

Jackson leads Yankees to Series crown

NEW YORK (AP) — "Nothing can top this!" Reggie Jackson, somewhat subdued for a man who had just hammered three screaming home runs in the final game of the World Series last night, stood in the champagne-drenched clubhouse of the New York Yankees — the center of attention, just as he always said he would be.

"This showed what kind of men we have, what kind of human beings we are," said Jackson between gulps of champagne from a bottle clutched in his hand.

"Nothing can top this," he repeated. "Who's gonna hit three home runs in the deciding game of the World Series?"

Here, he permitted himself a slight smile. "I'm not."
It was an incredibly powerful end to a season which began in controversy, which ebbed and flowed all summer — right up to the afternoon of the final game, when the Yankees finally gave Manager Billy Martin a vote of confidence and said he would fill the remaining two years of his contract.

The homers were the third, fourth and fifth of the World Series for Jackson — the Yankees' leading hitter with a .450 average — as the Yankees won the Series four games to two.

Jackson's five home runs were the most ever by one player in a World Series.

After the Dodgers had scored two unearned runs in the first inning, Jackson opened the Yankees second by walking on four pitches. Chambliss followed with his home run into the right field bleachers, tying the score.

But Reggie Smith restored the Los Angeles lead with a third-inning homer. It was his third of the Series and the ninth for the Dodgers, tying the National League record set by the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1955 and tied by Milwaukee in 1957.

That made it 3-2 Dodgers, but Jackson took over at that point, with an awesome power show that rewrote the World Series record books.

His first homer followed a leadoff single by Munson in the fourth inning. The hit extended Munson's World Series hitting streak to 10 straight games — all four last year against Cincinnati and six this October.

In the fifth, Jackson connected again, tagging the first pitch with two out after Mickey Rivers had opened with a single and was forced on an attempted sacrifice.

Still, Jackson wasn't through. In the eighth, leading off, he hit a towering blast well back into the center field bleachers, far beyond the 417-foot sign, an area of the Stadium rarely reached.

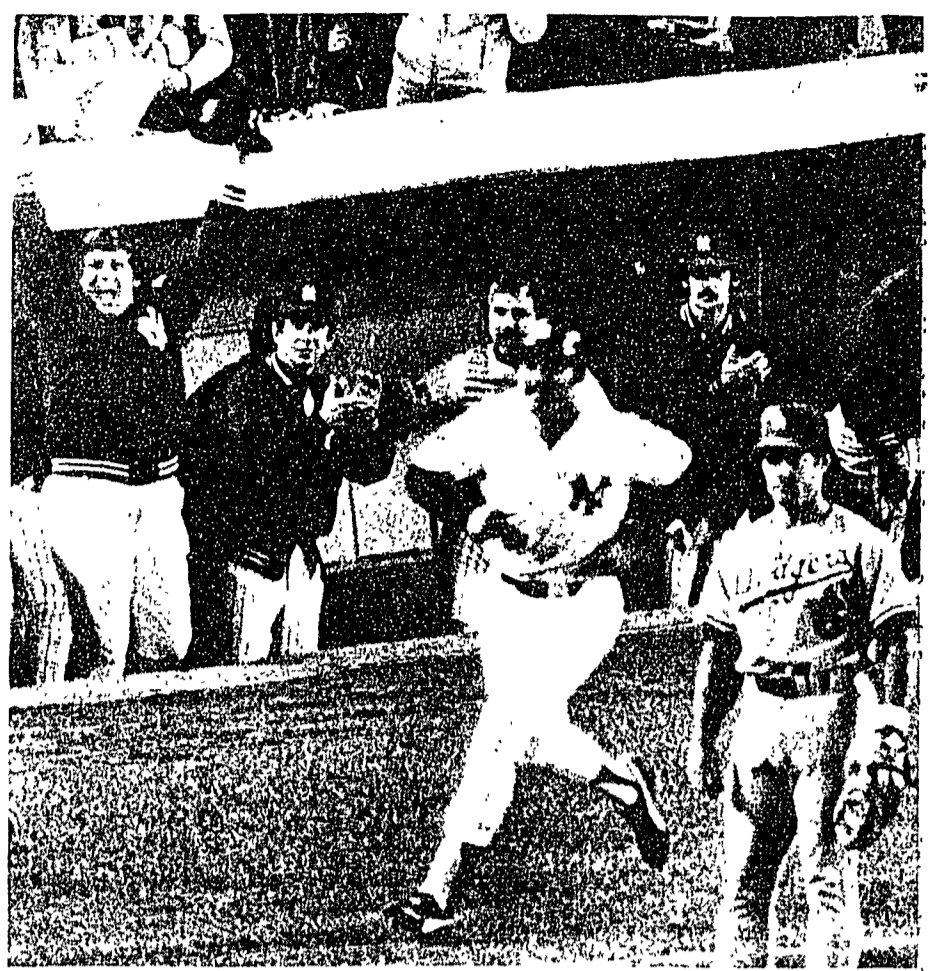

After Jackson's third home run, the deafening roar of the fans forced him out of the Yankees dugout to acknowledge the cheers for an accomplishment unparalleled in Series history. No man had ever hit more than four home runs in a Series and only the immortal Ruth had accomplished three in a single game — first in 1926 and again in 1928, both times in St. Louis.

The end of the Yankees' tumultuous and divisive but ultimately successful campaign also came as a relief to Martin, who cried tears of joy just one year after he wept in embarrassment when the Yankees were swept in four games by the Cincinnati Reds.

"I can't put it into words," said the fiery little manager as he sat slumped behind his office desk, all the fire seemingly extinguished.

Martin's discourse was interrupted by the entrance of George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' outspoken and controversial owner. Acting calm, cool and collected and wearing a poker face, Steinbrenner extended his hand to Martin, muttered, "Nice going, see you later," and started to walk away.

But only for a second. The owner and the manager fell into each other's arms and Steinbrenner said, "The World Championship is back in New York where it belongs."

Chris Chambliss rounds first base after his second inning two-run homer in last night's World Series clincher for his Yankee team. Teammate Reggie Jackson tied a Series record by slamming three home runs in New York's 8-1 win.

INTRAMURALS

Lawrence wins a Whopper of a game

What do Burger King and the offenses of Jefferson and Lawrence have in common?

That's easy to answer if you watched last night's intramural game between the two teams at the East Halls fields. It's their slogan — "Have it your way."

Both offenses seemed to be telling the defenses to have it their way as Lawrence won on first downs, 4-2. Neither team was able to score during the contest. For that matter, neither team was able to mount much of an offensive attack at all.

It wasn't that the offenses were playing sloppy ball, as often happens in I.M.s. Rather, when the quarterbacks dropped back to pass, they were always throwing into a crowd. One of the problems for Jefferson was that its quarterback was taking a test. That loss obviously hurt the offense, so the defense took up the slack.

"We lost our first game 26-7," John Duffy, of Jefferson, said. "After that we realigned our defense. Since then we've had four shutouts and we've only given up five points."

Booters turn in another shutout

The booters are playing soccer by the numbers. Here they are: 2-0, 8-2, 7, 3, 8 and 1.

Translated, that means they beat East Stroudsburg by two goals yesterday, winning their eighth game in 10 starts. It was the seventh shutout of the season for goalie Dan Gallagher, their third straight shutout win, and they are now in eighth place in the nation.

The "1" belongs to Ken McDonald, who scored his first goal of the season early in the first half from about 15 yards out. That it took this long is surprising since he finished second last season goals scored (eight) and points (12).

Three of those were game-winners, but this one wasn't.

Matt Bahr slammed home the game-winner on a free kick mid-way through the first period, one of 24 shots on East Stroudsburg goalie Paul Williamson. Gallagher faced eight shots on his way to tying his own record for shutouts in a season, a record he shares with two other Lions.

Gallagher has four more games to try to break that mark, starting with Navy at Jeffrey Field Friday. He has allowed three goals all season while his teammates have scored 37.

Chances are that Gallagher will get a chance in the post-season as well. The Lions play three of their final four games, at home, where they just don't lose. They have an 11-game winning streak, including nine straight shutouts by Gallagher. Considering the fact that the Lions can afford to lose another game and still get an invitation, things look good for the playoffs.

CORNER KICKS: Gallagher made six saves, Williamson seven. Jim Stamatis assisted on McDonald's goal... loss was fifth straight for East Stroudsburg, dropping record to 3-6-1.
