

Maybe Lana Turner had a better idea, or, how not to get discovered at a hockey rink

So you think that being part of a Hollywood movie is all fun and glamour?
Not so, as two Penn State students discovered last spring. As a matter of fact, they found it downright boring after a while. Students Larry Marcinko (9th-English) and Jim Hayden (9th-English) managed to be hired on as extras for the filming, in Johnstown, of the new Paul Newman flick, "Slap Shot." The movie deals with the world of hockey and the scene in which Marcinko and Hayden participated featured them as excited fans watching a hockey game. Marcinko and Hayden watched the filming of a nude scene on ice (with actor Mike Ontkean) and saw star Newman goof up some of his hockey playing. Newman's goof resulted in his double's being called in to play for him.

The two also said that some of the extras enjoyed mugging at the camera, which slowed the filming even more and got Newman quite irritated.
But most of the shooting involved repeated takes of a hockey game and of the fans cheering. Hayden said that this got to be as boring as "writing class papers." Even Paul Newman appeared bored, the two said.
Boredom was not a problem for the extras on the "Jaws" set, we think. Especially for the swimmers.

From the people who brought you Batjak, the explanation you've all been waiting for Restaurant critics aren't the only ones who ask waitresses impossible questions. In addition to "Is the asparagus fresh?" and "Do you have number 27 on the wine list?" State College's most popular culinary question is "What is the origin of the name 'Cafe Batjak'?"

The Cafe Batjak on Heister Street is one of the borough's three new restaurants, but the only one with an unusual name. (The Canton Restaurant is self-explanatory and the name 'La Souperbe' is punningly clear.)
Since its opening a few months ago, the Cafe Batjak has been bombarded with queries from inquisitive diners and the patient waitresses at the cafe deserve awards for courtesy and good humor beyond the call of duty in answering questions about its name.

In a probably fruitless attempt to make it easier for them, here's the answer.
In 1948, John Wayne played still another of his strong-yet-gentle-men-in-danger roles, in a movie called "The Wake of the Red Witch."
The film from the novel of the same name, was set in the Dutch East Indies and had Wayne overcoming the usual insuperable obstacles. Wayne was the captain of a ship called the Red Witch and worked for an exporting company called Batjak Limited.
The owner of the Cafe Batjak (who also owns the Candy Cane on College Avenue) read the novel, liked the sound of the name "Batjak," and the mystery is as simply solved as that.

Music by mail: Fleetwood Mac in concert

There's another good concert in the offing, but as usual, it's available only to those of you with wheels, or who can call the Big Apple home.
The popular British rock group, Fleetwood Mac, will appear in concert 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 29, in Madison Square Garden in New York City. The tickets, available by mail only (6 tickets per person) are $8.50 and $7.50 each. Send your certified check or money order (plus a $1 handling charge per order and a self-addressed stamped envelope) to Fleetwood Mac, P.O. Box 83, New York, N.Y. 10001.

Until then, save your pennies for that boss '87 Chevy to get you there.

To continue the tradition... Gentle Thursday to be shared April 28

If you haven't been doing it all year, this is your chance.
April 28 - Gentle Thursday - will be a Day of Sharing.
Plans for Gentle Thursday are well underway, with the band committee now auditioning for the 10 bands which will supply 12 hours of music for the event.
Any band wishing to audition should send in a cassette tape or contact the Free U office in 223 HUB before April 18.
The band committee plans to offer a variety of music - bluegrass, jazz, rock and "even a little disco." All the bands will offer their services free, in the Gentle Thursday spirit, and canvassing is also underway downtown to encourage contributions of the services and items which make Gentle Thursday work.

Gentle Thursday will begin at 10 a.m. on the HUB lawn and continue until 10 p.m. There will be marshalls on the lawn to keep down the refuse, but no disturbances are expected and not much patrolling is planned.
To get you in the Gentle Thursday spirit, T-shirts will be on sale Monday, April 11 on the ground floor of the HUB.
Gentle Thursday's come a long way from its origin as a project for a Speech 200 class.
