UNIVERSITY PARK, PA., THURSDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 5, 1964

SIX CENTS

Vaughn Requests Backing

A group of 24 alumni who advocate the reinstatement of Froth, former campus humor magazine, is willing to come to the University to work for the return of Froth's charter. Samuel S. Vaughn, Class of 1951, and an executive for Doubleday and Company of New York, is representing the group.

In a telephone interview, Vaughn said that during his visit the group would hope to speak to University President Eric A. Walker. He also said he hopes the visit would stimulate student response.

Vaughn also said he would like to see other interested alumni, students, faculty and administrators join the effort to bring back Froth.

An unofficial secretary of the alumni group, Vaughn addressed a letter to Walker in which his group urged the return of Froth. The letter outlined support which the group is willing to give in time, money and effort.

A second letter addressed to Walker from Ronald S. Bonn, member of the New York office of CBS News, also hit on the Froth issue.

Bonn, as an individual member of the group, outlined his own personal stand. He stated exactly what his feeling were and what he expected from the University.

The President to date has not commented on the two letters.

HUB Events Committee Sets Plans

By JUNE FIEL

For students majoring in HUBology as well as for those who occasionally audit the course, this weekend promises to be a full one, according to the agenda planned by the Hetzel Union Fine Arts and Special Events Committees.

Tomorrow brings another evening of adventure into the honky-tonk piano and comedy situation world of the oldtime movie as the Fine Arts committee again presents Nickelodeon Nights.

Shows will be at 7 and 9 p.m. in the HUB assembly room. Popcorn will be available to fans who wish to munch while hissing the villain.

About 30 male students have entered the "Miss Fashion Miss-Fits of 1964" contest and will display their newly acquired feminine charms and attire for judging 7:30-9 p.m. Saturday in the HUB ballroom.

Robert Katzenstein, general chairman of the HUB committees, outlined plans for the remainder of the fall term and gave a preview of the winter term agenda.

The Big Surprise night planned for Nov. 21 has been made official. It will be an evening of Playboy Club atmosphere beginning at 9 p.m. in the HUB ballroom. Various forms of entertainment are planned, and coed "bunnies" will act as waitresses.

Permission to use the Playmate theme was obtained from the manager of the Playmate, Inc. Party Division. Facilities will allow only 175 couples to attend, and tickets will be $2.25 per couple.

A tea is planned the afternoon of Nov. 22 "hopefully with faculty members of the political science department," Katzenstein said.

The Junk Machine Jammy will be held on Thanksgiving Eve. Students are reminded that the proceeds of both the Fashion Miss-Fits and Junk Machine contests will be donated to the WDFM transmitter fund. Admission to the jammy will be $25.

Long-range plans include the Fine Arts Committee presentation of "Birth of a Nation" scheduled for Feb. 26 and a trip to New York to see the stage show "Funny Girl," with Barbara Streisand, is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 20, Katzenstein said.

AWS To Support WDFM Campaign

Association of Women Students Senate voted unanimously last night to give financial aid to WDFM, University radio station. However, it could not decide on the amount to be donated.

Various suggestions for fund raising projects included admission fees at mixers, the sale of snacks after hours, and special events booths. Uniqueness was stressed as essential in any fund raising events.

Suggestions for projects will be discussed within residence community councils and will be presented at the next senate meeting 6:30 p.m., Wednesday, in 203 Hetzel Union Building.

Walker Supports WDFM Drive

President Eric A. Walker helped launch the WDFM Transmitter Fund drive yesterday with a personal donation and his full support for the campaign. The President gave his endorsement yesterday afternoon after hearing details of the drive to collect $15,000 for a new transmitter for the student-operated campus radio station.

Two student officials, President Benjamin Novak of Undergraduate Student Government and Bruce Trotman, president of the senior class, also threw their support behind the drive yesterday.

The opening day's tally, including funds collected at a booth in the Hetzel Union Building and through the mail, totaled nearly $275. (See list of donors on page 2)

Drive Continues
Today the campaign will continue with a booth near the main desk of the HUB from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and continued individual solicitations.

Students, faculty, University personnel and other interested persons may contribute at the HUB booth, by sending their contribution to Box 261, State College, or by bringing them to The Daily Collegian office, basement of Sackett.

Tonight the campaign may receive a big boost if the Undergraduate Student Government Congress votes to contribute $1,000, as has been proposed. In addition, other campus organizations, including residence hall councils, fraternities, sororities and political and religious groups will be asked to contribute.

Parents of students may contribute by mailing contributions to The Daily Collegian.

Slide Program
Persons wishing more information on the WDFM situation may view a special slide program about the station at the USG Congress meeting at 7:30 tonight in 203 HUB. The program will be shown at meetings of other campus groups throughout November by Kenneth Hershberger, station manager.

Tentative plans have been made for an open house of the WDFM facilities in Sparks, at a time to be announced. At the open house, interested persons may view the station's studios and equipment and watch live shows in progress.

The fund drive was made necessary by the worn-out condition of the station's nearly 30-year-old transmitter, which has broken down numerous times during the past term. A new transmitter would assure that the station will remain on the air, broadcasting its signals to the entire State College-University Park area.

Nittany Inn To Host Bibliography Forum

The third biennial Conference on Bibliography will be well represented by leading scholars from universities across the United States, as well as from the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington.

The conference will begin at 5 p.m. today and continue through Saturday at the Nittany Lion Inn. Scholars will come from Johns Hopkins University, Cornell University, New York University, Northwestern University, University of Iowa, University of Texas and Ohio State University.

In addition to these, Penn State will be represented. Members of the faculty will act as chairmen and speakers.

On the theme of "The Art of the Editor," Robert W. Frank, professor of English, and Donald W. Bleznik, professor of Spanish, will discuss "The Editorial Project."

Gordon R. Smith, professor of English, will speak on "Establishing the Text" and Robert L.

New Recital Hall Debut Scheduled

By CAROL POSTHUMUS

The first program to be presented to the public in the recital hall of the new music building (Arts I) is set for 8:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Raymond H. Brown, associate professor of music, will give a baritone recital accompanied by Barry Brinsmaid, assistant professor of music, on the harp, chamber piano, and a small chamber orchestra conducted by Theodore Karhan, associate professor of music.

When asked for his opinion of the new recital hall Brown said "rehearsals indicate we will like it—the acoustics are very lively. But we won't be able to tell for certain until there are people in the hall."

Test Run
This tomorrow's recital will be a test run for the hall, and the audience that attends is promised a diversified program, selected by Brown with an eye toward songs of literary value.

One highlight of the program is a poem by e. e. cummings, "My Sweet Old Etcetera," set to music by Hugo Weisgall, who was a distinguished visiting professor at the University five years ago.

Two Pennsylvania natives are represented—Vincent Persichelli of Philadelphia wrote the music for four Emily Dickinson songs to be sung by Brown, and Samuel Barber, born in West Chester, set to music "Church Bell at Night" (12th century anonymous poem).

Also included are a Bach cantata, three sonnets by Michelangelo, "Sleep Now" by James Joyce and "Cabin" by Tennessee Williams.

Director of two choral groups—the Penn State Singers and the State College Choral Society—Brown is a frequent recitalist both on and off campus and has been soloist for many Easter performances of the Chapel Choir.

Applications will be available tomorrow at the main desk of the Hetzel Union Building and are to be returned by November 13.

Organizations are asked to sponsor a member or members of their executive board and/or members showing potential leadership capabilities.

The organization will be charged $30 for each participant to cover room and board.

If a student is unable to obtain sponsorship, he may still submit an application and, if accepted, pay his own costs for the weekend.

According to Miss Smith, "NTL is a national organization of professional trainers who travel to various colleges to develop students in leadership skills and group dynamics."

The basic goal of this laboratory training is growth in individual perspective in organizations and in institutional patterns.

She added, "People who go through this program learn to be more openminded, to work better in group efforts, to communicate better with people and to understand more fully group and individual problems and how to cope with them."

Froth Bill Discussed BY USG

By TIM SHAFFER

A bill calling for a poll "to discern the desire of the student body for the return of the campus humor magazine, Froth," will be voted upon tonight at the Undergraduate Student Government Congress meeting.

If the bill, which was submitted by congressman Brian Sherwood to the USG rules committee last night passes, the USG Committee on Student Opinion will conduct a telephone poll Sunday and Monday evening, USG personnel said.

According to Benjamin Novak, USG president, the question posed will probably not refer specifically to the now defunct campus humor publication as the majority of current students were not attending the University when it was being published.

Froth was banned by the University after its first issue of 1962.

Instead, students will probably be questioned more generally as to whether they feel a campus humor magazine is needed at Penn State.

Other Questions

Two other questions will also be included in the poll, according to Jeanne Barnell and Patsy Lewin, co chairmen of the opinion committee.

The first, concerning transponders for student radio station WDFM will attempt to ascertain the number of students who have radios with FM as well as AM tuners. This will give USG an idea of how many students would benefit from the installation of transponders, the committee chairmen stated.

Transponders, more commonly called converters, are mechanisms which can change FM waves to AM.

USG now has $10,000 set aside for purchase of such transponders.

A third question may also be put to the student body in the poll. Penn States may be asked if they prefer to have a carnival instead of a parade for the 1965 Spring Week festivities.

Past Springs
In the past Spring Week has consisted of alternating carnivals and parades.

In 1964, however, because of the success of the carnival, David DeMueh, former Spring Week chairman, suggested that a carnival be held again next spring.

Among other legislation due to come before Congress tonight is a bill stipulating dates for the election of the 10 "representative members of the USG Congress" and for the freshman class president.

The bill, sponsored by Pat Del Monaco, Pollock congressman, states: preliminary party registration and nominations will be held Jan. 7; final party nominations Jan. 10; the campaign Jan. 11-18; balloting Jan. 18 to 20.

Blatt Denies Defeat from the associated press

Republican Hugh Scott claimed victory last night in his bid for re-election to the U.S. Senate, but his opponent, Democrat Genevieve Blatt, refused to concede. The claims came as Scott's margin in the unofficial count dropped to about 25,000 out of more than 4 1/2 million votes, with a handful of the state's 9,286 precincts unreported and the counting of ballots and the official canvass still to come. "It is much too early for me to concede or for my opponent to claim victory," Miss Blatt, a veteran at election cliff hangers, told a Harrisburg news conference. "Anything as close as this may require a recount of Scott said he was principally concerned with protecting the current election results and "assure a fair count of these votes, together with the military and civilian absentee votes" in certifying the official count.

Military Junta Ousts Paz

President Victor Paz Estensoro was overthrown yesterday and left Bolivia, leaving the reins of power in the hands of a military junta headed by the armed forces chief, General Alfredo Obando Candia, the armed forces commander, told the nation after a 24-hour military uprising. "I have assumed the responsibility of the government to form a military junta that will take charge as of now." As the news flashed through the capital, Bolivians ran into the streets shouting "Viva the army!" This was a far cry from 1952, when Paz rode to power on the crest of a popular uprising that threw out a military junta. Paz, 57, and a party of his lieutenants were alternatively reported as having flown to Chile and Peru. In his message broadcast to the nation, Obando said the junta will hold power as briefly as possible and will call for new elections. He said Paz resigned to avoid blood shed. Apart from the economic troubles that beset Bolivia, Paz lost further popular support when he had the constitution changed so he could run for a second consecutive four-year term last May.

Communist Leaders Gather

Premier Chou En-Lai of Red China is going to Moscow for a meeting of world Communist leaders which could have far reaching effects on the Soviet-Chinese split. The Soviet news agency Tass said yesterday that delegations from every Communist-governed country except Albania will gather in Moscow for the 4th anniversary on Saturday of the Bolshevik Revolution. Private talks on the Peking-Moscow feud are likely. Chou will lead the Chinese delegation to the first meeting with Soviet leaders who ousted Nikita Khrushchev, the personal target of much of Peking's venom in the bitter dispute that has ruptured world Communist unity.

Civil Service Agents To Hold PSU Interviews

State Civil Service representatives will visit the University Nov. 17-18 to interview students interested in careers with the Commonwealth, James L. White, assistant director of counseling, said yesterday.

White noted that although this area of employment has gained tremendous impetus in the last decade, comparatively few college students know even the basic facts about their state government and its career opportunities.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania employs over 80,000 persons, 50,000 of whom have civil service status, White explained.

Employees work in more than 1,000 classes of positions in fields such as social welfare, business administration, forestry, agriculture, education, public health and highways.

Within this occupational structure, White said, the college graduate can find some 55 entry-level positions for which he can qualify according to his major course of study.

White said Commonwealth employees receive benefits and salaries comparable to any other type of employment.

Students interested in obtaining an interview with Commonwealth Civil Service representatives should contact White at the University's placement office, 128 Temporary Building, for an appointment as soon as possible.

Goldwater To Retain GOP Reins

Sen. Barry Goldwater obviously has no intentions of relinquishing his position at the GOP helm, even in view of his overwhelming defeat in his bid for the presidency.

The Arizona senator said the massive setback did not crush his conservative cause, and he said the GOP must stick to that path if it is to rebuild its powers.

A conservative-vs.-liberal battle however, has shaped up inside the Republican party in the aftermath of the GOP's crushing defeat.

The Republican national committeeman for Michigan, John Martin, called for a housecleaning of the present party leadership, starting with the ditching of National Chairman Dean Burch.

Martin said the Republican National Convention that nominated Goldwater made "a terrible mistake" in committing the party to "an extreme course with which the people had no sympathy."

Similarly, the Republican state chairman in New York, Fred Young, said the party must now set a course of "responsible moderation" after its "ill-advised, badly led swing to the extreme right."

Council Starts Gripe Group

The Liberal Arts Student Council has initiated a gripe committee to review and investigate any complaints students have with University activities.

The committee was formed at the first meeting of the council Tuesday.

Beginning today, any student with a gripe may file a petition at the Hetzel Union desk under the name of the Liberal Arts Student Council.

The petition will be reviewed by the committee and an investigation will follow. Results of the investigation will be made public.

The committee is co-chaired by Amy Warshaw (4th liberal arts-Passaic, N.J.) and Edward Schiff (7th liberal arts-Bronx, N.Y.).

Chimes Starts Faculty Get-Together Dinners

Chimes, junior women's hat society, has inaugurated a "Meet Us for Dinner" program to get to know professors and their wives and to encourage students to develop meaningful professor-student relationships.

The first of the "dutch-treat" get-together dinners was held last night in the Hetzel Union Building.

Faculty and staff members in attendance were: John B. Mc-

Aulay, professor of elementary education; David C. Jordan, assistant professor of political science; Lawrence K. Pettit, assistant professor of political science; Lawrence K. Pettit, assistant professor of political science; Tien Hsi Cheng, professor of zoology; Ralph G. Ascan, associate professor of chemistry; Lawrence H. Lattman, associate professor of geomorphology; and Mrs. Louis B. Yemoto, of the dean of women's staff.

Individual Chimes informally invite the faculty and staff guests who later receive formal invitations from the society. These Chimes act as hostesses for the evening. According to Susan Ehrenworth, chairman of the program, this keeps the personal touch in the event.

Chimes is encouraging other hat societies and similar groups to adopt similar programs. Miss Ehrenworth said. She added that both Chimes and guests have received the program with enthusiasm.

Parmi Nous Initiates Four Senior Men

Parmi Nous, senior men's honorary society, tapped four men this week. Pledges are Den Knecht (10th-journalism-Schuylkill Haven); Glenn Resler (10th-agriculture education-Dornfite); Burton Rudy (11th-business administration-Harrisburg); and Richard Stover (10th-business administration-Pittsburgh).

Den Coleman, president of Parmi Nous, said the men will be initiated Sunday.

Prospective members are tapped on the basis of all-University average and activities. Knecht is city editor of The Daily Collegian. Resler is defensive middle guard and offensive center for Nittany Lions; Rudy is secretary-treasurer of the Interfraternity Council; and Stover is head cheerleader.

CHIMES JUNIOR women's hat society held a "Meet Us for Dinner" program last night in the HUB dining room. Attending the dutch-treat get-together were professors, their wives and a number of students. Seated in the center is Lawrence H. Lattman, associate professor of geomorphology. On his right is Joan Bowman (7th-arts and letters-Summit, N.J.) and on his left is Jane Yapple, senior resident on the dean of women's staff.
