

PSU's first athletic event under the lights

New-look Lions host GW

By RAY McALLISTER
Assistant Sports Editor
"It's a whole new ballgame!" read the Phillies' promotional line of last year. For them it wasn't, of course, but things look to be working out a little better for the Penn State soccerballers this year.

The booters open their 1972 season with George Washington at 7 p.m. tonight on newly-named Jeffrey Field. The game will mark Penn State's first outdoor athletic event of any sort to be played at night.

And the Lions will be playing with-in addition to the lights - new European-style jerseys and a new electric scoreboard. In fact one of the few things which is not totally new will be the team itself. It may be a good thing.

For nine of the ten scorers from last year's NCAA quarter-final team are back, headed by Andy (Nugget) Rymarczuk. Rymarczuk led the team with 14 goals last season and tied Chris Bahr for the scoring lead with 18 points.

Rymarczuk also is being touted as being Penn State's next All-American, the 40th Lion ever and the first since Per Torgerson fifteen years ago.

Nugget is amply backed up by Bahr, whose 18 points last year came on 12 goals and six assists, Rick Allen (eight goals, five assists) and Dave Reice (four goals, five assists) in the scoring department.

Little-used Jimmy Startzell has now become a starter and he, along with freshman John Marsden, could supply additional fire power.

Also returning is Tom Kehan, who all last season was referred to as "the stalwart defender." Kehan, just now getting over the effects of knee surgery, probably will split his playing time between his fullback spot of last year and halfback.

Also expected to see quite a bit of action are halfbacks Gary Kline, Bruce Allen, Emil Kopilovich and Scott Matlack; fullbacks Scott Frazier, Dave Reice, Bob Viehwager and Dave Boles; goalies Gary MacMath, Mike Arnold, Walt Loose and John Gratti; and wing Steve Locker.

The Colonials of George Washington (0-1-1) find themselves in a bit of trouble this year. The team, which shows nine freshmen and seven soph on its 25-man roster, obviously is young and collegially inexperienced.

But coach Buck Davidson, himself and All-American at Penn State in 1929, has a few things going for him. One is the return of his two leading scorers of last year, Murat Seyhun and sophomore Ken Garber. Another is sophomore Kevin Hoyle who has been handling the center fullback position well thus far. And yet another is yet another sophomore John Lubitz, who has taken over the goal-tending chores.

Despite their youth, the Colonials may not be as "young" as they seem.

"They're basically a foreign team," Lion coach Herb Schmidt said, "so they have a lot of experience."

Indeed the Colonials' backgrounds are in some nine different countries, most of those where soccer is the national pastime and played by everyone from age three on.

"I know they have a very strong defensive unit," Schmidt said of the Colonials. "They usually do."

Schmidt has been making no secret of the fact that his own defense could use a bit more polishing and he has been working it hard most of the fall. The Lions put in their final practice last night under the new lights.

The defense will have to contend with Derya Yavalar and Victor Villagra, in addition to Seyhun and Garber. The Colonials now have Harry Doe and John Losak have been elected co-captains of the 1972-73 Penn State fencing team.

Doe, a senior from Philadelphia, and Losak, a senior from Pittsburgh, were selected by the returning lettermen from last year's team.

Handy Andy

ANDY RYMARCZUK, an All-American honorable mention last season, will be leading Penn State's soccer team as it kicks off its season tonight against George Washington at 7 p.m. on Bill Jeffrey Field. The Lions, ranked eighth in a preseason poll, were NCAA quarter-finalists last year.

A night on the ol' soccer field

Penn State's soccer team went through it's first, last and only workout under the lights last night in preparation for this evening's season-opener with George Washington.

"Truthfully, it was not so good," coach Herb Schmidt said, as practice ended and he walked off Jeffrey Field to put away the white-and-black soccer balls. "We're still not doing things quite the way I'd hoped we would be."

The lineup for the game was still not set, he explained, with a few positions still remaining to be filled even at this eleventh hour.

Andy Rymarczuk and Rick Allen would open inside on the front line, he said, with Jimmy Startzell and John Marsden on the wings. Chris Bahr would take the center halfback position with Gary Kline and either Tom Kehan or Bruce Allen flanking him. The fullbacks also presented one questionable position, Schmidt said. Scott Frazier and Dave Reice were set but the other position could be either Bob Viehwager's or Dave Boles' or belong to both. Gary MacMath, of course, would start in the goal.

While the practice was in session earlier, Startzell, out for the moment, had looked toward the field.

"I like it," he said, in reference to playing under the lights. "This is the first time we played under them but I like it."

"In the day you look around and there are people everywhere and cars and things happening. You can smell the cows over there," he said, motioning past the newly-installed scoreboard. "But now the field is lit up and everything else is dark. It makes the game the center of attention."

Moments later Rick Allen came near, moving the ball downfield but being cut off at the side line by a defender. Behind him Andy Rymarczuk was poised for a pass.

Penn State vs GW

GAME TIME - 7 p.m. tonight at Jeffrey Field (far side of University Dr. near Beaver Stadium). Field dedication ceremonies begin at 6:45.

ADMISSION - Free. PARKING - Free in football "red" area; entrance by baseball backstop.

1972 RECORDS - George Washington, 0-1-1 (Tied Salisbury 2-2, lost to American 2-1); Penn State, 0-0. SPEED - A toss-up. GW plays a foreign, ball control-type game, relying on speed, short passes and finesse. The Lions also are quick, particularly in the line and at the halfbacks.

DEFENSE - No doubt the strong point of the Colonials, who have always been a defensive team, anyway. Penn State's defense should be strong this year but, untried as yet, it could be the weakest point tonight.

SCORING - GW's leading scorers of last year, Murat Seyhun and Ken Garber, are back but Derya Yavalar and Vic Vallagra lead this year. Penn State's Andy Rymarczuk, Chris Bahr and Rick Allen are proven threats; Jimmy Startzell, John Marsden and others are capable.

PREDICTION - Openers are tough to figure but teams should be close in first half. Look for Lions, getting untracked, to blow it open in the second.

ESTIMATED SCORE - Penn State 4, George Washington 2 - Rmc

Marital Enrichment Workshops

Couples experiencing marital difficulties and those wishing to enhance an already good relationship through a free, eight-week, professionally run Workshop are invited to call the Psychological Clinic at Penn State (865-2191)

A brief interview will be arranged in which details of the program will be explained. Please call soon as the workshops will commence in the next few weeks. Open to all local residents and students and personnel of the University.
