Onkotz sees more depth n'71 Penn State team

Collegian Sports Editor

Mention the word defense in Penn State football circles and people will start throwing names like Onkotz, Reid, Smear, and Kates at you. To resurrect an old bromide, it seems like the legend of that defense remains, even though its members have since departed.

departed.

Dennis Onkotz, now a New York Jets' linebacker, is one former Lion still graeing the local scene. Yesterday he took time out to discuss this year's football team with the man who plays his old position—Gary Gray.

Gray and Onkotz are old buddies. As a sophomore, Gary played second string behind Dennis, which meant he didn't get to play much.

"I used to play when Dennis got tired of running those punts up and down the field."

Gray recalled.

Onkotz laughed at the memory. He said

O—How would this team go about gaining the reputation your team had?

A—Well, nobody minds a dull team going 11-0. I just feel that if you think you are going to win, you end up making your own breaks Personnel-wise, this year's team is much better than outs. We didn't have Mike Reid in my sophomore year. This team has a lot of competition in the secondary and that is a good sign.

Onkotz laughed at the memoty. He said something about not running back punts anymore because it tires you out and then submitted to some questions from a novice reporter.

O—How does this year's defense comparison. This team has much more depin than ours. We had a lot of old seniors who weren't too fast.

O—How did your team acquire a national reputation."

A—I think it was a matter of a young team doing well, winning some close games and being exciting. People like to see that. The press picks it up after a while — they write about anything that sells.

O—Was there any luck involved in that winning streak or did you guys earn every win?

A—We earned them. But the games did come at the right time. The UCLA loss (17-15) in the third game of the 1967 season) came at the right time. It matured us. We were big question in the minds of Penn State football lans centered around Joe Paterno's choice at the quarterback slot. But even when the Lions split up the squad with Bob Parsons handling one team and Mike Cooper the other, the final score of the game didn't really bring things into focus. Parsons' team won the affair, 48-32, but both candidates passed and ran the ball quite well. So the situation was still pretty much up in the air. The fact that Cooper was at the helm when Navy brought its 1970 squad into Beaver Stadium for the Lions' opener was not a direct result of the Blue-White game.

Huffy's Job

The current Blue-White classic, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, is not going to be a determining factor in the quarterback assignment for the fall, either, After proving himself by snapping the Lions out of a unexpected nosedive last year, junior John Hufnagel's position is about as certain as Paterno's.

The real concentration toward providing a solid game-type situation in the Blue-White contest is dividing up the team's personnel as evenly as possible. Paterno and his staff believe they handled that problem fairly well and the game should be a good wrap-up for the Lions' spring training season.
