Marchers jeered

CHICAGO (UPI) — Helmeted police and a court order did not protect 150 blacks and whites from 10,000 angry, jeering whites who hurled bricks and bottles at their march for open housing in racially changing Marquette Park.

The march, organized by the Martin Luther King Jr. movement, lasted little more than an hour Saturday, but long enough to send 28 persons to hospital emergency rooms and 63 persons to police headquarters, charged variously with disorderly conduct, aggravated battery and mob action.

The injured, including marchers, police and reporters, mostly suffered minor cuts and bruises from thrown objects. Three persons still were hospitalized yesterday. They were in fair condition.

The marchers, who are planning another demonstration for Aug. 14, had about 200 policemen, including mounted patrols, and an entire fire department division of 200 to protect them. U.S. District Court Judge John F. Grady had overruled the city and allowed the demonstration, providing the marchers numbered fewer than 250.

Chicago authorities had refused to issue the permit because they feared trouble from the American Nazis who have their National Socialist Party headquarters in the working class area of the city's Southwest Side.

Strike halt discussed

PITTSBURGH (AP)—U.S. Labor Secretary W.J. Usery met yesterday with company and union officials in an effort to halt a nationwide strike by more than 40,000 workers against Westinghouse Electric Corp.

"We're on strike, we got pickets up everywhere, everything is calm," assessed a spokesman for the combined bargaining council of the three unions involved.

At midnight, the 22,000 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) and the 8,500-member United Electrical Workers union (UE) left their jobs after working one week under a contract extension.

They joined about 15,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) who had been on strike ever since an old contract expired July 11.

"It is my hope that in the interest of the parties, the public and the nation that the negotiators will make every possible effort to avoid what certainly could be a serious, costly work stoppage," Usery said.

Although the full effects of the strike won't be felt until after the weekend, a company spokesman said it would involve more than half of Westinghouse's 165 manufacturing plants and service facilities.
