Private disco club among new businesses

By GINA BRISGONE
Daily Collegian Staff Writer
A private after-hours disco club that caters to both gay and straight clientele, and has disco dancing for those under 21, recently opened in State College.

The Sanctuary, 319 E. Calder Way, next to Schoolkids Records, is open for members and non members under legal age between 8 and 11 p.m. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

The club has the under-21 nights as a community service, a place for the younger people to go and dance, David Feldman, owner and manager, said. But it closes at 11 p.m. and no liquor is allowed, Feldman said.

The club is open only to members and their guests, Feldman said. Although it has no liquor license, members may bring their own, he said.

A private club will promote a controlled yet relaxed atmosphere, and will eliminate embarrassment for some who might walk into the club unaware of its mixed gay and straight members, Feldman said.

The club has a 19 by 32 foot wooden dance floor, with mirrors on either side, and a stereo sound system that plays continuous disco music synchronized with a multi-colored light show. A soda bar and separate lounge area are other features.

Next to the disco, and connected to Schoolkids Records, is Specialty Records which has classical, disco, imported and movie soundtrack records, Feldman said.

Also in the same area are Artifax and First On Your Block Imports, both at 322 E. College Ave.

Artifax sells jewelry, gifts and smoking paraphernalia, owner Brent Brookstein said. Two other stores are located in Philadelphia, he said.

First On Your Block Imports sells clothing, jewelry and crafts from China, Indonesia, Guatemala, Mexico, India and Afghanistan, Rick Milan, its owner said.

"We travel to these countries and bring back unusual merchandise, one-of-a-kind items," Milan said.

Imports sells mostly clothing — rag shirts designed exclusively for the store and made in Mexico, silks, cotton and wool shirts of both ethnic and high fashion designs, Milan said.

The business was started three years ago when the owners drove to Guatemala, picked up merchandise and began selling it at flea markets, craft fairs and festivals, he said.

Schoolkids Records has moved from its E. Beaver Avenue location to 318 E. College Ave. The store has added tapes and top 40 singles, owner Tom Best said.

Campus Casino, 330 E. College Ave., has expanded and installed solid state computerized pin ball machines, video games and seven pool tables, said manager Victor Spizzirri.

The Billiard Room has closed and the National Record Mart of Pittsburgh will take its place at 224 E. College Ave. The Billiard Room was forced out of business because of high rents and overhead, Lorraine Johns, a salesperson at Derailleurs Bicycle and Sports, which owned The Billiard Room, said.

Roma Pizza, 322B E. College Ave., opened last Monday and has pizza, sandwiches and strombolis.

Clarifications

A map in Tuesday's Daily Collegian showed the new student parking areas as including all of Area 44 east of Shields across University Drive. Student parking is permitted only in the gravel portion of Lot 44, and not the paved area.

A story in Wednesday's Collegian inadvertently omitted the names of Robert Sebring, Democratic candidate for state Senate, and J. Doyle Corman, state senator from the 34th district, which includes State College, from a list of candidates who appeared at voter registration.
