

U.N. Plans To Aid Cuba Despite U.S. Objections

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations said yesterday it is going ahead with a controversial agricultural aid project for Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuban government despite vigorous objections from the United States.

Paul G. Hoffman, U.S. managing director for the U.N. Special Fund, told a news conference of the decision. He added that the $3-million project would not require the use of "one single American dollar."

U.S. sources said they understood Communist technicians would be assigned, and they would be paid in non-dollar currencies.

Hoffman called the conference after the United States issued a statement here and in Washington expressing regret over the decision.

THE STATEMENT SAID that when the project was first approved by the special fund in May 1961, the United States "clearly expressed its views that conditions in Cuba rule out such assistance."

It added that developments since then attesting to the "chaotic agricultural situation in Cuba" and "gross governmental mismanagement and workers' apathy have confirmed the validity of our original objection."

The statement asserted that the "massive influx of Communist technicians late last year raises the question as to the priority need for more technicians in Cuba."

Rusk Says Troops in Cuba 'Increase Dangers'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said yesterday that Soviet troops remaining in Cuba "do not insure the peace of Cuba but poison the atmosphere and increase the dangers."

Renewing U.S. notice to Moscow and Havana that the United States wants the Soviet forces withdrawn, Rusk said, "We in the Western Hemisphere can not accept as normal any Soviet military presence in this hemisphere." He said yesterday that both sides fully understand that the armed forces of the United States and its Latin American neighbors will make sure that arms in Cuba will not be used outside the Caribbean island.

"Cuba will not become a base for offensive military operations against other countries of this hemisphere for the simple reason that it will not be permitted to play that role."
