Colloquy goes academic

Collegian Staff Writer

"We want to not only entertain the students, but to inform them."

That is the purpose of the new Colloquy Speaker-Workshop Committee, according to Colloquy President Jerry

The new Colloquy was formed because it was decided one organization should do most of the academic programing on campus, Miller said.

The organization is expected to have input from the Graduate Student Association, the University Union Board, the Free University and old

Colloquy members, all of which previously held programs on their own.

The new Colloquy is very different from the old Colloquy, Miller said. "Colloquy used to be a sort of spring festival held for a four-day weekend, consisting of speakers and workshops," he said.

Now Colloquy programs will be held all year long, Miller added. "This students on campus," he said.

Colloquy no longer will bring in concerts or other kinds of popular entertainment, Miller said. Other groups will be responsible for this since Colloquy will handle only academic programs, he noted.

Colloquy will not be charging admission to its programs this year, as it has in the past, Miller said. Instead, Colloquy will receive money from Associated Student Activities.

This year's programs are not as large as the old Colloquy programs were, Miller noted. The programs, which will be held in Schwab and the Hub Ballroom, are geared for smaller audiences, Miller said. "I'm quite confident our programs of this nature can bring in about 1,000 people," he said. Miller said funds are limited, but "we can provide some interesting programs all year round."

Colloquy will concentrate on bringing in speakers with different interests and varied backgrounds, Miller siad.

This week and next, several science fiction writers will be featured as Colloquy's first program. Hugo award winner John Brunner will speak on the "Future of the Environment" 8 p.m. Wednesday in Schwab.

Gordon R. Dixon, Theodore Sturgeon and Frederick Pohl will speak on "Issues of the Future" 8 p.m. Thursday in the HUB Ballroom.

Jerry Pournelle and Roger Zelazny will debate on the "Future of Science Fiction" 8 p.m. Sept. 17 in Schwab. Other topics planned include a consumer interest program scheduled for the middle of October, Miller noted. Miller said Colloquy is trying to get Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg, U.S. Senator Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., and Bill

Buckley for future programs. Colloquy also is trying to contact U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., he added, "but the last time we tried to get him, his secretary asked us if the spring of two years later would be all right.'

Thome: Our School

Going to our school

is an education in itself

confused with actually which is not to be getting an education.

NOW I TRUST I HAVE IMPRESSED UPON YOU JUST HOW VALUABLE MY PLAYBOOK IS TO US A CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON!

State may force local merchants to accept original mall proposal

may be forced to accept their original Allen Street Mall design if they want to build a

Pennsylvania

collegian classifieds get results

It's every

Monday

night

Affairs Aug. 6 withdrew its offer to subsidize a pedestrian mall on S. Allen Street between College and Beaver

To build a mall there, the mall committee now must either convince the property owners along S. Allen to accept the original design or convince the Department of Community Affairs to subsidize a mall which includes a one-way street, according to Mall Committee Chairman Guy Kresge.

Start the term off with a

Adult Classes offered in:

The Tom Cat formerly Rita's

located just off Beaver Ave. in Humes Alley

Golden Oldies with Mike Alexander

featuring Bob Doyle and the Buffalo Chip Kickers

Stop in now

Give a purr and a meow

TOPLESS ENTERTAINMENT

Mon. Tues. Thurs & Saturday

Friday

pay 50 per cent of the building costs. The rest of the cost was to be split between the borough and the property owners.
The design approved by the Department called for a park-like atmosphere with no traffic other than emergency vehicles.

hurt their business and have a chance of getting the refused to put up the money. property owners' support.' In an effort to reach a compromise, the mall committee revised the design promised an $110,000 grant to to allow for a 20-foot parkway with one-way traffic. This design did not meet the Department's approval. Kresge said he is disappointed with State College consumers for not voicing approval of the mall. "Property owners will do what they think the customers want," he said. "If But the property owners enough people make it known said they felt the mall would that they want a mall, we

Thefts, illegal parking continue

Students violate bicycle rules

Collegian Staff Writer Violations of University and State College bicycle regulations during the past month have ranged from theft to parking violations.

The Department of University Safety Aug. 4 apprehended two University of Indiana students suspected of cutting seven bicycle chains outside Shunk. The students did not have time to take the bicycles as they fled, but they were arrested Aug. 20 after Safety officers traced their pick-up truck license

On Sept. 4 the students, who pleaded guilty to charges of criminal attempt, were given one year probation and fined $250 each plus court costs.

State College police Wednesday received a report that a boy's Schwinn bicycle had been stolen.

Thursday Cathy Sharkness of 110 Simmons Hall reported to the Department of Safety her $190 bicycle had been stolen from outside Simmons Hall. The State College Police received the report of a boys Schwinn bicycle stolen Wednesday.

State College Police issued 14 tickets Tuesday to people violating the State College bicycle ordinances, according to Mike Graff, member of the Centre Regional Planning Commission.

The tickets were given to cyclists for going the wrong way on one-way streets and alleys and for locking bicycles to Borough light standards, meter posts and street signs.

The tickets issued were $2 fines, but State College Borough Police charge 50 bicycle, including its frame Ordinance 620 says the fine can be as much as $10 plus costs. Also in default of paying this fine, the violator can be imprisoned for up to

Department of University Safety can issue $1 fines for non-moving violations on campus and $5 fines for moving violations and failure to license a

To legally ride a bicycle on campus or downtown it must cents for this license but the Department of Safety issues them free of charge.

The license expires April 30 and must be renewed each The license is kept on file either at the Department of Safety or Borough Police Department. A license tag is attached to the frame of the bicycle. The license contains the name, date of birth and number.

If the bicycle is stolen and recovered its fowner can identify it with this license because it pairs his name with the frame number.

The bicycle must be in safe operable condition and have a bell or horn to be licensed by either the State College Police or the Department of Safety. The Department of Safety also requires a rear tail light address of the bicycle owner, or reflector and a headlight

The Central Pennsylvania Dance Workshop is accepting registration for fall.

Harvey WallBANGer

at The Corner Lounge

over the Corner Room

Ballet, Modern Dance, Tap, Jazz. For information call the Director, Studio located at 119 S. Allen St. Peoples Nat'l. Bank Bldg.

LaRue Allen at 238-7142

Jewelry Silver Gold Cast and Hammered Earrings Pendants Rings ~ Necklaces

Presents:

Wednesday

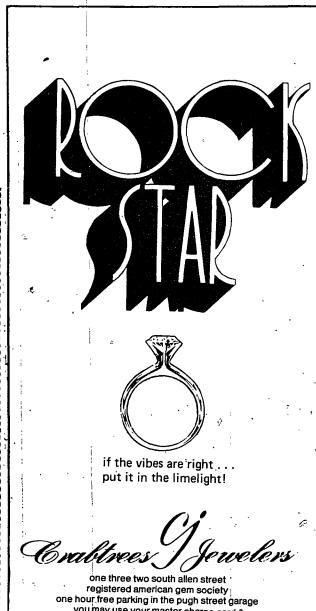

Bluegrass Music

109 S. Allen Street open mon. & fri. 9 to 9 tue. thru sat. 9 to 5:30

DI SISLA applications available + can be returned to 203-C HUB 863-003 dead line SEPT 11 AT

be licensed. State College and a description of the on the bicycle. New faculty hears address

By ANDY ISAACS Collegian Staff Writer

"A University the size of Penn State develops its own characteristics. It also develops its own characters, by the way." University Provost Russell E. Larson was addressing an orientation meeting for new faculty members Friday, in an effort to give

"I wish to emphasize that faculty assigned to teach will be evaluated principally for their teaching and advising," he said, suggesting that for many University faculty members, research need not be a primary concern.

But, he said, faculty members are expected to become involved in public service in their own fields of expertise.

Faculty also may take part-time positions as consultants for government and industry as long as they do so within guidelines published in the Academic Policy Statement and with the full knowledge of their department heads, he said.

While Penn State is organized conventionally into colleges and departments, Larson reminded his listeners that "many of society's problems do not fit neatly into this kind of organization." He suggested the new faculty look into centers and research programs that cut across college lines.

Larson said a full-time faculty member is expected to spend approximately 40 hours each week on academic work. Remarking, "we have no time clock," he noted that a survey last fall showed faculty averaged 50.6 hours per week on academic pursuits by their own choice.

His remark drew a chuckle from the audience. Last fall the Pennsylvania General Assembly demanded to know the hours of full-time faculty members before appropriating funds to the University.

Larson also said Penn State's faulty tenure policy currently is under review. At present, he said, an instructor normally works for the University for a maximum of seven years before receiving tenure. Individual college deans may grant some time toward tenure here for time spent at other institutions, he Ernest L. Bergman, University Faculty Senate Chairman, told the new faculty members to "become involved" in local government. "You won't take money, but we can have a better place to live," he said.

Bergman called State College a "unique area" because "we have only four different sewer authorities."

"If you own a place," he continued, "you pay about six different taxes," including the occupation tax which "puts all professors in the same boat.'

"I understand that tax stood up in court," he said. "I'm sure it wasn't Judge Sirica that ruled on it.'

Bergman recommended tenants with apartment problems go to one of the local code enforcement agencies. "They will take care of you," he said. "That's the best thing working around here - besides the liquor

WEST HALLS RESIDENCE ASSOCIATION Fall Term 1973

Movie List:

Sept. 13-16, 1973 . . . . . . . . . Sex Madness Sept. 20-23 . . . . . . . . . Slaughterhouse Five Sept. 27-30 . . . . . Frenzy Oct. 11-14..... Mary, Queen of Scots Oct. 18-21 . . . . . . . . . . . The Graduate Second Erotic Festival Halloween Party (Oct. 31) Nov. 1-4 . . . . . . . . . The Last Picture Show Nov. 8-11 . . . . . Five Easy Pieces Nov. 15-18 . . . . . . . . . A Şeparate Peace

WINTER TERM (until Christmas break)

Dec. 10-13 . . . . . Soldier Blue

Coming Movies for the rest of Winter: Cabaret Dr. Zhivago and others.

Nittany Grotto Meeting

7:30 Wednesdáy, Sept. 12 273 Willard Slide Show

Phyrst

Mon. Morning Song Tues. Scotch nite plus old movies

Wed. Buffalo Chip-Kickers

Thurs. Shepherd plus Tequila nite

Fri. Terry Beard

Sat. Phyrst Phamily

To State College's answer The Tom Cat to the Neighborhood Bar you may use your master charge card & Gone With the Wind bankamericard