Italians debate keep his 60-day-old minority Christian Democratic government going despite the as govt. falters

ROME (UPI) — Italy's government this weekend. Communists warned against U.S. meddling in national sonal appeal to the people of elections and said Italy Milan to avoid escalating should be free of "American blackmail." In Milan, gun-men ambushed and killed a neo-Fascist official.

The assassination of a provincial official of the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement and a new plunge of the lira lent urgency to a parliamentary debate ex-

Pope Paul VI sent a personal appeal to the people of political violence.

In what he described as a "sorrowful exhortation." he urged the Milanese to recognize the "gravity of happenings that manifest passions unworthy of civil government going despite the withdrawal of vital indirect Socialist party support.

Politicians predicted the attempt would end in failure and Moro would have to resign Friday, paving the way for national elections one year early on June 20.

Giancarlo Pajetta, member of the directorate of the largest Communist party in the West, said in the debate yesterday that the Communists would help Moro resolve the nation's economic problems "but not under the counter.'

"Do you hope for American intervention in the elections?" Pajetta asked the Chamber of Deputies speech. "We think Europe needs a united and stable Italy, capable of not depending on American blackmail."

With Italy beset by 17 per cent inflation, seven per cent unemployment, violence and scandals, the Communists were expected to gain heavily at the polls and demand their first cabinet seats since 1947.

Answering Moro's pledge that the Christian Democrats would keep the banner of freedom flying, Pajetta said:

"No one ever asked the Christian Democrats to forget their identity or to haul down their banner. It is up to them not to throw it into the mud."
