When does the training stop and the doing start?

At Scott, we believe that the best training we can give you is experience in putting your ideas to work. Since we know that personal growth is your goal, achievement of that goal is realized through doing. Experience comes from doing—putting your ideas to work, enjoying responsibility, and accepting accountability.

Each year, as determined, committed college grads join us, they bring new talents with them. We put these talents to the test immediately and willingly accept their challenges.

Because we recognize individual differences, our approach is to build on your existing skills—to enable you to start doing.

When does the training stop? It never does.
