

Werner Says Showdown Must Come In Power Struggle With AAU Faction

NEW YORK (AP) — Chick Werner, president of the U. S. Track and Field Federation, predicted yesterday that "all hell is going to bust out after the Olympics" in the group's power-struggle with the Amateur Athletic Union.

Werner, speaking at a general convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said the squabble must be solved "before another Olympic year."

"Further," Werner said, "we must guard against political interference—and we can expect it."

His bristling remarks, which he complained of interference "by the President of the United States and General MacArthur," came as a surprise in the wake of an AAU statement of willingness to meet with the federation to discuss their problems.

"There must be a showdown," Werner said. "It is important and highly complex struggle between the federation and the AAU threatened to wreck the country's team for the Olympics.

"If the AAU is truly concerned about this country's Olympic team, they should open all events to all athletes," Werner said.

"In this connection, I urge you gentlemen to have your track coaches, in their dual meets and other meets, set up special events for open athletes, so that they can get the competition they need."

Only two days before AAU President Jay-Ehret Mahoney and Executive Director Don Hull appeared before the NCAA Executive Committee and Council and expressed a willingness to meet with the USTFF and discuss the issues between them.

In a written report, the NCAA leaders that the AAU has every intention of dealing cooperatively with the issues involved in the nation's major athletic dispute.

"Mahoney stated that a new attitude of cooperation would replace the antagonism and intractiveness which has marked the conflict."
