

Chaplin's 'The Kid' to show

Charlie Chaplin's first full length film "The Kid" will be shown at 8:30 Wednesday in the University Auditorium. The film stars Chaplin playing his tramp character and Jackie Coogan as "The Kid." Coogan, who was six years old when the movie was made, became an instant favorite of the American public with his huge eyes and lattered cap. In his film "Jules and Jim," French director Francois Truffaut paid tribute to "The Kid" when Jeanne Moreau dressed up to resemble Coogan in the 1921 film. "The Kid" follows the adventures of the tramp and his little adopted waif Edna Purviance, a frequent co-star in Chaplin's films, has a role in "The Kid." She also appears in "The Idle Class," a short Chaplin film which also will be shown on Wednesday. It is a lampoon of the country club set in which Chaplin plays a dual role. The familiar tramp and a rich alcoholic dandy. Tickets for the films go on sale at 7:30 p.m. at the door.

Networks 'harassed' by suit?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The major television networks hope to persuade a federal judge today that a 1972 Justice Department antitrust suit should be thrown out on grounds it was filed solely to harass them for news broadcasts the Nixon White House did not like. Lawyers for ABC, CBS, and NBC say they can prove their claim if they can gain access to Richard M. Nixon's presidential tapes and documents. The suit is believed to have been mentioned in at least one tape dated April 29, 1972, according to sources close to the case. In a hearing before U.S. District Judge Robert J. Kelleher in Los Angeles, network lawyers plan to argue the suit should be dismissed for either of two reasons — because the Justice Department has failed to produce evidence to which they are entitled, or because their charge has not been disproved. The Justice Department denies its suit was "improperly motivated" and says it has not willfully withheld anything. It says "hundreds of man-hours" were spent searching for department documents the network lawyers sought. The department said it is unable to produce the White House materials, which have been virtually impounded until a Washington judge rules on who owns them, where they are to be stored, and what may be used in trials. One group which still has access to much of the Nixon White House material is the Watergate prosecutor's staff. In a memorandum filed with the Los Angeles court last Thursday, Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. said his office had investigated and found no evidence of "improper motivation" in the filing of the suit against the networks. The suit, filed on April 14, 1972, charged that the networks monopolized prime time with entertainment shows which they themselves produced or in which they had a financial interest. This practice, the department said, restrained competition in violation of federal antitrust laws. If Kelleher refuses to throw out the suit, he could suggest that the networks get around their lack of access to the White House tapes and documents by issuing a subpoena for Nixon. He also might suggest that the networks join other litigants in trying to persuade U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey in Washington to void the tape ownership agreement between Nixon and the Ford administration. Network lawyers claim the material they seek will prove a conspiracy between the White House and the Justice Department. They argue that the antitrust suit had been proposed in vain by Justice Department staff lawyers for years, but was filed by then Attorney General Richard Kleindienst at a time when a Senate committee was asking whether the White House pressured the Justice Department to go easy in an antitrust suit against ITT. The networks contend that the suit against them gave the department an ideal opportunity to appear tough in enforcing antitrust laws. They also say the suit was initially approved by Kleindienst's predecessor, John N. Mitchell, at a time of great hostility between the networks and the White House.

REMODELING SALE

The Hobbit

118 S. Pugh St.

OAS headquarters damaged by bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bomb explosion damaged the Organization of American States headquarters, and a group which identified itself as anti-Castro said it set off the blast. There were no injuries in the Saturday night explosion, police said.

An FBI spokesman said this is the first time the bureau heard of the group. The blast apparently was caused by a device placed inside a telephone booth in the "Hall of Flags" on the second floor of the building. The explosion coincided with the meeting of OAS foreign ministers in Quito, Ecuador, where a debate is scheduled on whether to relax 10-year-old sanctions against Cuba. In the telephone call to The AP six hours after the explosion, a man who refused to identify himself said: "We consider all Latin American countries that recognize the Communist regime of Cuba as a true representative of Cuba as the enemy of the Cuban people. All Latin American countries that recognize Castro are our enemies." Seven Latin American countries have recognized the government of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro: Mexico, Argentina, Peru, Trinidad and Tobago, Barbados, Jamaica and Guyana. Guyana is not a member of the OAS. Shortly after the 8:10 p.m. blast, a caller to the Washington Star-News asked if the explosion had become known and then warned that another bomb was going to go off. There was no second explosion. An OAS spokesman said the explosion, which was near the office of OAS Secretary General Galo Plaza, broke windows in the two-story marbled building and tore a hole in the ceiling. The FBI spokesman said it was told damage was about $100,000. The spokesman said the bureau's laboratory was still working to identify the type of device used. The building, a tourist attraction, had been open to the public earlier in the day and closed at 4 p.m. The OAS spokesman said he knew of no threats in connection with the bombing. Most OAS officials, including Plaza, were in Quito for the meeting.

The Pledges and Brothers of ΘΔΧ are selling light bulbs for Charity — proceeds will go to the family of a Multiple Sclerosis victim.

Calley begins new lifestyle

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — In his first real taste of freedom since he was charged in the My Lai massacre more than five years ago, William L. Calley Jr. has begun a new lifestyle in the town where "no one considers him unusual." Jobless but smiling, Calley happily shook hands with residents of this Army town who lined the sidewalk outside the courthouse after a federal judge released him on bail Saturday. Saturday night was Calley's first evening in years knowing he will probably never again face confinement for the at least 22 murders he was convicted of committing in the South Vietnamese village of My Lai. He spent it dining out at a Columbus restaurant with his auburn-haired girl friend, Anne Moore.

Sunday the slight, balding former lieutenant attended church, according to his lawyer, Kenneth Henson. "He just wants to be left alone to live the life of an ordinary citizen," Henson said. Calley, his lawyers say, plans to get a job in Columbus and "sink into anonymity." They have counseled him not to talk to the news media until the Army's appeal of U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott's reversal of his conviction is over. Calley, 31, plans to settle in this town which adjoins Ft. Benning because "no one considers him unusual," Henson says. Its citizens, many of them military retirees, threw rallies to raise funds for his legal fees during Calley's lengthy court martial — one of the most controversial in U.S. military history.

Collegian notes

The Undergraduate Libraries has announced extended hours for the rest of the term. From Wednesday through Friday, the libraries will close at 2 a.m. Saturday hours have been extended until 10 p.m. The libraries will close at 2 a.m. Nov. 17 to 19. Branch Undergraduate Libraries will close at 5 p.m. Nov. 20 and reopen 9 a.m. Dec. 5. G. Kennedy, professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, will speak on "Ancient Rhetorics" 10:30 a.m. today in 124 Sparks. There will be a bridge game 6:45 tonight in the HUB Ballroom. Women's Liberation will meet 8 tonight in 220 Boucke. Eco-Action will meet 8:30 tonight in 307 Boucke. Pi Lambda Theta will hold a student teaching forum 7:30 tonight in 101 Kern. The Free University folk dancing class will hold a party 7:00 tonight at the Wesley Foundation. There will be no Orthodox Vespers Tuesday. FSHA 410 will present a "South African Indoor Picnic" 5:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Maple Room of Human Development. A "First Presidential Inaugural Dinner" will be held Thursday at the game time and place. For information or reservations, call 865-7441. George C. Wiedersum Jr., senior engineer of the energy conversion research section of Philadelphia Electric, will speak on "Air Pollution Control in the Utilities Industry" 2:20 p.m. Tuesday in 140 Fenske Lab.

Are you ANXIOUS, CONCERNED or WORRIED about STUDENT TEACHING in the WINTER?

Then attend the STUDENT TEACHING FORUM

A "no-fooling" informal give and take session with students who recently completed their student teaching.

Monday 101 Kern Bldg. 7:30 p.m. - ?

November 11, 1974

Free Refreshments

Sponsored by Pi Lambda Theta

USG can . . .

SAVE YOU TIME and MONEY

END OF THE TERM CHARTERED COACH

NON-STOP EXPRESS

On Continental Trailways

TO PITTSBURGH Bus will begin loading at 5:45 P.M. this Friday in front of the HUB, and will depart promptly at 6:00 p.m. Stops at Miracle Mile Shopping Center in Monroeville, and downtown at the Trailways Station. Arrival approx. 9:00 p.m. Bus station price — $8.60 (OUR PRICE — $7.00)

TO PHILADELPHIA Bus will begin loading at 6:15 P.M. this Friday in front of the HUB, and will depart promptly at 6:30 P.M. Stops at King of Prussia Shopping Center, and downtown at the Trailways Station. Arrival approx. 9:45. Bus station price — $10.00 (OUR PRICE — $8.00)

Tickets now at the HUB Desk

Quantities are limited, so hurry!

A service of the Undergraduate Student Government.

UNIVERSITY CALENDAR

Monday, November 11

SEMINARS

Inter-Science, 4 p.m., Room 333 Whitmore. Mary Ann Williams, University of California, Berkeley, on "Essential Fatty Acids and Prostaglandins."

Entomology, 4 p.m., Room 204 Patterson. Dr. Jim V. Richerson on "The Sexual Behavior of the Gypsy Moth" (film).

Biochemistry, 11:10 a.m., Room 101 Althouse. Dr. Robert C. Krueger, University of Cincinnati Medical Center, on "Studies on a Compact Type of Mammalian Chromatin."

Genetics, 4 p.m., Room 111 Tyson. Dr. Sally Dachtler, biology, on "Reverse Transcriptase: A Review."

MEETING

OTIS, 6:30 p.m., Room 203 HUB.

EXHIBITS

Museum of Art — Living American Artists and the Figure, Galleries A and C. Twentieth Century Pottery, Gallery B.

Zoller Gallery — Fiftieth Anniversary of the Surrealistic Manifesto, paintings and other art objects. Graduate Show.

Rare Books Room, Pattee Library — Rare books, manuscripts, letters, journals related to Surrealist Movement.

Cultural Center, Walnut Building — "The Black Presence in the Era of the American Revolution, 1770-1800," a Smithsonian Traveling Exhibit.

Kern Gallery — Shirley Sturtz, watercolors, drawings.

The Corner Lounge

HARVEY WALLBANGER NIGHT

EVERY MONDAY

RECYCLE THIS PAPER

The Pennsylvania State University hereby gives public notice that its Board of Trustees will hold a regular meeting which is open to the public on Friday, November 15, 1974 at 2:00 p.m. in Room 403, J. O. Keller Building, University Park, Pa.

Apartments still available for winter rental

KEYSTONE TOWERS

238-1771