric A. Walker was suggested to improve student-administration relations at the Association of Women Students meeting last night.

A committee will be formed to draw up a proposal which would include bi-monthly or monthly sessions with President Walker in his home. As many as 75 students would be permitted to attend these informal sessions.

In other business, AWS made tentative plans to sponsor the Bishop's Company, which will present a play entitled, "An Episode of Sparrows."

The organization, with a repertoire of eight plays, presents these plays to universities, colleges and church groups all over the country.

Applications for the positions of Penn State Woman editor, Elections chairman and Women's Week chairman will be available at the Hetzel Union desk this afternoon.

The completed forms are due Jan. 26.
