Open rehearsals slated

Because of the great demand for tickets, Raymond Brown, director of the Penn State Chapel and Concert Choir, has announced that the final dress rehearsal for the Choirs' Spring Concert will be open to the public.

The dress rehearsal is scheduled for 7 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab.

There are no more tickets available for the regularly scheduled Saturday night concert. The Choir will be performing the "Requiem" by Giuseppe Verdi.

Richard M. Stern, professor of physics in the Physics Institute of Brooklyn, will discuss "Electron Diffraction as a Surface Tool," at 4 p.m.

Russian Jew featured in Hillel 'rap-in'

By BARB SNYDER, Collegian Staff Writer

Speaking as part of Jewish Solidarity Day, Vladimir Nachimov said Tuesday night that the Jews in the Soviet Union now feel that "Israel is their home."

Nachimov was the guest speaker at an informal rap-in sponsored by the State College Hillel to focus attention on the conditions of Russian Jews.

Born near Moscow, Nachimov said he left Russia when he was 17 with no knowledge of what it meant to be Jewish. He said that while living in Russia he had never heard of Israel, "except as an aggressor of Arab states."

He described his first week in Israel as "scary," since it took time to assimilate himself into the Israeli way of life. He met Jews from all over the world and said it was a strange experience to meet fellow Jews with skin of a different color than his own.

He said he is not sure if meetings, speeches and moralizations help Soviet Jews, but he said he can no longer be harmful since the Jews in Russia will no longer sit quietly and allow persecution to continue.

Hopefully, the Soviet Jews will someday be allowed to go to Israel, Nachimov said, adding, "when and how, I don't know."

An information table will be today and tomorrow on the available today and tomorrow on the ground floor of the Hertz Union Building where people may stop and rap about the situation of Soviet Jews.

A petition may be signed which calls for a joint resolution of Congress condemning the inhumane treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. The resolution calls for the reopening of closed synagogues, sufficient publication and distribution of religious articles, freedom of Jewish education, free expression of Jewish heritage and freedom to emigrate if so desired.

If the Russians would not discriminate against the Jews, they would assimilate peacefully, he added.

Responding to questions from the audience concerning American aid to their brothers in Israel, Nachimov said "help yourself first as a Jew." He explained that most Jewish young people in America "just don't give a damn about being Jewish and this must be remedied before any effective aid can be given to the Jews in Russia and Israel."

Nachimov said that groups like the Jewish Defense League are mistaken if they think violence will overcome the strength of the Soviet Union.

Shapp's budget of $3.3 billion meets chilly reaction in capital

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shapp's $3.3 billion General Fund budget for 1971-72 landed on legislators' desks Tuesday and got a chilly reaction from both Republicans and Democrats.

Shapp outlined spending for capital projects and other special fund items to bring the total state expenditures for the year to $5.7 billion.

Democrat Shapp declined to personally deliver the traditional budget message to the Democratic-controlled legislature, fearing a negative reaction might accompany his own appearance. Instead, he transmitted the budget in book form.

The total spending represents an average $500 for each Pennsylvanian, all of which would be paid from existing taxes including the new personal income tax.

The General Fund — revenues paid by the average taxpayer from broad based taxes — would provide $537 million more than the current budget. Overall spending of $5.7 billion is up from $4.3 billion this fiscal year.

He proposed spending $28 million from the Motor License Fund and $32 million from the General Fund to retire capital debts. Overall capital spending — including General State Authority, road projects and college construction — is set at $458 million.

Most of the General Fund increase came in the areas of basic education subsidies — $87 million — and welfare — $137 million.

Another major chunk of the budget increase would come from revision of the basic education subsidy, returning $80 million more to school districts.

For the first time in Pennsylvania history, a personal income tax appeared in the pie chart of state income.

That tax was expected to contribute nearly 27 per cent of General Fund revenues — or $950 million during the 12 months.

Shapp predicted the state's highest-in-the-nation 6 per cent sales tax would bring in almost 20 per cent of the $3.3 billion for general use — or $978 million.

Tucked away in the month-long lists of state programs and figures were dollars to boost lawmakers' expense accounts from $4,800 to $7,500 a year retroactive to last Dec. 1. There also was money for a $3,000 a year home office, with a secretary.

logbook Hearing held on rape charge

Belleville District Magistrate Louise O. Green reversed her decision in a preliminary hearing of rape charges against football player Gary Hayman yesterday.

Hayman (6 ft-physical education-Newark, Del.) was arraigned April 30 on four counts—rape, assault with intent to ravish, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery.

The preliminary hearing was to determine whether there is enough evidence to bind Hayman over for trial. Mrs. Green said she must decide on the evidence for each count and wanted more time to consider the testimony. She added that she would reach a decision today.

Three men who escaped Tuesday from Rockview State Correctional Institution will be arraigned this morning before Belleville District Magistrate Green.

According to the State Police, the men, driving a stolen car, were picked up

Pivot, the University's poetry magazine, did not go on sale yesterday as planned because of printing complications.

The magazine will be sold next Wednesday instead.

Not including the office expense accounts, each rank and file legislator would be paid $15,000 a year in salary and fixed, unaccountable expense money, compared to his present $12,000.
