Swine flu program begins Friday

First shots scheduled in 3 cities

ATLANTA (AP)—The nationwide swine flu immunization program gets under way Friday in three cities after more than a month's delay caused by vaccine production problems and demands by manufacturers for protection from potential lawsuits over side effects.

A national Center for Disease Control spokesman said yesterday that swine flu shots will be administered to senior citizens Friday in Pontiac, Mich., at a "health fair" in Indianapolis and by the city health department in Philadelphia.

He said the vaccine would be administered in other cities beginning Monday but that it would be up to state health authorities to determine which specific cities.

Merrell-National Laboratories of Cincinnati, the largest producer of the vaccine, began shipping 4.5 million doses to 21 states yesterday, the same day Parke-Davis of Detroit began shipments.

The CDC spokesman said he did not know how large the Parke-Davis shipment was. He said Merck, Sharpe and Dohme of West Point, Pa., shipped 1.5 million doses last week.

Those manufacturers and Wyeth Laboratories of Marietta, Pa., have agreed to provide 132 million doses of the vaccine, but the CDC spokesman said the agency is negotiating for more.

The companies have agreed to provide 117 million doses by Dec. 1 and another 15 million doses by January. The flu season generally doesn't begin until December or January.

The mass immunization program was to have begun in July, but was held up by production problems and complex discussions between manufacturers and the government over liability.

The manufacturers were concerned with the possibility of lawsuits stemming from possible side effects of the vaccine. Congress hurriedly passed legislation making the government the party of first resort in such suits, which means that the government would field all legal action filed in connection with administration of the vaccine.

CDC spokesman Wendell Bradford said recently that public interest in the immunization program has not been high enough to generate concern that vaccine supplies will disappear too quickly. "I frankly don't believe we'll end up having to turn people away," he said.

In Washington yesterday the White House doctor said President Ford will get his swine flu shot sometime next month.

The nationwide immunization program was set in motion after an outbreak of swine flu at Ft. Dix, N.J., last January. One soldier died of the disease.

Fearing a recurrence of the 1918-19 flu pandemic which killed 20 million persons—500,000 of them Americans—officials recommended the current program, and Congress allocated $135 million for purchase and distribution of vaccine.

Ag college announces changes

The College of Agriculture will dissolve the Division of Plant Science and break the Animal Industry major into three separate majors this year, according to Robert E. Swope, the college's assistant dean for resident education.

Swope said the Division of Plant Science, which supervises several departments, will be dissolved because it isn't serving any useful function. The other change is the replacement of the Animal Industry major with three more specialized majors in Animal Production, Dairy Production and Poultry Management.

Swope said the departments formerly under the Division of Plant Science — Agronomy, Horticulture, Plant Pathology and the School of Forest Resources — will be monitored by a committee composed of one faculty member from each department. He said supervision by such a committee has worked effectively with the college's Environmental Resource Management major. He added that the change will not affect students in the majors.

The three new animal science majors will give students the opportunity to "follow up on their interests and get into more applied areas," according to Grant W. Sherritt, chairman of the advising program of the Animal Production major. He said the majors will be more attractive to some students who in the past would have chosen another university.

Sherritt said the Animal Production major can be initiated immediately. He said most of the students taking advantage of the program this year will be sophomores because they would not have taken many of the requirements under the previous program. He said he expects 30-40 students per year to major in Animal Production.

The Dairy Production major also will be available next term, according to program chairman Paul R. Shellenberger. Shellenberger said he expects about 80 students to eventually enroll in the major. He said some of them will come from other programs in the college, such as general agriculture.

A career in law—without law school.

What can you do with only a bachelor's degree? Now there is a way to bridge the gap between an undergraduate education and a challenging, responsible career. The Lawyer's Assistant is able to do work traditionally done by lawyers.

Three months of intensive training can give you the skills—the courses are taught by lawyers. You choose one of the seven courses offered—choose the city in which you want to work.

Since 1970, The Institute for Paralegal Training has placed more than 1600 graduates in law firms, banks, and corporations in over 75 cities.

If you are a senior of high academic standing and are interested in a career as a Lawyer's Assistant, we'd like to meet you.

Contact your placement office for an interview with our representative.
