

Dodgers destroy Phillies; Kansas City evens series

Kansas City's Willie Wilson comes up short while attempting to score in the seventh inning. Nevertheless, the Royals went on to pound the Yankees, 10-1.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Garvey slammed two home runs, tripled, drove in four runs and scored three times, powering the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 9-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies last night in the opening game of the National League championship series.

The second game in the best-of-five playoff will be Thursday before the series moves to Los Angeles for Game 3 Friday night.

In addition to Garvey's thundering bat, Davey Lopes crashed a two-run homer and Steve Yeager, starting his seventh game since July 1, hit a solo shot. In all, the Dodgers rapped 13 hits off four Philadelphia pitchers in this rematch of last year's playoffs.

While Los Angeles' power hitting made a gray, rain-threatening night more miserable for 63,460 rabid Phillies' fans, rookie Bob Welch, in relief of starter Burt Hooton, pitched 41-3 innings of two-hit, one-run ball and gained credit for the victory.

The only hits off Welch came in the bottom of the ninth, a leadoff home run by pinch-hitter Jerry Martin and a single by Larry Bowa.

The Phillies, champions of the East Division, took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a triple by Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt's sacrifice fly. But the advantage lasted only until Los Angeles came to bat in the third.

After Hooton led off by striking out against Phillies starter and loser Larry Christenson, Lopes doubled to the left field wall. He took third when Bill Russell's routine grounder went through Schmidt's legs at third base for an error and scored the tying run on Reggie Smith's single.

That brought up Garvey, the Dodgers' iron man who has played in 511 consecutive games. He sent a 1-2 pitch over the left field fence for three runs and a 4-1 Los Angeles lead.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Freddie Patek, the smallest regular in the major leagues, walloped a two-run homer and Kansas City rode the pitching of Larry Gura and two relievers to a 10-4 victory over the New York Yankees yesterday in the second game of the American League championship series.

The victory tied the best-of-five playoff 1-1, with Game 3 scheduled for Friday at Yankee Stadium.

Patek's homer into the left field bleachers came during a three-run seventh inning, when Kansas City broke open the game. That uprising was punctuated by a near-fight on the field and confusion among players and umpires about the number of outs in the inning.

The Royals had staked Gura to an early 5-0 lead, knocking out Yankees starter Ed Figueroa with a four-run second inning. The Kansas City southpaw, who was discarded by New York two years ago, pitched easily until the seventh, when four Yankees' hits produced two runs and Marty Pattin was summoned from the Royals' bullpen.

The veteran right-hander cut short the rally, setting the stage for the bizarre bottom of the seventh.

With Kansas City leading 5-2, the inning started routinely enough as Darrell Porter flied out to right field. Pete LaCock followed with a double off the right field wall, then Clint Hurdle sent a long drive that backed Reggie Jackson to the fence in right.

Jackson tried for a leaping catch, but the ball fell for a triple, scoring LaCock. Willie Wilson ran for Hurdle, and with the Yankees' infield drawn in for a play at the plate, Al Cowens bounced to third baseman Graig Nettles. The throw to catcher Thurman Munson was in plenty of time, but Wilson barreled into Munson, sending him flying.

When Munson recovered, he began to move toward Wilson, apparently angered by the collision. Players from both dugouts began moving slowly toward the two, awaiting Munson's next move. The catcher exchanged angry words with the runner but turned away as home plate umpire Rich Garcia positioned himself between the two players in an effort to keep order.

With the capacity crowd 41,158 howling, both teams returned to their benches and Patek stepped to the plate. At 5-foot-4, he hardly seemed a power threat, but the tiny Royals' shortstop reached the left field seats for a two-run homer and an 8-2 Kansas City lead.

Booters stumble to 2-0 victory over Rams

By DARLENE HROBAK
Daily Collegian Sports Writer
Winning isn't necessarily synonymous with playing well.

Anyone who attended last night's soccer game at Jeffrey Field could tell you that much. The ninth-ranked Nittany Lions did the expected and sent the Rhode Island Rams down in defeat, 2-0, but they weren't exactly impressive doing it.

"Nobody was moving. We were doing everything wrong," Penn State forward Jim Stamatis said. "I don't want to take anything away from them, but we certainly didn't play as well as we could have."

"I know that I blew a couple of shots. I missed two easy ones for sure. One was on a penalty kick and I don't even want to talk about that one."

That sub-par play was more evident in the opening period. The Lions played most of the first half on Rhode Island's side of the field and more than 18 minutes had elapsed before they had their first serious shot on goal.

"We played too slow again," State coach Walt Bahr said. "I don't know why we are taking a team like this and playing so sluggish."

Geza Henni, Rhode Island's coach, wasn't pleased with his team's play either. The Rams', now 1-2-1, only previous loss had been a 2-0 loss to top ranked Indiana — which is the same score Penn State lost by.

"We played badly," Henni said. "We didn't pass the ball well and we were tiring and we just couldn't move with them. But Penn State is a good team, too."

The Lions showed an inkling of that ability with 33:33 gone in the first period when Ray Patrick scored his first goal of the season. It went by Rhode Island goalie Gonsales Rico, starting his first game in goal, after two of Patrick's teammates had failed to get shots by him.

"This guy for the last year played only one game," Henni said. "But he's a good goalie, you could see that tonight. He doesn't give up many goals."

"But the first goal was a big mistake on our part. The goal-keeper didn't throw the ball out of the net when he had a chance. If he would have, it would have been a different story."

The game was the same story in the second period — a different chapter in the same story, but the same story. The Lions came out more aggressively, but were only able to get one more shot past Rico. That score came at the 33:19 mark of the second half when Stamatis drilled in an unassisted goal.

Haag watches as Gallagher ties his record

By DARLENE HROBAK
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

It might not have been the best executed, or even the most exciting, soccer game ever played. But for two Penn State goalies, last night's 2-0 win over Rhode Island had special significance.

Current Lion goalie Dan Gallagher tied the school record of 20 career shutouts as former Lion goalie Ron Haag, the man who set the record, watched from the stands.

"I have always wanted to come back and see a game," Haag, Penn State's goaltender from 1936-38, said. "This was the first game I've been to since I played here."

"I was glad that I picked this one. Dan's a good goalie."

Gallagher, who set a single season record of nine shutouts last year, posted his fourth of the season against the Rams while making ten saves.

"The only thing getting the record means is that the other team didn't have a good chance to score," Gallagher said. "I was up for the game, though. It's nice to get your name in the record books."

Gallagher had aired opinions on the record weeks before the actual deed was done.

"The shutouts are more of a credit to the defense unless it's against a really good team, then the goalkeeper gets some credit," he said.

No one will deny, though, that Gallagher is an awfully good goalie who has just tied an awfully impressive record — a record which stood for 40 years.

Fortunately for the current edition of the Penn State soccer team, Gallagher is intact and likely to stay that way.

And with seven regular season games remaining, it seems likely too that his name will soon stand alone as the career shutout record holder.

Duncan MacEwan drives downfield in last night's game against Rhode Island. The Lions won, 2-0, despite their sluggish play.

Experience...
The Warm and Intimate Sounds of
Randy Hughes

Friday and Saturday
8:30 to 12:30

Country Tavern

825 Cricklewood Drive, Tottrees 237-1049

"where the good times begin..."

A project of Federated Home & Mortgage

Dante's Ristorante
114 south garner • 237 0374

Italian Trattoria

* Lunch Daily *
● cafeteria style dining
● grinders, soup, salad, pizza
● a unique luncheon experience

* Dinner *
● student affordable
● homemade pasta
● all fresh seafood
● full bar service

....something fantastic
is always cooking at DANTE'S

ATTENTION SENIORS!!

WHAT: CDPC SEMINARS
Fall Term
September 12 - November 2

WHEN:

Time	Tuesday	Thursday
4th Period	Job Search Strategies	Resume Preparation
5th Period	Resume Preparation	Interview Skills
6th Period	Interview Skills	Job Search Strategies

WHERE: All sessions will be held in the Conference Room - Walnut Building
OPEN TO ALL INTERESTED STUDENTS

SPONSORED BY: Career Development and Placement Center
Office of Student Affairs

Pass the Puck!

There will be a general meeting for all players interested in playing Penn State J.V. or Intramural ice hockey.

When: Thurs., Oct. 5, 1978
Where: 267 Willard Bldg.
Time: 7:30 p.m.

For additional Info, call 237-1200/865-8513

YOM KIPPUR
GREETING CARDS

American Greetings

PENN STATE BOOKSTORE
GROUND FLOOR HUB

Open 7:45 a.m. Mon-Fri.

Custom Printed
T-Shirts
to fit your needs
T-Shirts
Sweat Shirts
Jackets

Tee-Printing

No Charge for Designing
Delivery in Two Weeks

Write: Tee-Printing
P.O. Box 443
Boalsburg, Pa. 16827

- for more information and prices -