

Shapp predicts coal pact

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — While he anticipates no trouble and predicts a coal settlement is "pretty close," Gov. Milton Shapp yesterday said the National Guard would be called up if violence occurs in Pennsylvania during a coal strike.

Shapp, leaving Saturday for a three-week vacation in China, told newsmen Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline "will have full authority to handle all matters concerning coal."

"If there is a prolonged coal strike we'd have problems at mines where there might be violence. However, it is my understanding the miners and operators are pretty close to an agreement," he said.

"The talks are going well in Washington today, but there will still be a stoppage, maybe five to eight days, to get the contract in writing and get it approved out in the field."

Shapp, troubled with a painful kidney stone during his successful re-election campaign, said he isn't going to China with his wife, Muriel, to have acupuncture treatment.

"I've been needled enough by the Republicans," joked Shapp, a 62-year-old millionaire Democrat re-elected two days ago.

The Shapps return Dec. 2. Shapp, called his 305,000-vote victory over Republican Drew Lewis "a mandate from the people" and "a vote of confidence in the Democratic party and my administration."

This week's exhibits

Museum of Art

"Living American Artists and the Figure" continues in Galleries A and C. William D. Davis, assistant director of the museum, has selected nearly 100 oils, watercolors, prints, drawings and sculptures which concentrate on American figure work in the last decade.

An exhibit of work by major twentieth-century potters is showing in Gallery B. Master potters represented include Hans Coper, Wilhelm Kage, Bernard Leach and Lucie Rie.

The Museum is open every day except Monday from noon to 5 p.m. Tours are scheduled at 1:30 p.m. Thursdays.

Chambers Gallery

Dan Fitch is showing his paintings, drawings and constructions through Nov. 15.

Kern Graduate Center

Shirley Sturtz, a State College artist, will be showing watercolors and drawings in the Commons Gallery starting Sunday. She has taught art for Penn State's continuing education program.

Harry Everhart, another local artist, will be exhibiting watercolors and oil landscapes.

Ceramics by Richard Johnstonbaugh are on display in the show cases through November.

Black Cultural Center

An exhibit on "The Black Presence in the Era of the American Revolution, 1770-1800" will be showing at the Black cultural center until December. The exhibit, sponsored by the Smithsonian Institute, was put together by the National Portrait Gallery.

Zoller Gallery

A mixed-media showing of surrealist works is on exhibit to help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the surrealist movement. The show continues until Nov. 23.

Pattee Library

The main lobby of the library features an exhibit of papers, documents, etchings and pictures relating to Martin Van Buren. The exhibit comes from a Penn State study of the former president being conducted by Walter Ferree of Ogontz Campus.

A showing of mixed-media work by Susan Bell Flaherty, an undergraduate in liberal arts, will begin Tuesday. It is called "Odd Occurrences."

The circulation lobby features an exhibit of recent drawings by Nigel, a ceramics major, called "Maps."

The Rare Books Room is continuing its exhibit devoted to surrealism, which has been scheduled to coincide with the University conference on the art movement.
