

Jones gains revenge this year

NEW YORK (AP) — Randy Jones, the little left-hander who won 22 games for the San Diego Padres last season, was named winner of the National League's Cy Young Award yesterday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Jones, who narrowly lost last year's award — emblematic of pitching supremacy — to Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, drew 15 of the 24 first-place votes in balloting by a committee composed of two baseball writers from each of the 12 National League cities.

That easily outdistanced runner-up Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets, who drew seven first-place votes. Mets teammate Jon Matlack and Don Sutton of the Los Angeles Dodgers received one first-place vote apiece.

Jones, a 5-foot-11, 180-pounder currently recovering from off-season arm surgery which threatens his career, also received six second-place votes and three third-place votes in the election.

He was the only one mentioned on each ballot, collecting 96 points.

Koosman, a left-hander, had 69 1/2 points with Sutton third at 25 1/2.

Balloting by the BBWAA was on a points system with five for first place, three for second and one for third.

Left-hander Steve Carlton of the NL East champion Philadelphia Phillies received 11 points; Rawly Eastwick, reliever for the World Champion Cincinnati Reds got six points; south-paw Matlack got five, J.R. Richard of the Houston Astros had two points and Seaver got one point.

Four of the eight pitchers to receive points were left-handers.

Jones sprinted to 16 triumphs in his first 19 decisions but fell sharply after the All-Star break to finish at 22-14. Koosman charged at the end to boost his record to 21-10, his first 20-victory season. Sutton also finished with 21 triumphs in his first 20-victory season.

Jones' faltering second-half performance had been caused by trouble with a nerve in the biceps tendon of his left arm.

"I couldn't make a muscle," Jones recalled yesterday, reflecting on his 6-11 finish. "The doctor said the nerve had been fatigued to the point that it wasn't working. Everything I had worked for the last two years could have gone up in smoke.

"I thought my career was over."

When the season ended, "I went into the hospital and really got frightened when they shaved both my arms."

There was a possibility that tendons from his right arm would have to be transplanted to his left — a procedure similar to the one survived by the Dodgers' Tommy John.

Fortunately for Jones, that didn't prove necessary. "I was scared, but the operation went great. It took an hour and a half and it went great. The doctor said the arm is in great shape for the amount of use it's had."

That included 315 1-3 innings pitched for the fifth-place Padres with 25 complete games. Jones, in 40 games, struck out just 93 batters but walked only 50 and compiled the league's sixth-best earned run average: 2.74.

Good enough for the Cy Young.

"It was a feeling of great elation when I found out," he said.

Edged out last year by Tom Seaver, San Diego's Randy Jones yesterday was named winner of the 1976 Cy Young award.

Teenager holds his own

Dawkins silences critics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Critics accused the Philadelphia 76ers of robbing the cradle when they picked an 18-year-old Florida scholastic star on the first round of the 1975 National Basketball Association draft.

Darryl Dawkins has silenced them by maturing into the type of center the 76ers envisioned when they gambled by making him a hardship selection.

"Whenever people say I'm too young to play in this league, I want to go out and show them," said the 19-year-old, now in his second season.

Though the 6-foot-11 1/2 center sees only spot duty behind Caldwell Jones while the 76ers have compiled a 3-2 record, he's itching to play more.

"I'd like to see more playing time, but I don't know when I'm going to get it," said Dawkins, whose 240-pound bulk can clog up any lane in the league.

The only flaw that coach Gene Shue can find in the youngster's game comes on the other team's end of the court. "Defense is the only thing that's holding Darryl back," he said.

"What can you say about the guy?" asked teammate George McGinnis. "He's only 19-years-old. I think he's ready to play. If he gets the playing time, he could definitely be one of the top ones."

McGinnis, an early starter himself when he joined the Indiana Pacers of the ABA at the age of 20, said Dawkins influences the game just by being on the court.

"He can change the arc of other guys' shots just by being there," said McGinnis.

Julius Erving, the multi-millionaire known as Doctor J, also indicated that Dawkins is ready to display his savvy on the courts.

"When you're with Darryl, you almost forget he's only 19 years old. You think he's one of the veterans," he said.

The decision to take Dawkins from Maynard Evans High School in Orlando, Fla., to the NBA courts was made by assistant coach Jack McMahon.

He has stuck by his decision and says he'd even take Dawkins now over Kent Benson, the 6-foot-11 giant who helped Indiana win the NCAA basketball championship last season.

"Benson has already played three seasons of college ball. Darryl, technically, should be going into his sophomore year. But his true potential won't be known for years to come."

Maryland lineman gets AP nod

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — After defensive tackle Joe Campbell was named The Associated Press Lineman of the Week yesterday, he received a congratulatory handshake and a warning.

Both came from Gib Romaine, the defensive tackle coach for the University of Maryland's sixth-ranked football team.

"Coach congratulated me," said the senior from Wilmington, Del., "and then warned me not to let the award go to my head. He told me to work even harder because I'd be a marked man from now on."

Actually, the 6-foot-6, 254-pounder has been a marked man since being named on many preseason All-American teams, and the unbeaten Terps had played four games before Campbell lived up to the advance publicity.

In a 24-14 victory over Kentucky last Saturday, however, he turned in a sterling effort which earned him the weekly honor by The AP.

Campbell was in on 22 tackles, half of them initial hits, stopped three ball carriers for no gain, and sacked quarterback Derrick Ramsey for a 10-yard loss on the Kentucky one-yard line.

"It was one of the best games I've seen anyone play," said Jerry Claiborne, Maryland's head coach. "When you notice a player dominate a game while watching from the sidelines, you know it was a great effort."

Campbell is at a loss to explain his early season performance but concedes the publicity could have made his opponents play better, or even subconsciously affected his own efforts.

"Whatever it was," he said, "I was just another football player. Then the coaches took me aside, gave me a little pep talk, and put some things on the line."

Since then, Romaine said, "Joe has been playing the way he's capable of playing. If the publicity did bother him, it's not bothering him now. He's playing a bit reckless, and he's always around the ball."

"I can't look back now," said Campbell, a major in biological sciences. "A lot of things are riding on how I play from now on — having an undefeated season, and even the program itself at the university."

Bennett sent to Pacers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers announced yesterday they have traded forward Mel Bennett to the Indiana Pacers in exchange for the Pacers' number one National Basketball Association draft choice in 1980.

The 21-year-old Bennett played one year of collegiate basketball at the University of Pittsburgh before signing with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association. Bennett, 6-foot-7, played with the Squires averaging 12.1 points per game.

Stickwomen stop Lock Haven

LOCK HAVEN — An early offensive free-for-all quickly settled into a muddy battle of the defenses yesterday, with the Penn State field hockey defenders protecting a 2-1 victory over fifth-ranked Lock Haven.

Lock Haven, rated number five in the country after last year's November nationals, wasted no time in taking control of the contest on a Kathy Ogle score with one minute gone.

The goal came just after Penn State fullback Barb Stephan slipped on the poorly drained, rain-saturated field and knocked the movable goalcage out of its original position.

Several Penn Staters and coach Gillian Rattray said they were not sure the ball would have found the nets if the cage was in place.

"I think in the end it paid off for us because the team got so mad when they called it a score," Rattray said following the contest.

That payoff came just 1:45 later when right outside forward Becca Garwood poked a shot past Lock Haven goalie Pam Whitaker after a centering hit by left outside forward Sue Ward. Garwood's tally gives her the team-leading total of four goals on the year.

The two squads settled down in a 1-1 deadlock for the next 24 minutes until sophomore forward Charlene Morett found the cage on a penalty corner setup from Garwood and halfback Jody Field. Field took the initial pass from Garwood and shot into the pads of a pulling Whitaker. The goalie lost the clear when another Lock Haven defender tried to help get the ball out of the danger zone.

Morett pushed the loose ball past both Eglettes for her career record-tying 15th goal and third point-producer of the season.

The stage was set for the second half dramatics, and the Penn State defense proved it was well-versed for the ensuing performance.

The offense-defense struggle, which put fans on the edge of their seats for most of the 35 minutes, saw a three-on-one break thwarted by fullback Stephan and a two-on-one attempt broken up by goalie Lee Stang and fullback Sharon Duffy.

"I thought our defense was super. I loved it!" a tickled Stephan exclaimed after the win. "I felt more confidence in the defense today. We were containing their corner shots that they've been scoring goals from." Halfback Nancy Deal was largely responsible for stopping the deadly corner shots from the middle.

For Stang, that slim one-goal margin made her job a little tougher. "That is a lot of pressure," she admitted. "But, our defense was picking people up well and I kind of knew they weren't going to score."

Stang turned back six Eglette shots in the second half, bringing her game total to 15. The hosts boded 28 hits toward the Lady Lion nets in the game, compared to 16 shots on goal by Penn State.

The Eaglettes also dominated the penetration time stats, racking up 10:35 possession inside the Lady Lion 25-yard line, four more minutes than the visitors.

The win snapped a 12-year winless streak against the archrivals. Penn State's lone victory in the 13 year-old series came in 1964.

Lock Haven earned a third seed in the upcoming regional tournament Nov. 11-13 in Glassboro, N.J. The Lady Lions are rated fifth — bids came out last weekend.

Penn State hosts top-seeded West Chester, last year's national champions, Saturday in the regular season finale at 1:30.

Four minutes later, with the Penguins Russ Anderson in the penalty box, Apps and Jean Pronovost engineered a two-on-one break with which went over the shoulder of Los Angeles goalie Rogatien Vachon.

Six minutes later Kehoe scored his first goal when Larouche set him up at the corner of the crease. Kehoe came back to score again on a breakaway with only 12 seconds gone in the second period. His goal came while Bob Murdoch was sitting out a delay of game penalty.

Thereafter, they scored one short-handed goal and four power play goals, the latter tying a team record.

Larouche's goal came on a breakaway, a 50-foot shot which went over the shoulder of Los Angeles goalie Rogatien Vachon.

Sophomore halfback Jody Field takes a free hit in yesterday's 2-1 win over a strong Lock Haven squad.

Everybody was in on a piece of the defensive action as forward Becca Garwood (28) shows against a Lock Haven opponent. Garwood also demonstrated her offensive abilities by netting the first of two Penn State goals.
