

Brewers may steal East title

NEW YORK (AP) — Alex Grammas, manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, the last-place 1976 Brewers, the 66-95 and 32-games-out Brewers, was advised that a noted baseball writer had picked his team to win the American League East in 1977.

is always the hungriest." The Brewers are hungry. In eight years, including their ill-fated 1969 season as the Seattle Pilots, they have finished either fifth or sixth in the six team AL East every time except for a fourth-place tie in 1970. Even then their record was only 65-97, and they were 33 games behind the Baltimore Orioles.

Volleyballers defend crown at George Mason

By CHUCK BUCHANAN
Collegian Sports Writer
Coming off an impressive drubbing over East Stroudsburg Wednesday night in Rec Hall, Penn State's volleyballers will travel tomorrow to the scene of two other Lion triumphs.

The Nittany spikers will invade Fairfax, Va., as two-time defending champions in the third-annual George Mason Invitational Tournament.

"We really like going down there every year," said Lion coach Tom Tait. "Not only because we've won it everytime, but because it gives us a chance to see the sun."

And while a trip to sunnier climes wouldn't do the spikers any harm, Tait has an ulterior motive for trekking southward that just might do the Lions some good.

"This trip," the coach said, "will give us a chance to see how we stack up against some of the southern schools. We play only eastern teams most of the time, but tomorrow we'll get an idea of where we stand nationally."

The Lions did get a peek at several mid-western teams at last weekend's USVBA tournament in Ohio, but they did not face any collegiate teams. Penn State was the only varsity squad in a field comprised otherwise of YMCA and club teams.

The Lions, after a shaky start, did come on strong to capture that tourney title. However, Tait believes his players may have taken that victory somewhat lightly.

"I don't think they knew the significance of that win," the Lion mentor said.

"It was our first ever win at an AA volleyball tournament — and you can count on one hand the number of collegiate teams to win AA tournaments."

But, Tait said he talked with his charges earlier this week about the importance of last weekend's triumph. He also discussed "perspective," he said.

The Lions, riding the crest of an impressive wave of wins (they've taken 44 of their last 51 games), are riding high. The tendency to treat tomorrow's tournament lightly should be a strong one, but Tait doesn't allow for this.

"No, we're not looking ahead," says co-captain Dave Evans. "We all know what we gotta do — take 'em one at a time."

"We're keeping our perspective," adds Tait. "We don't even play 'em one match at a time, and we don't even play 'em one game at a time — we play 'em one point at a time."

"We've got to have this type philosophy, this outlook, if we're going to continue to grow and develop as a team. With this approach to our game, we can avoid a lot of sticky situations."

Diskmen, Princeton set to spin

It's showdown time for the Penn State Ultimate Frisbee team.

Tomorrow afternoon at Pollock Fields, the Lion diskmen meet Princeton's Tigers in a 1 p.m. match.

Both squads are coming off big victories over Rutgers, which has been dominating the sport since 1972. The latest to do so was Penn State, which used a tenacious man-to-man defense Sunday to frustrate a Scarlet Knight comeback, winning 22-19.

Rutgers is also the defending national champ.

The Lions also won a game last Saturday, when they defeated Lehigh 17-8.

Sade pockets HUB pool tournament

Tony Sade took first place in the second annual Eight Ball Tournament last night in the HUB billiard room.

Sade bested 21 other contenders for the title in a tournament sponsored by the Hutzel Union Board.

Sade was awarded the one and only prize for his victory in the two-day double elimination affair — a pool cue.

Second place went to George Bodenger while third place was taken by Paul Scalia.
