Individual tickets will cost $1.50 for students and $2.50 for non-students for Rec Hall events: $1 for students and $2.50 for non-students for Schwab enents, and 50 cents for students and $1 for non-students for all films.

In addition, a subscription to the Fairbanks and Bunuel film series, plus next summer's film series, will be available at $3 for students and $5 for non-students.

"Roughly" 80 per cent of all Artists Series tickets are set -aside for students, according to Series manager Nina c.

Brown said the Series has been in operation since 1957. when the director of the School of the Arts found students would be interested in such a program and voted to be assessed a two-dollar student activity fee to support it.

But the University Board of Trustees instead voted to support the Series through a lump sum each year.

Originally under the Office of Student Affairs, the Series moved to its present offices in Schwab when it came under the direction of the College of Arts and Architecture during

The Series is directed in selecting performers by an advisory board consisting of faculty members, graduate students and undergraduates.

This board accepts suggestions for its selections from anyone interested in the arts and then investigates possibilities for booking them. Brown said. She added most major artists must be scheduled a year or two in advance for specific dates and the Series already has begun planning for its 1974-75 season.

Brown also said the series occasionally co-sponsors events with other University groups, such as last spring's Folk Festival co-sponsored by the Artists Series, the University Concert Committee and the Folklore Society. This year the two dance residencies will be co-sponsored by the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.
