Black Student Activists Meet in Conference

By WILLIAM SPERRY

Student activists met this weekend in Buffalo in a conference designed to organize students in different racial and class groups and to discuss their political goals and strategies.

The conference was held at a hotel in Buffalo and was attended by students from a variety of colleges and universities across the country.

The activists discussed issues such as civil rights, poverty, and education reform, and they also debated how to best approach the upcoming presidential elections.

The meeting concluded with a call to action for students to get involved in local politics and to support candidates who share their values.

Activities included workshops on organizing and campaigning, as well as discussions on the role of student activism in shaping public policy.

The conference was organized by the National Student Association and was supported by a number of social justice organizations.

Peace Envoy Cordial

PARIS (AP) — Ben Gaspard, an American envoy to the DR Congo, arrived in Kinshasa on a three-day trip to discuss the ongoing conflict in the country.

Gaspard, who represents the United Nations, met with Congolese officials and international organizations to discuss the situation on the ground.

The envoy stressed the importance of a political solution to the crisis and urged for the implementation of international commitments.

Cold War

The peace envoy's visit comes amid growing tension between the DR Congo and its neighbors, particularly Rwanda and Uganda.

The two countries have had a history of border disputes and military provocations, which have fueled the instability in the region.

Gaspard's trip is part of a broader effort by the international community to mediate and bring peace to the DR Congo.

We believe the demented people who are preventing this country from moving forward should be made to go back to their cages.

We need a new law that will not allow the demented people to hold us back.
