

Criticism Arises over Bombings

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military-civilian differences over North Vietnam bombing sharpened yesterday as the war problem drew critical discussion both in Washington and at the United Nations.

The controversy whirled around these developments: Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara reiterated his stand against attacking the Communist port of Haiphong, major entry point for Soviet aid: "A risk I don't believe we should undertake at this time."

Newly released congressional testimony placed Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at odds with the administration's decision making Haiphong a sanctuary from U.S. bombs.

President "Brainwashed" Republican Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, speaking to the Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace, charged that President Johnson was "brainwashed" by U.S. military and civilian leaders into believing a military solution is possible in Vietnam.

Canada, in a policy stand voiced by Foreign Secretary Paul Martin at the United Nations in New York, said a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam is the first priority in efforts to start peace talks with the Communists.

Denmark's Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag told the National Press Club in Washington the United States should "run a limited risk" and stop the air attacks to see whether negotiations might follow.

McNamara, before leaving Washington for a NATO nuclear meeting in Turkey, discounted once again the extent of the military men's differences with the Johnson Administration over conduct of the war.

The Pentagon chief, in low-key remarks, portrayed Wheeler's testimony as "a balanced appraisal of the potential risks and gains" of raiding Haiphong while Soviet ships may be docked unloading supplies.

But Wheeler, in comments given Aug. 18 to a closed hearing of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, asserted that after considering all factors, "I have come down on the side that we could undertake actions against the port of Haiphong."

If . . . if . . . then The four-star general said that if Haiphong were neutralized and Soviet war shipments halted, he believes an end to the war might come relatively soon.

Morton noted in his speech that his view is a switch from 1965. "When the President began to escalate the war, I supported the increased American military involvement."

"If the President of the United States has been mistaken, so have I," he told his applauding audience.

People Brainwashed Johnson, in turn, brainwashed the American people during the 1964 presidential campaign by saying the Southeast Asia war should be fought by Asians, rather than Americans, Morton declared.

The Business Executive Move for Vietnam Peace before which Morton spoke claims a membership of business leaders from 44 states.

Canada's policy enunciation before the U.N. General Assembly said it seems clear that all attempts to bring about talks between the United States and North Vietnam "are doomed to failure unless the bombing is stopped."

Martin acknowledged, however, that a bombing halt is "only one side of a military equation." If there is to be success, he said, peace efforts cannot proceed "as if the other side did not exist."

French Exchange Students Invited to Reception

All students who studied in Strasbourg as part of the University's Study Abroad Program have been invited to next week's reception in honor of the visiting French students, according to Dagobert DeLevie, program head.

The reception, DeLevie said, is to inaugurate "the first university-to-university group exchange between France and the U.S." It will take place Friday, Oct. 6, at 3 p.m. in the main lounge of the Hetzel Union Building, under the sponsorship of Paul Althouse, University vice president for resident instruction.

Among the dignitaries who will attend the reception are M. Morot-Sir, French cultural attache, Otto Shaler, special assistant to the U.S. assistant secretary of education and John E. Bowman, executive director of the Council on International Educational Exchange.

Members of the administration and faculty, in addition to heads of student groups, have also been invited to attend.

Students have been sent to Strasbourg since the program was initiated in 1962, but this is the first year that French students have come to the University to study. There are eight students involved in the exchange.

University Appoints Two Psychologists

Two senior psychologists at the University have received joint appointments in the college of human development and the department of psychology.

Dale Harris will serve one-quarter time as professor of human development in conjunction with his duties as professor of psychology. The dual appointment became effective Sept. 1.

Charles Taylor, formerly continuing education specialist in gerontology, will devote three-fourths of his time to the college of human development, and one-fourth as professor of psychology. He assumed his new duties on July 1.

In commenting on the appointments, Donald H. Ford, dean of the college of human development, said, "one focus of our college will be the interdisciplinary study of man in his everyday living from infancy to old age; and the combined interests of these two eminent scholars nearly cover that span.

"Harris is a widely-recognized authority in the fields of childhood and adolescence; Taylor, nationally known for his research and writings on social gerontology, also is interested in development in the middle years, 25 to 50, a period which we know too little about," he said.

These appointments represent an extension of the cooperation which has previously existed between the department of child development and family relationships, college of human development, and the department of psychology, Ford said.

Harris was appointed professor of psychology at the University in 1959. He served as chairman of the department from 1962 to 1967. A graduate of DePauw University, he received the master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Minnesota.

Taylor came to the University in 1964, primarily to provide leadership in developing continuing education programs in gerontology. He received the baccalaureate and doctoral degrees from Syracuse University.
