

Police quell prison disturbance

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — State Police used tear gas yesterday to quell a brief disturbance at the huge Eastern State Correctional Institution near here after inmates assaulted three guards, seized the maximum security block and set fire to mattresses.

The rebelling inmates held the block for nearly three hours.

Warden Robert L. Johnson said the prisoners were unhappy because they are not allowed to have radios or television.

"We discovered that some inmates were making weapons with the personal items," Johnson said, explaining why they were taken away several months ago.

State Police Commissioner Rocca Urella dispatched 60 troopers to the scene after an emergency call from Johnson.

"We don't have enough correctional officers," the warden said.

The trouble erupted shortly before 8:30 a.m. as guard Joseph McCracken, 48, was escorting the second of 35 men in the block to the exercise yard. He was knocked to the floor and fighting began.

Guards Thomas McCauley, 50, and Herbert Williamson, 36, rushed to McCracken's side — all were armed with small clubs — and the three managed to get out of the block and lock the door, preventing any escape.

Meantime, other inmates set fire to the mattresses, filling the block with thick smoke.

The warden refused to release the shouting men from the locked block until sufficient guards and troopers were in the area, and then only after the tear gas canisters were fired. This took place about 11 a.m., less than three hours after it all started.

Urella said, "There was no danger to anyone's life. There was smoke but not to the point where lives would be endangered."

The three guards were treated for severe bruises at the Pottstown Hospital and then went back on duty.

Fifteen inmates were treated in the prison infirmary for smoke inhalation, or from effects of the tear gas

Damage was confined to the mattresses, and local firemen extinguished the small blazes.

Johnson said the two investigators of the trouble were Daniel Reagan and Daniel Delker, whom he described as "troublemakers."

The prison is located at Graterford, in Montgomery County, about 20 miles northwest of Philadelphia. It covers 1,773 acres, most of it farmland which the inmates work. A 62-acre compound, housing about 2,000 prisoners, is within the walls.

Hungarian group to play

The Hungarian Symphony Orchestra will present a concert at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Rec Hall under the auspices of the Artists Series.

This is the group's first American tour arranged after years of negotiation. The Hungarian Symphony has performed throughout Europe and the Soviet Union. From the success of these tours it has gained a reputation as one of Europe's finest orchestras.

Janos Ferencsik is the musical director and has been for two decades.

He has appeared as a guest conductor for the Los Angeles Philharmonic and has led a number of operatic orchestras including the Hungarian Opera Company, Vienna State Opera and the Budapest State Opera. He has conducted most of the major European orchestras.

Ferencsik is the recipient of the "Kossuth Prize," the highest state decoration in Hungary, for his "outstanding merits."

Denes Kovacs will perform as violin soloist in tomorrow's program. Since 1951 Kovacs has appeared as a soloist and recitalist for many symphony orchestras. He is winner of the Carl Flesch Competition in London in 1955 and was more recently awarded the Franz Liszt Prize in Hungary.

The orchestra was founded in 1923 as the Budapest Metropolitan Orchestra. It later was reformed and given its present name after undergoing severe losses during World War II.

Many great conductors have led the orchestra including Pablo Casals, Lorin Maazel, Zubin Mehta, Leopold Stokowski, Igor Stravinsky and Otto Klemperer.

The orchestra will perform "Leonore Overture No. 3" by Beethoven, "Concerto No. 2 for Violin and Orchestra" by Bartok, "Dances from Galanta" by Kodaly, and "Suite from The Miraculous Mandarin" by Bartok.

Tickets continue on sale at the Artists Series booth on the first floor of the HUB. Student and children tickets are $1.50 and general admission is $2.50.

The ticket booth closes at 4 p.m. today. Remaining tickets may be purchased just before the concert at Rec Hall.
