Errors Hurt Lingenfelter in 3-2 Loss

Lions Play Same Old Song

Assistant Sports Editor

There's an affliction in baseball that more than a few pitching staffs have run into. The Oakland A's have it. So do the New York Mets. In fact, the starting pitchers on most teams that kick away games know all about the

What hurts these pitchers is the "I've got to pitch a shutout to win" syndrome. No baseball man ever talks about it in a voice above a whisper, but it's there. And the way things are going for Penn State's baseball team no one could blame the Lion pitchers for thinking in the

The Lions traveled to Lafayette yesterday, but they might as well have stayed home. The Leopards slipped by for a 3-2 win in a pattern that is becoming disgustingly familiar.

Denny Lingenfelter started for the Lions. Once agains the senior pitched a game worthy of victory and, for the third time this season, didn't get one. Lingenfelter held the hard-hitting Leopards to six safeties, five of them singles, and didn't give up an earned run. Bill Micsky pitched an inning and a third in relief and didn't give up a hit.

That should have been enough to win, but untimely errors wasted the pitching. and let Lafayette grab a victory which it shouldn't ing strongly as the Lions took a slim one-run lead in the fourth. State's leading hitter, Ken Barto, got a lead-off single. Gary Kanaskie followed with a single and Joe Comforto moved both runners up a base with a bunt.

Jim Allgyer, an ex-pitcher who's playing right field and hitting as if he never heard of a pitcher's mound, was the next batter. The senior came up with a clutch hit once again, sending Barto home with the lead run.

For several innings it looked like that one-run lead would hold up. Lingenfelter was strong and pitching effectively. But the Leopards were just waiting for an opening, and when one appeared, they made the most of it.

Lafayette was able to take advantage of two State errors to send across three runs in the seventh inning, taking a lead which was to prove decisive.

Bob Fiedler led off by popping up in foul territory behind first base. Lion first sacker Dick Dreher got to the ball but couldn't hold it. Given this reprieve, Fiedler rapped a ground-rule double, the only extra base hit Lafayette got in the game.

Tying Run Home

Tom McCombs drew a walk, and one out later, Andy Pelak singled in Fiedler with the tying run.

The Lions might have escaped further damage, but another error kept Lafayette alive. Gaylor Dissinger hit a grounder which went through Dreher's legs, scoring

The final run in the frame scored when pitcher Dick Noll singled home Pelak.

At this point State coach Chuck Medlar lifted Lingenfelter for Bill Micsky, who got out of the inning. State rallied in the ninth and had a chance to pull out a victory, but fell a run short. Kanaskie walked leading off and Comforto singled, his second hit of the game. Allguer sacrificed, moving both runners up a base.

and pinch-hitter Gene Christina clouted a deep fly ball to center, with Kanaskie scoring after the catch.

Comforto, representing the tying run, moved to third on Christina's sacrifice, but the game ended when John Featherstone fouled out.

The loss left the fading Lions with a 7-6 record. The team has now lost six of its last nine games, four of those losses by one run.

The win boosted Lafavette's record to 11-5. Leopard starter Noll raised his record to 4-2 with the victory.

Lingenfelter has now lost three games in a row, all of them on bad play in the field and little hitting support. Maybe the only way to win is to pitch a shutout. At worst, you leave yourself with a tie.
