PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell belted his 361st major league homer, tying Joe DiMaggio's career total, to provide two key insurance runs in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers last night.

What was Stargell's immediate reaction to the milestone, which ties him with DiMaggio for 24th place among all hitters. 'Well,' said Stargell, who also singled in the run that broke a 1-1 tie, "I know I've got two games tomorrow night and that milestones aren't going to be much help. "Milestones are to be enjoyed once your career is over, but when you're playing you just have to grind it out."

The victory moved first-place Pittsburgh six games ahead of the idle Phillies in the National League East while the Dodgers fell 10 games behind Cincinnati in the NL West. Stargell's eighth inning homer came off reliever Mike Marshall, and it was crucial because it gave Pittsburgh a 4-1 lead and took away opportunities for Los Angeles to sacrifice in the Jim Wynn opened the ninth with a walk and Steve Garvey singled him to second, and that's when Dave Giusti was summoned to relieve Pirate starter Jerry Reuss.

Giusti retired Ron Cey and John Hale on pop fouls, and with Tom Paciorek's fly to right center sandwiched between, the Pirates had their 10th win in 13 games.

Pittsburgh scored its first run in the third when Manny

Sanguillen and Frank Taveras singled and Rennie Stennett

Steve Garvey, his 11th of the year.
Stargell's homer was the 361st of his career, tying him with Joe DiMaggio for 24th place on the all-time major league list. It was also the 75th homer of the season for the Pirates, who rank second in the National League behind Cincinnati's 76.

Marshall had allowed only six earned runs in 32 innings since returning from the disabled list, and he had a string of eight scoreless innings snapped.

The victory was the 73rd of his career for the 26-year-old Reuss. The only National League pitcher with more victories at a younger age is Cincinnati's 24-year-old Don Gullett, who Giusti came on with nobody out in the ninth after Reuss had walked Jimmy Wynn and Garvey had singled. Giusti got Ron Cey on a foul pop to Stargell, then pinch-hitter Bill Buckner flied to Oliver at the wall in right-center and John Hale popped

Penn State-Temple clash

Hey! no student tickets for Lions home game?

By JERRY SCHWARTZ Collegian Editor

PHILADELPHIA - It's going to cost $7.50 to see Penn State play Temple in football this year whether you're a alumnus, a fan or a student.

That's $5.50 more than students would have had to pay if the game was played at University Park, Nov. 15, as originally scheduled. Penn State and Temple officially announced Wednesday that the game will be played 8 p.m. Sept. 6 at Franklin Field in Philadelphia.

Officials said the Bicentennial, the chance to build up Eastern football, and Penn State's 28,000 alumni in the Philadelphia area were reasons for the switch. But the dollar sign kept surfacing at a press conference Wednesday.

Penn State Athletic Director Ed Czekaj said although Penn State will host the game, it will be played at a neutral site. Czekaj said it is customary to charge one price at games played at neutral fields.

Czekaj also said Temple objected to keeping student ticket prices for the game, because "if 20 or 30,000 students came down here at $2 apiece, it would bring down gate receipts.'

Ernie Casale, Temple athletic director, agreed that Temple wanted to charge one price. Casale said when Penn State plays at Temple in future years, Temple students "may have to pay full price, too. But I'm not promising anything. You can't win no matter what you

Penn State will also make money by dropping the annual Band Day. Traditionally, bands from all over the state have been invited to a football game at the end of the season to play at half time. Czekaj said 7,000 free Paterno denied that the game was moved up to give his team more practice before Penn State plays Ohio State Sept. 20, although he said Penn State and Temple will "both have better teams after the game.

Asked how it feels to face tickets are usually given Penn State in the first game was to be the Temple game this year.

Both athletic directors said all games in the six year series between the two schools may be played in Philadelphia if this year's game makes money. Other games in the series may be played in Philadelphia's Veteran Stadium.

> Bud Meredith, assistant business manager in Penn State's athletic department, said the university will mail letters to all season ticket holders in the next week. They will be given the choice of asking for a refund, adding $5.50 for a ticket to the Temple game, or donating the $2 to the athletic department's Levi Lamb fund.

Casale said, "We're hoping for a sellout. We had more interest since this came out then at any time I hanging over his head felt, now I know." "He thinks HIS neck is in guillotine. I've got a stiletto waiting for me, Paterno shot back.

Hardin said his team is looking forward to playing Penn State, comparing the game with Army-Navy games he coached when he piloted Navy.

"Some people say we have nothing to lose in this game and everything to gain. Well, if we get beat 60-0, we've got a lot to lose. I think our program is at a point where it could hurt us very badly, Hardin said.

Hardin said that he's optimistic for the next year.

"Our biggest problem, I think, is depth. If we're fortunate and stay away from injuries. I think we can hang Hardin said junior middle guard Joe Klecko is the best player in the country at his position." He said Pat Carey, a sophomore transfer from University of Pittsburgh, will start at quarterback, replacing Steve Joachim.

Paterno said he was confident in his defense, but wasn't so sure about the of-

"We lost so many people in the offensive skilled positions that I don't know how well we'll play offensively," Paterno said.

Yesterday's announcement marked the end of a long feud between Penn State and Temple that began when the series was scheduled. At that time, Paterno said the person who arranged the series "must have been drunk." Paterno said Wednesday, "I was dead set against the series. I really thought it was a bad mistake. I thought we would have everything to lose and nothing to gain. "It's a big game now, and it ought to be played like a big game," Paterno said.

Carew, Brock ruin A's-Yanks, Reds-Dodgers clambake...Owls

jump up into big-time football

Next Tuesday's baseball game supposedly pits the representation. Another obvious one is Greg Luzenski of the American League All-Stars against the National League All-Philadelphia Phillies. Stars, but according to the starting line-ups the A's-Yanks are going to battle the Reds-Dodgers.

The AL starting roster includes four Oakland A's and three N.Y. Yankees, while the NL's has four Cincinnati Reds and three L.A. Dodgers. The only outsiders, except maybe for the pitchers, in this four-team clambake will be second sacker Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins and outfielder Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Johnny Bench will be the NL's starting catcher for the eighth year in a row. Other Reds are Dave Conception at short, Joe Morgan at second and Pete Rose in the Outfield. Last year's All-E ... MVP Steve Garvey is back at first joined by fellow Dodger returnees Ron Cey at third and Jim Wynn in the out-

All sixteen starters are good players, but there seems to be some strange on sisions. For one thing, two division leaders, the Boston Red Sox and the Pittsburgh Pirates, have no from the fans. There's something beautifully ludicrous about seeing bench warmers and injured players leading in their early returns and catchers at first, third-basemen in the outfield, etc., etc. in their final tallies.

What's all the excitement about Penn State changing the date and site of its game with Temple. Sure Owl's Coach Wayne Hardin said, last spring, there was no way he was going to let Paterno pull a fast one, but who believed he could hold out. When the Penn States, Michigans and Alabamas say jump, the Chattanoogas, Temples and Miamis of Ohio ask how high, when and whe:

With all the built-in protections Major League owners have added over the last few decades to stop dynasties-the inverted draft, allowing last place teams first pick and interleague trading-baseball still changes very slowly

Once again the four teams that have dominated the titles in the seventies are on or near the top. The A's, Pirates and Reds are first in their respective divisions and the Orioles are fourth, a few games out, in their division. Every year in this decade those four teams have had three teams in the playoffs. They've chalked up 15 division crowns, 10 of the 12 pennants and all five World Series. Boston and New York stand a good chance of knocking off Baltimore this season, but it'll take an upset to keep any of the other three from making it. Another tradition that won't change, is the way the NL East gets no respect. The sports writers continually call the NL West the toughest division in baseball, and the fans once again went along with them by voting mostly western players onto the All-Star game.

This, despite the fact the two World Series Championships in the senior circuit since '68 were both won by eastern teams. And the NL East squads have a commanding lead in inter-
