

ESP Experts Pick Pike's Mind

NEW YORK (AP) — Did extrasensory preception (ESP) but if it was his son, to me that's an open question.

At the seance, which took place Sept. 3 and was shown on CTV, the private Canadian network, Sept. 17, the Rev. Arthur Ford, a widely known medium and ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ Church, went into a trance. His spirit control, Fletcher, a French-Canadian he had known as a boy, relayed messages to the bishop purportedly from dead friends and relatives.

Open Question

The man who arranged the seance, Allen Spraggett, is in the middle, believing "there was strong evidence of communication and, at the least, of

The controversial bishop said in an interview in Seattle Tuesday that during the session his son, James Jr., spoke to him directly through the medium—without the control.

"The Bishop's son committed suicide in February, 1966, at the age of 22."

'Very Aware'

"He referred to events—a lot of difficulties—and seemed very aware of things," the bishop said. He said his son knew of his dispute with the Church over interpretation of some traditional doctrines.

Karlis Osis, director of research for the American Society of Physical Research, who has done elaborate investigation on the question of survival after death, said yesterday: "I do think there are some facts discovered in parapsychological research which suggest that possibility, but it is by no means conclusive at the present stage.

"I strongly doubt that proof of one medium in one session could give us more evidence than has already been obtained in a series of long, well-planned experiments."

'Searching Individual'

Martin Ebon, formerly administrative secretary of the Parapsychology Foundation in New York, New School lecturer in the field and author of "Prophecy in Our Time," said, "Bishop Pike represents the kind of searching individual and researcher who has found subjective proof in an area where many scientists, including J. B. Rhine, hold that objective proof cannot be found with current investigative methods."

The seance, he said, "doesn't prove survival after death but a high and specialized form of ESP. The medium could have picked Pike's memory."

Martin: Scholarship Action Set

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Canadian Foreign Secretary Paul Martin warned yesterday that efforts to open negotiations to end the war in Vietnam are "doomed to failure" unless the United States halts its bombing of North Vietnam.

In a speech to the U.N. General Assembly Martin said that a cessation of the bombing "is a matter of first priority if we are to start the process of de-escalation and to open the door to the conference room."

At the same time, Martin told the 122-nation assembly that a halt in the U.S. bombing was "only one side of the military equation."

"We cannot proceed, if we are to have any hope of success," he said, "as if the other side did not exist."

Job Interviews Set

Representatives of the following business firms will be on campus to interview students interested in applying for currently listed positions. Curriculum abbreviations following the interview date represent majors the firm desires to interview, and not specific job titles. Additional information on listed positions is available in Room 12 (Basement), Grange Building. An appointment card and personal information sheet should be submitted approximately ten days prior to the date of each interview desired.

Anchor Books's survey of a poet's work in the way of unrequited reading 14,000 cheering fans, taking up every seat of a sports stadium to hear... a poetry reading?

Yes, it has happened — is still happening, in fact. But not, you will be unsurprised to learn, in the United States. It happens in Russia, and the poet they come to cheer is Andrei Voznesensky.

Of course, while his readings may draw a few thousand fewer souls elsewhere, Voznesensky's reputation as a great poet is not confined to Russia. Robert Lowell has written of him, "He is full of invention, fireworks and humor... a first rate craftsman who has had the heroic patience and imagination to be himself."

Anchor Books has just published a volume of Voznesensky's verse, including eight new poems, entitled ANTIWORLDS AND "THE FIFTH ACT" (edited by Patricia Blake and Maz Hovgaard; $1.95). It is a bilingual edition, with the Russian texts on left hand pages and English versions facing them. And it is a remarkable venture in the art of translation, because six American poets — W. H. Auden, Jean Garrigue, Stanley Kunitz, Stanley Moss, William Jay Smith, and Richard Wilbur — worked with the editors from literal translations of the poems to create English equivalents. Voznesensky has written the translators of ANTIWORLDS: "I have long been convinced that poetry must be translated by poets. A poet understands another poet, even without the help of a dictionary..."

W. H. Auden, in a foreword to this volume, tells why he — and many thousands of non-Russians throughout the world — want to hear and read Voznesensky's poetry: "One of the primary proofs that a poem, or any work of art, has value is that, wherever, whenever, and by whomsoever it was made, we find it relevant to ourselves, our time, and our place. I am certain that Mr. Voznesensky is a good poet because, though I know no Russian and have never been to Russia, his poems, even in English translation, have much to say to me."

THE MOTORCYCLE BOOK (a Doubleday paperback, $1.95) has much to say to anyone who is part of, or plans to join, the new breed of cycle owners. Peter C. Reid and Don Lehrbaum, both dedicated cyclists, have written an absolutely up-to-date, non-technical handbook that explains what you need to know to buy a new or used machine intelligently; how to keep it in top condition; how to ride it skillfully and safely; how to deal with emergency situations; and how to enjoy it and still stay in one, unbroken piece.

The two books reviewed above are published by the sponsors of this column, Doubleday Books, 270 Park Avenue, New York City, and Doubleday & Company, Inc., Garden City, New York. You'll find them both at one of the best equipped bookstores in the country — your own college store.
