Ethiopia sends more troops

The Ethiopian government poured thousands of troop reinforcements into action vesterday against Eritrean rebels around Asmara. The exodus of foreign nationals from the beleaguered city picked up speed.

The fighting moved away from Asmara, where the Ethiopian government declared peace restored, into scrubland north of the provincial capital, where the rebels are entrenched. Military sources said about 2,000 troops were airlifted into Asmara, raising the garrison strength to about 19,000. A offered Ethiopia a truce in its 13-year war for independence but warned the fighting would escalate unless the military regime agrees to its conditions at a peace conference.

Spokesman Muhammed Idris told a news conference estimated guerrillas were receiving stepped-up arms aid from Arab countries, particularly Libya, and were reaching the point where they would be able to out-gun Ethiopia's 15,000-man army.

Diplomats in Asmara denied that rebels had cut a road from the city to its airport, blocking the evacuation of foreigners. They said the airlift, begun Tuesday with the exodus of foréigners, proceeding smoothly.
