Cunningham returns to 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billy Cunningham, who two years ago jumped from the National Basketball Association's Philadelphia 76ers to the American Basketball Association's Carolina Cougars, completed the cycle yesterday. He leaped back to the 76ers.

The 31-year-old Cunningham reported at 10 a.m. for a bus trip to Binghamton, N.Y., and an exhibition game with the New York Mets. "I don't know what'll happen from here," said Cunningham, who has been in enough courts of law in the past few years to rate a page in the American Bar Association Journal.

Cunningham jumped the 76ers for the Cougars after seven years in Philadelphia. An all-star with a 21.3-point scoring average in the NBA, he became an all-star in the ABA. The way things stand now in the involved legal contest for Cunningham's services, there is a 76er suit against St. Louis pending in New York State Supreme Court, and a St. Louis suit against Cunningham in Federal District Court, Greensboro, N.C.

Cunningham had little to say before boarding the 76ers' bus to Binghamton. He's under orders from his lawyers not to talk about the case. "All I can say is that my counsel feels I'm legally bound to the 76ers," Cunningham said.

Louis had been contemplated. "We don't believe Billy has any agreement or commitment to play in St. Louis," Rubenstein said.

The St. Louis Spirits don't agree and probably will seek an injunction to stop Cunningham from playing with the 76ers. Don Schupak, a co-owner of the St. Louis franchise, said, "Every day he's not in my camp is going to cost him $1,400. In addition, he's being notified he'll be fined $500 a day for every day he's in Philadelphia's camp."

According to ABA files in New York, Cunningham was earning $292,500 a year as a Cougar. What Cunningham has now is a 76er contract, signed four years ago. Philadelphia claims this agreement precludes an option year in the Carolina contract.

The way things stand now in the involved legal contest for Cunningham's services, there is a 76er suit against St. Louis pending in New York State Supreme Court, and a St. Louis suit against Cunningham in Federal District Court, Greensboro, N.C.

Cunningham had little to say before boarding the 76ers' bus to Binghamton. He's under orders from his lawyers not to talk about the case.
