In recent months a movement has been growing in the OAS to lift joint economic sanctions against Cuba and to invite the government of Premier Fidel Castro to attend the special foreign ministers' meeting in Argentina in mid-March. Kissinger has promised to attend the meeting.

President Ford, in his first press conference after assuming office, indicated that the United States was prepared to soften its hostile attitude toward Cuba and go along with, but not lead, a movement to restore economic and political relationships with Havana.

Kissinger, at a luncheon which he gave for Latin American foreign ministers at the Center for Inter-American Relations, never mentioned Cuba directly by based his support on the testimony of Raymond Monahan, a teacher of TM and counsellor at the Philadelphia Psychiatric Monahan's testimony stated there is a large body of scientific data which suggests TM is an alternative to drug abuse. It further stated that TM appears to operate by providing deep rest which eliminates stress from the nervous system, and that regular meditation decreases anxiety and improves social behavior.

Masover, said that about 10 to 20 thousand people per month learn TM in the U.S. and about 650,000 people throughout the world practice it.

There are about 400 members at the local chapter, Masover said, with about 90 per cent college students.
"It's simple to learn how to do," Masover said, "and if you stop for a while, you can still pick it up. Transcendental Meditation is a mental technique, not religion, not philosophy. It doesn't require special positions or special abilities."

While it may be simple to learn, Masover said teaching TM requires a very exact technique, which he learned at the Maharishi International University in Fairfield, Iowa Masover said even though International Meditation Society is a non-profit organization, it must charge a fee for the meditation instruction to pay for materials, salaries and communication expenses. The prices are $65 for college students, $125 for adults, $55 for high school students, and $45 for junior high students. There is a family fee of $200.
