

Vogel adjusts to life as minor leaguer

By CHET WADE
Collegian Sports Writer

For Greg Vogel, former Penn State second baseman now toiling on the bottom rung of the minor league baseball ladder, life has changed. In college there were several days between games to celebrate the wins and anguish over the losses. But now the next game is as far away as tomorrow and the last game is forgotten as soon as it is over.

Vogel, elected to the National Collegiate Athletic Association All-Star team this year, was drafted by the Minnesota Twins not long after he graduated in the spring. The Twins assigned him to their Class A team in Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin to begin his major league apprenticeship.

Playing in college, Vogel said he would spend the few days between games remembering what he did in the last game or thinking about what the next game would be like. But with the minor league Twins, he said he literally plays everyday, with no days off except for rainouts. And when that occurs, the game is usually made up the following day as part of a doubleheader. Vogel said he has played 38 games in the 37 days he has been with the team.

He said he found the effects of playing everyday has on his mind was the biggest adjustment he had to make. "Baseball is just as fun as it always been," Vogel said. "But yesterday seems so far away."

"For example, last night I was zero for four. I had a couple of RBI's but I was still zero for four. But playing everyday, it just seems so far away. That's the biggest change."

And he also found out that the life of a minor leaguer is by no means glamorous. After the last game of a series in a town, there is no chartered jet standing at the loading gate ready to whisk the team to its destination. Instead, the players spend the night cramped on a bus cruising to another Mid-western town as small and as quiet as the last one or the next one.

Vogel said the long bus rides extract their toll from the players. He said that many times the players don't want to even go out on the field but have to because they are being paid to do it. "Fifty per cent of the games, you feel you don't want to play that night," he said.

"I expected a lot of things to be better when I came here. The travel is really tough. Six, seven, eight hours on a bus trip. We got in at 3:30 this morning and we were supposed to play tonight. (The game was rained out.)"

"A lot of people think all he (a ball player) does is play baseball. This may seem ridiculous to somebody who works eight hours a day. But a six hour bus ride really takes a lot out of you."

Vogel also had to adjust to playing most of his games at night, under lights that have a hard time matching luminescence with the corner street light, much less the sun. He said it took him about two weeks to get adjusted to playing at night but it still makes batting more difficult.

"In this league, there are not many .300 hitters. The lights may have something to do with it," he said.

Wisconsin Rapids is just a stop, a short one Vogel hopes, on the trail to a major league career. He said he is willing to sacrifice some to achieve that goal but there are limitations. Vogel said he doesn't want to spend the next 10 or 15 years of his life bumming around the minor leagues and he has already set goals for himself.

"If I can't move up fast, if I can't move up to AA (the next highest level) next year, I may consider quitting and doing what I went to school for — coaching and teaching. At this point, baseball isn't the most important thing in my life."

The oldest player on Vogel's team is 29. Vogel said it is a rarity to have a player that old on a Class A team because Class A is so far away from the major leagues. Anyone who is that old and still in Class A is usually released or quits that old.

He said, "In Class A, 29 is ancient. You figure anyone who gets to be 23 or 24 is old because the major leagues are so far away."

But with all of the sacrifice and obstacles to overcome, Vogel isn't discouraged. He said he still feels he is enjoying himself.

Phils sweep from Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Jay Johnstone scored all the way from first base on Garry Maddox' single in the 11th inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 7-6 victory over the New York Mets in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader.

Johnstone singled with two out, and was attempting to steal second when Maddox hit a grounder through the shortstop hole vacated by Bud Harrelson who was covering the base. Johnstone turned on the speed and slid under center fielder Pepe Mangual's throw.

The winning pitcher was Gene Garber, 5-2, while Skip Lockwood, 6-6, was the loser. Mike Schmidt's two-run homer off Nino Espinosa lifted the Philadelphia Phillies to a 2-0 victory over New York and a doubleheader sweep of the Mets Sunday.

The Phillies took the opener 7-6 when Garry Maddox scored Jay Johnstone from first with an 11th-inning single.

Schmidt's 27th homer of the season, a drive into the Phillies bullpen in the sixth, inning of the nightcap, scored Larry Bowa, who had beaten out an infield hit.

Wayne Twitchell won his first decision of the year by out-pitching Espinosa, 0-2. The Mets had tied the score in the ninth inning of the opener when with two out, Mike Vail singled. Pinch-runner Leon Brown stole second, then John Milner cracked an RBI single off reliever Tug McGraw.

Greg Luzinski had hit his 16th home run and second grand slam of the season in the fifth inning to give Philadelphia a 6-4 lead.

Expos nip Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Montreal Expo pitcher Steve Rogers is 4-10 so far this season. But you wouldn't know it to watch him pitch.

"His record doesn't reflect how well he has pitched all season," said Expo Manager Karl Kuehl after his team took a 2-0 victory from the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday.

The win gave the Expos a 2-1 edge in the three-game series against Pittsburgh, the third series win this season for Montreal, with the worst record in baseball.

"There were times when we didn't make plays behind him. And there were times when he took the loss when a relief pitcher allowed base runners to score," continued Kuehl. "He pitches well all of quickly with three birdies on the front nine. He went in front to stay with four holes to go, then nailed down the triumph with a birdie 2 on the 70th hole.

Crenshaw, the tour's leading money winner this year, began the final round four strokes back. He moved to within one stroke of Allin with one stroke and winning the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Allin bolted out of the pack to capture the $40,000 first prize with a fine round of one-under-par 70 for a 72 hole score of 277 seven under regulation for the rain-punctuated tournament.

The former Brigham Young University star started the final round three strokes off the pace but made up ground quickly with three birdies on the front nine. He went in front to stay with four holes to go, then nailed down the triumph with a birdie 2 on the 70th hole.

Crenshaw, the tour's leading money winner this year, began the final round four strokes back. He moved to within one stroke of Allin with one stroke and winning the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Allin remained strong to boost his earnings for the year to $83,993. The Pleasant Valley Classic was his fifth victory on the circuit.

Elder, just one stroke behind McLendon after three rounds, soared to a three-over-par 74 and finished in a three-way tie for third at 279. Menne earned a share of the tie with a birdie on the last hole, finishing with a 72. Wadkins had a final round 69 for a 279.

Aaron reminds the public—final season

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Henry Aaron, the Milwaukee Brewers' home-run king, has confirmed that he will leave the team when his contract ends at the end of this season to return to Atlanta.

"I signed a two-year contract and nothing else," Aaron was quoted as saying in a copyrighted story this weekend in The Racine Journal Times. "The people here in Milwaukee will just have to realize that."

"What everyone doesn't realize is that my wife, my children and all of my friends are in Atlanta. At the end of the season, well, that's it. I'm going back home. I'm going to Atlanta."

The statement was Aaron's first public announcement that rumors of his departure from Milwaukee were true. He did not, however, confirm that he will accept a front office job with the Atlanta Braves whom he left to join the Brewers two years ago. John Alevizos, executive vice president and general manager of the Braves, said in late June that Aaron was in line to be a vice president for player development and public relations for the National League team in 1977.

The report from Atlanta said a formal announcement was not expected until Aaron's contractual obligations with the Brewers were completed.

The Brewers acquired Aaron, now 42, from Atlanta in a trade for outfielder Dave May in November, 1974. He played with the Braves in Milwaukee from 1954 to 1965, then went with the team to Atlanta where he stayed until the swap two years ago.

His career home run record now stands at 755.

Semi-pro Bucks nailed in opener

By VIC SELLERS
Collegian Sports Writer

Charlie Smith's short touchdown blast in overtime provided the Brooklyn Golden Knights with a 13-7 win over the Central Pa. White-Tail Bucks, in a semi-pro football game at Memorial Field, State College, last Saturday night.

Smith (no. 00), not to be confused with the Oakland Raider running back of the same name, scored on a 4th and goal at the one after 7:22 of the overtime period. The Knights controlled the ball the entire period while marching 84 yards for the winning score.

The Bucks scored first on a well-executed draw by Wayne Rockmore at 6:46 of the 1st period. His 26-yard scamper in to the end zone and subsequent Rich Skillings conversion held up till the 12:47 mark of the 2nd period.

The Knights tied the game when quarterback Tom Green rolled to his left from 8 yards out and bootlegged his way to the score. Charlie Waters' conversion tied the game and there was no more scoring till Smith's dramatic run in the overtime period.

The Bucks had two good chances to win the game in regulation time but couldn't capitalize on them.

Following an interference call on the Knight's Laverne Johnson against Penn State's Phil Flipse, the Bucks had a 1st and goal inside the ten with 6 seconds left in the 1st half. But fumbleitis struck and the opportunity was lost.

Then with 4:52 left in the 4th quarter, Skillings missed on what could have been a game-winning 36 yd. field goal. Jeff McCartney, defensive tackle for the Bucks and former Penn State player, saved his best for the end. On 1st and 3rd downs in the last series of plays he helped make two key stops, although it wasn't enough to prevent Smith's eventual TD run.

McCartney at 6'4", 265 lbs. is the biggest on the team. When asked why he gave up his football career at PSU he said he'd had it with books and studying and he just wanted to play football. He already has had a tryout with the N.Y. Giants and may be on their taxi-squad next season.

Other Penn State and area players who played well were Allen Potter, Phil Flipse, George Walker, and Darrell Rutter. Potter got off a 60 yd. punt while Rutter contributed a 32 yd. punt return.

The game was one marred by numerous turnovers, which can be expected for an opening game for both teams. Also as the winning touchdown was scored, a fight erupted between two players but was quickly broken up.

Allin's 70 wins Pleasant classic

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Brian Bud Allin shook off pressure in a race horse finish and posted his first PGA victory in two years yesterday edging Ben Crenshaw by one stroke and winning the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Allin bolted out of the pack to capture the $40,000 first prize with a fine round of one-under-par 70 for a 72 hole score of 277 seven under regulation for the rain-punctuated tournament.

The former Brigham Young University star started the final round three strokes off the pace but made up ground quickly with three birdies on the front nine. He went in front to stay with four holes to go, then nailed down the triumph with a birdie 2 on the 70th hole.

Crenshaw, the tour's leading money winner this year, began the final round four strokes back. He moved to within one stroke of Allin with one stroke and winning the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Allin remained strong to boost his earnings for the year to $83,993. The Pleasant Valley Classic was his fifth victory on the circuit.

Elder, just one stroke behind McLendon after three rounds, soared to a three-over-par 74 and finished in a three-way tie for third at 279. Menne earned a share of the tie with a birdie on the last hole, finishing with a 72. Wadkins had a final round 69 for a 279.

The tournament turned into a horse race after a warm sun came out in the wake of morning rain. After 63 holes, there was a five-way tie among Allin, third round leader Mac McLendon, Bob Menne and Bob Wynn. Tom Jenkins, Bruce Lietzke and Larry Wadkins were just one stroke back, followed by Crenshaw and Mark Hayes.

Allin remained strong to boost his earnings for the year to $83,993. The Pleasant Valley Classic was his fifth victory on the circuit.

Steelers trample Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Terry Bradshaw played for only half the game but it was enough to lead the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 24-14 victory over the New Orleans Saints in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday.

Scoreless in the first three quarters, the Saints won the battle of the reserves in the final quarter on two touchdown passes from backup quarterback Bobby Scott.

Steelers' cornerback Jim Allen, fighting like the rest of the reserves free agents and rookies for a spot on the roster, helped preserved the 10-point margin by picking off a Scott pass at the five-yard line and ended a late quarter drive that looked sure to score. Bradshaw hit 15 of 20 passes for 194 yards before he was replaced by Terry Hanratty and reserve quarterback John Madeya. Two of Bradshaw's passes were caught by wide receiver John Stallworth for scores.

Running back Franco Harris scored on a one-yard plunge before he was replaced by rookie Jack Deloplane, who was Pittsburgh's leading rusher with 83 yards and 11 carries. Bobby Douglass, the former Chicago Bears scrambler, opened the game at quarterback for the Saints but couldn't get the club moving. Scott took over and directed two scoring drives hitting tight end Ron Bullock on a five-yard pass and rookie wide receiver Tinker Owens with a 76-yard bomb. That pass put the ball on the Pittsburgh three and Rod McNeill took it over from there.

Chuck Muncie, the rookie All-American from California, gained 24 yards on eight carries. The first-round draft pick and Uniontown, Pa., native was the leading rusher for the Saints.
