

Coltrane Arrives Late For First College Date

By TONY FOGLIO

The John Coltrane Quartet performed in Schwab Saturday evening for its first college concert two hours late. Jeff Rosenblum, Jazz Club president, said the group had been in "a slight auto accident" about 5 p.m. while driving in from New York City.

AFTER THE CONCERT, Coltrane said his group was delayed even longer when it encountered fog and ice while driving through the Pennsylvania hills.

Coltrane added that he enjoyed playing before his first college audience, even though he felt that he personally did not deserve the warm reception given him. He also said that he would like to play at more colleges and universities and perhaps "to work up" a college circuit of concert dates.

Fifteen minutes after the scheduled 8 p.m. start of the concert, Rosenblum announced from the stage that Coltrane was delayed but that he would arrive. In the meantime, a local group which the club was sending to the annual Spring Jazz Festival at Villanova University, the Don Krebs Quintet, would play.

Rosenblum said the Jazz Club would not cancel the concert because Coltrane would still have to be paid when he arrived. Those who didn't wish to wait would have their tickets returned at the door and the club would refund their money during the week after the necessary arrangements as to time and place of exchange were made.

The Krebs group, which consisted of tenor saxophone, vibraphone, piano, bass and drums, played from approximately 8:35 to 9:45.

ALTHOUGH COLTRANE arrived at 9:30, the group didn't start playing until 9:55, when it opened the concert, with "The Trane's" arrangement of "Bye Bye Blackbird."

Two of Coltrane's other numbers were "B.J." and his most famous work, his arrangement of "My Favorite Things."

During the post-concert interview, Coltrane explained, in answer to a question, that his drummer, Elvin Jones, seemed to be competing with his sax because each was pushing the other. He said they attain a blending through contrasting sounds in that manner.

BOCMM To Aid in Beauty Hunt

In order to thoroughly canvas the campus for beautiful coeds the Board of Collegian Male Editors (BOCME) has invited the Board of Collegian Male Managers (BOCMM) to assist in finding the campus beauty queen.

The winner of the annual contest will be Penn State's entry in the Campus Cover Girl Contest conducted by The Roto Magazine of The Pittsburgh Press.

Every well-endowed coed, regardless of whether she is contacted by a member of either BOCME or BOCMM, should submit a 5x7 or 8x10 glossy or mat finish photograph of herself by Feb. 8. A basket is provided for the pictures at the foyer of The Daily Collegian office in the basement of Sackett.

Since the contest was announced last week, members of the BOCME have been diligently surveying the campus. At this time of year coeds shouldn't feel nervous if they see a man with dark circles under his eyes, it comes from too much work, inspecting her about campus. The guy is probably just a member of BOCME or BOCMM performing his duty.

Only one picture has been entered so far, but members of the BOCME have announced that they have several candidates lined up and that the pictures will be forthcoming in the near future.

FUTURE:

bright and unlimited for

3 EE'S

Are you one of the three EE's, or that one ME, with the qualifications we're looking for?

Our qualifications make interesting reading to the young graduate engineer interested in a future that is bright — virtually unlimited.

Our Company is big — it's still growing and right in the heart of an area that's expanding rapidly. Our seaport is world famous. We're minutes from Washington. New York and Philadelphia are just to the north. There's good fishing, good symphonies, good art; it's a do-or-die sports town; a land of pleasant living.

Our Company is big — but we stay close to our customers, and closer to our personnel. Everyone gets an ample opportunity to move up.

Yes, the future here looks good. Talk with us about it.
