Tickee, but no seatee

Students and ticket office have to keep both ends of bargain with stadium seating

Joe Student gets up Saturday morning, excited about going to a home football game. After drinking and socializing at a tailgate party sponsored by his club, he and his friends saunter over to Beaver Stadium and present coveted senior tickets to the usher, expecting to see the game from the 20 yard line. "Section full," the usher says, blocking the entrance. They go to another senior section. A sign near the entrance says FULL. Joe and his friends end up in the end zone with

Overcrowding in student sections has long been a problem. Students with tickets, especially in junior and senior sections, have to arrive at the stadium at 11:45 a.m. when the gates open or risk not getting a seat. Last Saturday at the Rutgers game, all the students sections were overflowing with students. Many students with junior or senior tickets had to stand in line to wait for a seat. William Meredith, University ticket manager, said all of the student seats were not sold out, but most of them were filled with students who had jumped the railings from different sections or who slipped non-student friends past the usher. Students who have tickets for a certain section should sit in their designated areas and not take up seats that belong to others. Granted, the seats reserved for students are student seating section.

but more often, 14 or 13 people would take up demand problem. the whole row, he said.

However, the responsibility doesn't solely lie the number of students in a section. with student fans.

who want to go to the game.

tickets were sold for 6,421 senior section seats. Meredith reasoned that the overflow of into another section could be avoided. seniors could sit in the junior, sophomore or As it stands now, the football ticket not the most favorable, and one does get tired of If the athletic department expects students to seeing the goalpost throughout the game. follow the rules, it must also follow through on However, jumping section barriers or sneaking its own regulations. A student who faithfully in friends is cheating other students of their attends Penn State football games for three years should be able to sit in the senior section Meredith said many students also could not and finally see the action. It means a lot to many find seats because one person often would take students to sit in the senior section. The ticket up two seats. Each row of seats holds 16 people, office should not treat it as a supply and

The department could rope off a part of Football games are for fun and excitement. another section where the seats are not sold out Share the feeling with someone. If a lone to allow more seniors in. Since season tickets student is wandering and looking for a seat, are purchased in the summer, the athletic department should be able to better estimate

To curtail the problem of students taking up The University also has a responsibility for seats they aren't entitled to, tighter checking of guaranteeing seats to all student ticketholders tickets and seats could be enforced by ushers. Many students know if they get to the stadium Although the total number of student seats early enough, the ushers are often lenient about were not sold out, Meridith explained that his who can enter senior and junior sections. With office intentionally oversold the number of all the money being sunk into stadium consenior section tickets. Meredith said 6,675 struction, perhaps better barriers could be erected between the sections so rail-hopping distribution system is not the best, but it's what But according to the strict sales guidelines the University offers. Unless students and the that the ticket office distributes each spring, University come up with a better solution, they "seniors and graduate students may sit in any should make football games an enjoyment for everyone and not a hassle.

Letters to the Editor

A shattered trust

It's not fair. No one cares. Always rules. I have my own problems. These are just a few phrases that ring in my ears from student voices. The about securing your property or a second point I always thought was to listen, to try and help, and to extend myself for students. Need a phone, use mine, need a quiet place to work, my office is available. Can't meet tuition, I will neip pay me back when you can. My philosophy may agree with yours: perhaps you behave similarly with students, friends, etc.

Well, my attitude was altered Friday afternoon at 5 and perhaps so should yours. I trusted a student to remain in my office for a few seconds while I took care of the student's curriculum problem, so the student would have an unanxious weekend and not worry about being able to graduate. I was already late for my return home, but placed my belongings in my desk. When I returned to my office to let the student learn of the results of my query, the student was gone and so was my purse. A purse is a private treasure chest. It goes beyond the cash lost, the credit cards that need to be canceled, and the checking account that must be closed. It houses momentos from family and friends that are not replaceable —the gold coin from a beloved dead grandparent, the fourleaf clover found when a child, and the key ring given by someone you love. Its loss represents a piece of yourself. It represents a major violation romantic, question your values. For those of you who take offense, analyze your behavior. This campus is large with many unattended spaces and many types of people. Hopefully, by sharing my anger, upset and sadness over my loss, just one of you will give a second thought thought about not violating someone else's.

Francine Deutsch

To the person or personsd who stole my CB antenna last Saturday: I'm handicapped and require my CB when in in need of assistance. It is not a toy to me. I hope it fails you in your time of graduate-vocational industrial education

Another toast?

It amazes me, the things money will do. It bought me a car this summer, and I got my books too. Also, it seems to have brought together the town of State College and the University students. "A toast to town and gown cooperation," to quote another writer. The future of the Phi Psi 500 is now safe, and the interests of town and student alike have For those of you who trust others, be careful. been satisified. The Phi Psi brings money to Collegian gives us. However, I hope to say there For those of you who feel I am a sentimental many organizations and businesses in the area, and it is not surprising to see the Municipal Let us look at another controversy involving "town and gown": the proposed Human Rights Resolution which was before the council early last year. NO money was involved, just the issue

The council voted against this resolution. which dealt with issues of discrimination by preference. Citizens rose up to protect violations" against their Chirstian morals, but they are in favor of having their streets filled with many drunken people. The difference appears to be money.

Should we propose another toast? David A. Moskowitz 4th-secondary education

Commitment -

An interesting incident happened to me last spring. I got interviewed by The Daily Collegian. because of my involvement with a committee in the Undergraduate Student Government Senate. At least a dozen of my friends congratulated me for making the news. However, they all were referring to the fact that they noticed in the police log the disappearance of my bike.

Because of the incident, I was once again made aware of the fact that the USG Senate, the students' representative body, is of little concern to most University students, so much so that most students just skip over what coverage the may be a change in that apathetic attitude due to some recent and future events. Recent events I am referring to concern some actions taken by the senate at last Monday's meeting in 225 HUB. For openers, the senate decided to set up a mechanism to handle student grievances. They were given a choice of either committee to funnel student grievances or to The senate chose the latter method and immediately founded ad-hoc groups to work with the atheletic department concerning the issue of the price of being number one and to work with Ritenour Health Center concerning medical services. I foresee, soon, ad-hoc groups being formed to monitor police services, study the setting up a standing policy and procedure drop-add fee was raised. These actions themselves warrant additional interest on the activities of the senate — but there's more. Last Monday, the senators reaffirmed their commitment to an active participation in the various USG executive departments as department members by defeating a bill which I sponsored which would have relieved senators of this responsibility. I had become concerned that senators were overloading themselves with work, work which I believed would have

Campus Loop situation and find out why the

The discussions in the senate after debate during the senate's gathering Monday night spotlighted that subject of student representation. Senators talked enthusiastically about improving representation. For example districting town senators was proposed. Apparently the senate hasn't lost focus of its primary duty despite the additional work it

Yes, each senator, by becoming an aggressive representative, working office hours, being active in ad-hoc committees and executive senate meetings, has committed himself herself to more time for student government and students than those members of past senates, USG Vice President Vicki Sandoe summed it it up nicely Monday hight when she said the success of the senate depends on the will and abilities of the individual senate members to get what they want done. With that thought, I think our senate members have the will and ability to get what they, on behalf of the students, wants, done, so much so that I dare to say students will have an interest to follow up on what is happening with their representative body in this paper in the future.

David F. Winkler USG Senator - Town

distracted from senators' primary duty: student

Marjie Schlessingens

Kennedy is making the news now for 1984 race

I may have to eat these words within the next few weeks, but I my hunch is right, he will save his "real" campaign for the

As a columnist, I try to analytically look at different situations, and often play "devil's advocate" with the draft of a column to make sure my arguments are strong and sound. While I will admit this is at best, a hunch, I will not go around claiming psychic powers if I am correct. Kennedy has developed a carefully planned strategy to win him the 1984 presidential campaign. Using the "long-term" approach. Kennedy is jockeying to insure himself the Democratic party's leadership for the next 10 years. I can see him entering the 1980 race, only if Jimmy Carter leads the nation into the nation's second major depression.

I base my theory on several factors. At the moment, Ted Kennedy is the most powerful Democrat in the U.S. Senate, and among other committees, he leads the democratic forces on the judiciary committee, and he is chairman of the joint economic subcommittee on energy. Since his election to the Senate at the ripe old age of 30, he has developed into an articulate, polished orator in the style of The senior senator from Massachusetts has continued to develop a talent that is the cornerstone of American politics a mastery of how to deal with the press. In addition, Ted Kennedy has the Kennedy "aura" around him. Devleoped by brothers John and Robert, it is a concept hardly understood by the unsuspecting American public. Even I was taken by it, while working as an intern on Capitol Hill last year. Despite constantly being within an arms reach of some of our nation's top politicians, I felt a chill up and down my spine when I got next to Ted Kennedy. The only other person whose presence was as awe-inspiring on Capitol Hill was the late Hubert Humphrey.

This mystical attraction makes leaders infallable, while at the same time it allows them a small handful of allowable

Teddy Kennedy has made just three major mistakes. One. obviously was Chappaquiddick. Another was being a prime sponsor of the famous S-1 Criminal Code revision bill. And the The way people nowadays view the Mary Ann Kopechne . has been forgiven. He is listed as an "outstanding alumnus," instead of staying cool." One of the world's greatest writers the cheating scandal of the early 1950's has been forgetten. Kennedy proven he is an effective leader, but that now he has sharpest minds. learned to deal with and thrive under constant pressure. Kennedy has atoned for the mistakes of the S-1 bill by working with Congressman Robert Drinan, a highly respected Massachusetts Democrat, in redrafting an entirely new comprehensive Criminal Code bill that both liberals and forgiven for an error while growing up, it seems Ted Kennedy incident is, "Well, the guy was under pressure and panicked of Harvard, one of four people to be so designated. It appears once coined the phrase "to err is human, to forgive divine." I Besides being bright and sharp-witted, he has managed to believe the American public is convinced that not only has surround himself with what is often called "Washington's

That leads me to believe this is all a hoax. In 20 years in the Senate, Kennedy has mastered publicity. Take, for example, the past two weeks. In only two of the past 14 days, was Kennedy not on the front page with one statement or another. What clued me in to his strategy was that about the sixth day, Kennedy disappeared from the news fruit at harvest time instead. Ted Kennedy's third error caused him to lose honor at his columns. Before the public had a chance to forget about him.

PRESIDENCY YOU MEAN CANDIDNESS

decided to run — a well-planned, front-page news event. I think Ted Kennedy is too clever to run for the office now, when he knows it will be handed to him in 1984. Some people may argue it is currently his for the taking, but historians will point out how tough it is to defeat an incumbent Kennedy strategists are very wary of challenging Jimmy Carter. In 1984, Ted Kennedy will be all of 52 years old, and one school of thought insists that he will just be nearing his political prime. It appears strange that Kennedy would risk splitting the Democratic party, when he can wait and grab the Kennedy has carefully sidestepped almost all direct link!) with the Carter administration, joining them in support of many important pieces of legislation, while criticizing them when the administration has not acted with enough force. When a national health plan finally passes Congress metime next year, the credit will go to Ted Kennedy, even if the version that passes is not the one he originally proposed.

Another strong point in my theory is that if Kennedy were anning to run, he would be out there organizing. There has been no campaign organization formed and no field-work done. The Kennedy's have always relied on top-notch

Ted Kennedy projects the image of being a winner, and this: reflected in his nationwide 1980 campaign. Even if it is largely an image, the press continues to convince the American public that what we are missing with the Carter administration is leadership, while projecting Kennedy as the obvious future of America.

Whether you support him or not, you almost have to be impressed with his command of the situation. I believe Kennedy started the race truly believing he was not going to run. And I don't think he has changed his mind ... evet. Kennedy is no fool. He is leaving himself an out, or an in waiting to see if the situation changes. In the eyes of the nation, Senator Kennedy can do pratically no wrong. Once again planning a media blitz, Kennedy says he will make his decision within the next half year, when he sees? how the economy is doing. It is common knowledge that we are heading toward a recession in January. Kennedy is separating himself from the Democratic party to come out in January and say that he's not really splitting the party - he's saving our nation from a depression. Whatever his reasoning, I must applaud the strategy behind the Kennedy non-race for President . . . it's skillful political strategy that this country has rarely witnessed. Alan Schlein is a 10th-term political science major : columnist for The Daily Collegian.

lke's diary calls MacArthur 'baby'

Eisenhower considered Gen. Douglas to keep him fighting." . MacArthur a temperamental "baby" Four days later, when MacArthur and found the chief of U.S. naval had named Maj. Gen. Richard K. operations so rude he thought he Sutherland to be his successor in the should be shot, according to a diary event of his death, Eisenhower transcript turned up by a Rice wrote: "He picked Sutherland,

The transcript of the former lickers. president's never-before-published early World War II diary was possible evacuation plan for discovered among 9 million documents received at the Dwight D. in the event of the fall of Bataan, Eisenhower Library in Abilene, Kan., Eisenhower's diary showed his Loewenheim's account of the diary losing his nerve. I'm hoping that his was published in a copyright series

Excerpts from the diary showed Eisenhower's strong displeasure with the Navy, particularly Adm. Ernest King, chief of Naval operations. "One thing that might help win this war is to get someone to shoot King,' Eisenhower wrote in a March 1942 entry. "He's the antithesis of cooperation - a deliberately rude person - which means he's a mental Eisenhower characterized King as an "arbitrary, stubborn type, with too much brains and a tendency toward bullying his juniors!" That characterization contrasted with Eisenhower's published descriptions of King in "Crusade in Europe."

In that post-war book, Eisenhower remembered King as "a Naval officer of the fighting type, abrupt, decisive and frequently so blunt as to frighten his subordinates.'' The diary revealed Eisenhower's impatience and disenchantment with MacArthur in the Pacific front while recogizing MacArthur's successes.

Study in Lima, Peru

Who: Business Administration Students

Orientation Meeting

WORSHIP

Tonight 9 p.m.

Grace Lutheran Church

(corner Beaver & Garner)

The Festival of St. Matthew,

Apostle and Evangelist

Sponsored by The Lutheran Student Parish at Penn State

Tonight is

Featuring-

Blue Grass Night

at the Westerly Parkway

Hi Way Pizza

Good Music

Good Food

Good Times

Whetstone Run

Westerly Pkwy. Shopping Center 237-1074

When: Winter Term 1980

Where: ESAN, Lima, Peru

wartime records in May 1970, they the principal exception of a small number of still security-restricted items and his personal letters to Mrs. Eisenhower, they would be making available all of the general's most interesting and important wartime Eisenhower's transcript was one of Eisenhower in 1945 when he discovered that Navy Capt. Harry C. Butcher his friend of 20 years, planned to use portions of it in his own passed a motion condemning recent practices by the cater to the whims of a few at the expense of the general athletic department which it said did not serve the best interests of all students Alan Gedrich (4th-business administration) in-

7:00 pm

Two of the recent moves by the administration that Gedrich cited as unfair were the closing of the Rec Hall jogging track during basketball pracities and the 67 Housing to keep the residence halls open a few hours all residence hall areas for various functions.

showing he still likes his boot When MacArthur proposed reaction: "Looks like MacArthur is on, but he is always an uncertain Loewenheim said, was that Eisenhower never let it out of his possession and never allowed authors, historians or researchers to velps are just his way of spurring us

"When the editors of the 'Eisenhower Papers' published his papers," Loewenheim said. "They Loewenheim determined two copies of the diary and that the other was ordered destroyed by "In many ways, MacArthur is as book, "My Three Years with

Athletes get priority, ARHS says

"The principle of the move bothered me," he said. The Association of Residence Hall Students last night "It's disturbing that the trend of the administration is to ARHS President Steve Osborn said, "We (ARHS) felt troduced a motion to the association condemning the that we have had a lot of hassles with the athletic administration's partiality in giving varsity athletes general student body."

department recently and that some of the actions they have taken haven't been in the best interests of the Temple game on Nov. 17, and those who want to return to the dorms early for the Pitt game on Nov. 24.

The association also: Announced there will soon be a sign-up esidence hall areas for the escort service program. Discussed tentative plans for a campuswide in Announced its support for the administration's policy to discourage "cork-popping" during conmencement exercises. In other action, ARHS endorsed a motion to ask — Discussed purchasing a sound system to be used in Miami voters defeat massive property tax cut

Smiling Dade County Manager Merrett Stierheim talks to reporters following yesterday's vote on a property tax cut in the county. The cut, which would have reduced property taxes 99.95 percent, was overwhelmingly defeated.

Hetzel Union Board (FLB)

CHRIS VOGT

HUB North Lounge

TONIGHT AT 8:00

proposal that would have cut off 99.95 set the tax ceiling at $4 per $1,000 percent of property taxes collected for assessed. was overwhelmingly defeated yesterday in a special election. With nearly three-fourths of Dade County's precincts tabulated, the anti- the deeper tax slash. percent of the vote. The remainder of the Election officials said it appeared that about 36 percent of the registered voters took part in the election. The anti-tax cut forces were financed by a $200,000 "establishment" campaign vote was in favor of the proposal.

that buried an underfinanced taxpayers If the proposal had passed, the county would have collected only about $91,000. instead of an anticipated $173 million to run its police, fire, transportation, fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1 Harry L. Wilson, framer of the tax cut proposal, admitted he had wanted to cut he county's operating funds in half. Instead, the 58-year-old retired pet supplies salesman incorrectly worded areas his proposal to call for only 4 cents worth

MIAMI (UPI) — A mistakenly worded valuation, when actually he wanted to

Dade County Metro Commission made

tax cut forces had collected more than 62 But, at last report, he had spent less than $2,500 in his effort and was pinning property owners with rising taxes and inflated government

By contrast, greater Miami's political establishment rose en masse - from union and church leaders to industry. business and professional leaders - to oppose Wilson. They collected nearly $300,000 and spent most of it in a cascade of media advertising

The special election itself cost voters County officials said approval of the hospital and social services for the next referendum would have resulted in the elimination of 9,000 jobs in metro government, including 900 in the police Dade County includes Miami and 26

Gov. Bob Graham urged rejection of of property taxes per $1,000 assessed the proposal, calling it "too severe."

10.250 on File — All Academic Subjects Send $1.00 for your up-to-date, 306-page mail order catalog.

ACADEMIC RESEARCH

P.O. BOX 24873 LOS ANGELES, CA 90024

ADDRESS

A religious service in opposition to the nuclear arms bazaar now underway in Washington, D. Tonight 7:30, Fuith United Church of Christ

143 S. Allen St. Open Mon. & Fri. till 9 Master Charge & Visa Welcome

Rosh Hashanah

Services

Sept. 21 —7:30, Schwab Aud. Sept. 22 — 9:30 a.m., Eisenhower Aud.

7:30 p.m., Hillel Sept. 23 — 9:30 a.m., Hillel Foundation

Sept. 30 — 7:00 p.m., Eisenhower Aud.

Yom Kippur 5:30 p.m., Hillel

Break the Fast at Hillel 7:30 p.m., $2.00 per person

Kol Nidre

