Cambodians secure city

KOMPONG CHAM — The governor and military commander of this provincial capital, confident his forces had all but secured the city, yesterday said government troops would begin clearing Communist-led insurgents from the outer districts. Maj. Gen. Sar Hor told newsmen that insurgents still control sections of the city's university, the road to the airport and several key points in the western suburbs.

'But in the city there are only isolated enemy elements left," the general said.

Only sporadic mortar and small-arms fire could be heard in Kompong Chamlyesterday, but the devastation of the weeklong battle for Cambodia's third largest city were widely Sar Hor said the government suffered 5,000 civilian and military wounded and 1,000 military and civilian dead. He said 20,000 to 30,000 residents were led off by the insurgents, whose casualties he estimated at 2,000 killed or wounded.

Corruption inquiry resumes

BALTIMORE, Md. - A special federal grand jury yesterday resumed its investigation of alleged political corruption in Maryland. The panel met amid unprecedented security restrictions enforced by more than two dozen federal

Because Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been implicated in the allegations of kickbacks and conspiracy under investigation by the grand jury, the precautions led to speculation that the panel was entering the Agnew phase of its

But in Washington, a spokesman for the Justice Department said it was not true.

The jurors were not receiving information relating to Agnew, said the spokesman, John W. Hushen. He said the security was "just an outgrowth of a lot of things—the weak security of the Watergate grand jury and the huge number of newsmen milling around there (the federal courthouse) in Agnew has categorically denied all allegations against him.

UAW contract talks resume

DETROIT - With the strike deadline only one day away, the United Auto Workers yesterday said Chrysler Corp. had not made a new economic proposal but added "it better

The union has called Chrysler's initial three per cent wage increase offer "a mockery" and said a second proposal is essential to avoiding a strike by the firm's 127,500 UAWrepresented workers in the United States and Canada.

The union's major economic demands include an unspecified wage hike, improvements in the cost-of-living formula, parity pay for Canadian workers and retirement with a pension of $650 after 30 years of service, regardless of age. Noneconomic demands include one that workers be allowed to turn down overtime work, now required.

FTC probes bubble bath

WASHINGTON - The Federal trade Commission, in response to persistent complaints of skin irritation and infections among children, has launched a nationwide investigation of bubble bath.

The FTC investigation, initiated earlier this month, represents a resurgence of concern over a problem originally tackled by the Food and Drug Administration three years ago.

Colloquy panel ponders futures

Collegian Staff Writer

The art of building futures and some of the futures faces mankind were discussed by four science brought up the question of fiction writers last night as the second event in this week's Colloquy program. Gordon Dickson, Philip Klass, Jerry Pournelle and Roger Zelazny spoke on how science fiction writers extrapolate on historical trends to, in Klass' words, 'grapple with the world that is being born."

Every generation feels as if they're in an era of change, Dickson explained, but, in fact, there are very few explosive changes, and there are definite trends which can be seen.

Zelazny developed the idea by talking about two myths that run through science fiction: what he described as the Frankenstein-Pygmallion concept.

The tension between these two ideas-the creation of man that brings terror and the creation of man that bringsjoy-provides part of the attraction of science fiction, as B.F. Skinner. · Zelazny described man as a associate professor of English who resilient creature, however, writes science fiction under and said, "We won't be run the pen name William Tenn, through mazes that easily." "We're going to see explosions," Dickson added, what makes science fiction saying that advances in laser technology will make the transistor look "silly."

He stressed, however, that the revolution is going to be in added.

the world, and not in human nature.

Pournelle pointed out all literature deals with describing man's nature, and science fiction provides a different perspective to this question.

"We examine the potential of man, what lies outside the maps of the known," Klass

Suburban zoning condemned

HARRISBURG — Gov. Shapp yesterday issued a strong condemnation of so-called suburban snob zoning which, he said, serves only to "perpetuate the prerogatives of the wealthy."

The governor told a special land use policy conference here: "In fact, at present, because of inflated prices, most of our working and middle class citizens—our steelworkers, Pournelle felt that such a engineers, white collar workers, truck drivers and othersand spoke out against have no opportunity to live in areas in which they desire to behavioral psychologists such rent or buy."
