

McKay cautious over Buc's winning ways

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — After three long years, Coach John McKay of the National Football League's Tampa Bay Buccaneers is back on top. But he's feeling cautious about it.

"You're only as good as your last game," McKay said Monday. Then, with a grin, he added: "But it sure beats losing."

After losing 37 of their first 44 games, the Bucs are off to a 3-0 start this season and are on top of the National Football Conference's Central Division.

But McKay, who coached three national champions at Southern Cal, isn't doing much crowing yet.

"I've had that experience of being 3-0 before," he said. "I can tell you you're scared to death of next week's game."

"The best thing is to be 11-0, go to the Rose Bowl, be 12-0, and don't play 'til next September."

This week may be one of the most exciting in the young franchise's history. All 72,116 seats at Tampa Stadium have been sold for Sunday's game with the Los Angeles Rams, and the Bucs are a hot topic among the news media.

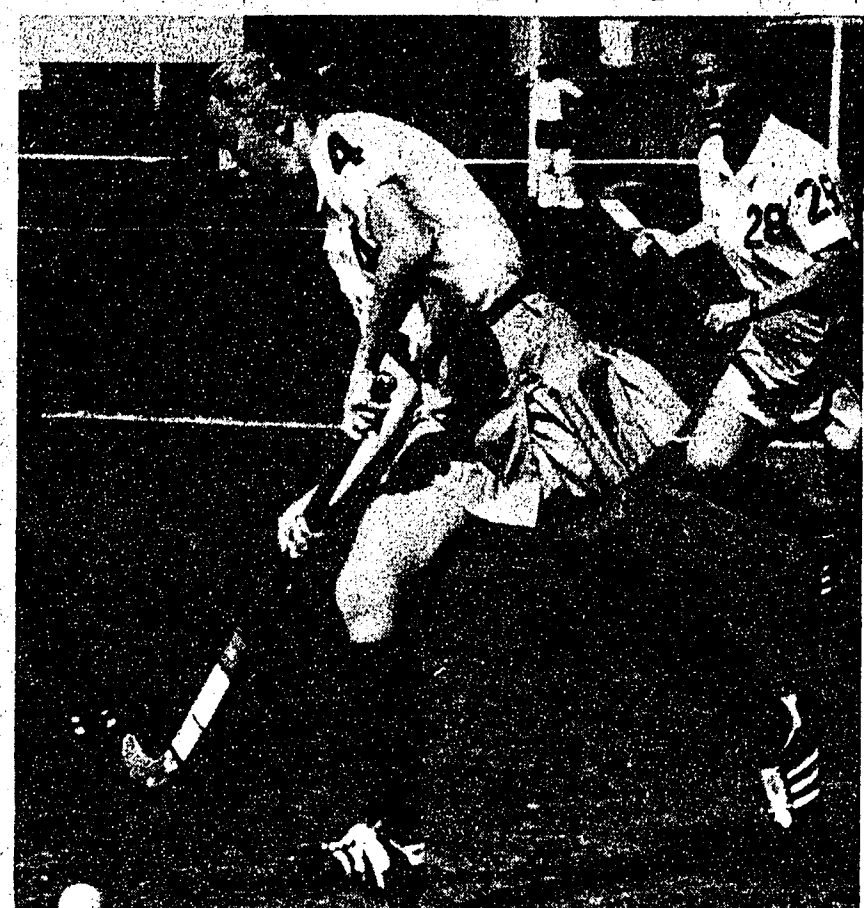

"I used to just sit there like the Maytag repairman," said Rick Odioso, a Bucs

Morett eyes Moscow Olympics

By JUSTIN CANTANOSO
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

Sometime in every athlete's childhood, he or she dreams of becoming an Olympian, of wearing the colors of the United States and basking in all that international hoopla. The dream is so commonplace, it's almost a cliché. Yet only a sparing few possessing a unique blend of unyielding dedication and overwhelming talent find their way out of their dreams and onto the U.S. team.

Former Lady Lion Charlene Morett, a three-time All-American in field hockey and lacrosse, is extremely close to realizing a dream that fires the competitive spirit in thousands of Americans nationwide. Although she excels with both sticks, women's field hockey was being initiated for the 1980 Moscow Games and apparently, that's where Morett will be heading.

Former Lady Lion Charlene Morett, a 1980 U.S. Olympic hopeful in field hockey, is assisting coach Gillian Ratray with this year's team.

"I have five brothers," Morett said, "and where I grew up (Aldan, Pa.), the neighborhood was all boys. For a girl, my athletic ability was pretty good and everybody would say, 'Hey, she'll go to the Olympics.' They were just saying that, but that's where Morett will be heading."

The decision to return to her alma mater was hardly difficult for Morett. "I decided a couple years ago that I wanted to coach at the college level, but I knew I'd need a masters to get a job," she said. "I thought about other schools, but there weren't many that I could get to (coach) field hockey and lacrosse, plus get time off to train if I needed it. When Miss Ratray told me she'd be glad to have me here, I decided this would be the best."

Through coaching this year, she hopes to help the team attain the goal she prized the most as a collegiate competitor.

"In being an assistant coach, I'm not a part of the team, but I feel like it," Morett said. "I feel just as determined as they are to win. When getting beat last year (Temple) was just an experience, I know there's no way they're going to get beat this year."

But nothing, the folks back in Aldan knew what they were talking about. Last June, Morett started at left wing for the gold medal women's field hockey team at the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, Colo. Shortly after the Festival, she was one of 18 women named to the U.S. team to compete in the World Cup Tournament in Vancouver last August, where the Americans placed a surprising third.

Internationally, U.S. women's basketball and track and field have caused foreigners to take notice, but until recently, field hockey brought little glory to the United States.

Even though the majority of the girls playing now were Morett's teammates last year, the transition from player to coach has been a smooth one.

"There's a lot of mutual respect," junior back Sally Scheller said. "Char knows so much about the game and really helps us out. She just knows what we're thinking."

And what the fieldwomen are thinking of is a shot at the national title. Morett remembers how bitterly disappointed she was after last year's disappointing defeat by Temple in the tournament's opening round.

Mullen, in an interview published yesterday in The Atlanta Journal, declined to be specific about which players should be worrying about their jobs with the club. But, he said, "I'm certain we'll make some moves."

Going into last night's game against the Los Angeles Dodgers, the Braves had a record of 59-89, 25 games behind N.L. West leader Cincinnati.

Mullen, who became general manager this year after the death of Bill Lucas, said, "I feel there is enough talent on this ballclub that it won't take many moves. But help is going to have to come in key areas."

Among the positions Mullen discussed were catcher, shortstop and pitcher.

After catching has been very disappointing from the standpoint that we just haven't been able to throw anybody out," said Mullen.

"This is something we're going to have to do something about."

"As for shortstop, I personally am not happy with the overall play of (Pepe) Frias. Granted, he has made some of the greatest plays I've ever seen, but there are just too many plays we don't make in that shortstop area."

Both Feldman and McAvoy, who was interviewed by telephone in Cincinnati, said Mullen had the necessary time and money with which to obtain the advanced ratings in a relatively short period.

FAA says Munson was 'thoroughly qualified' to fly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Records indicate New York Yankee catcher Thurman Munson was a single-engine pilot's license and was qualified to fly the jet in which he was killed in a crash last month, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said yesterday.

FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman responded to remarks by agency investigator Edward McAvoy who said preliminary evidence indicates Munson improperly used the throttle of the $14 million Cessna Citation at the time of the Aug. 2 crash in Canton, Ohio.

Munson obtained a single-engine pilot's license and was qualified to fly the jet in which he was killed in a crash last month, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said yesterday.

FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman responded to remarks by agency investigator Edward McAvoy who said preliminary evidence indicates Munson improperly used the throttle of the $14 million Cessna Citation at the time of the Aug. 2 crash in Canton, Ohio.

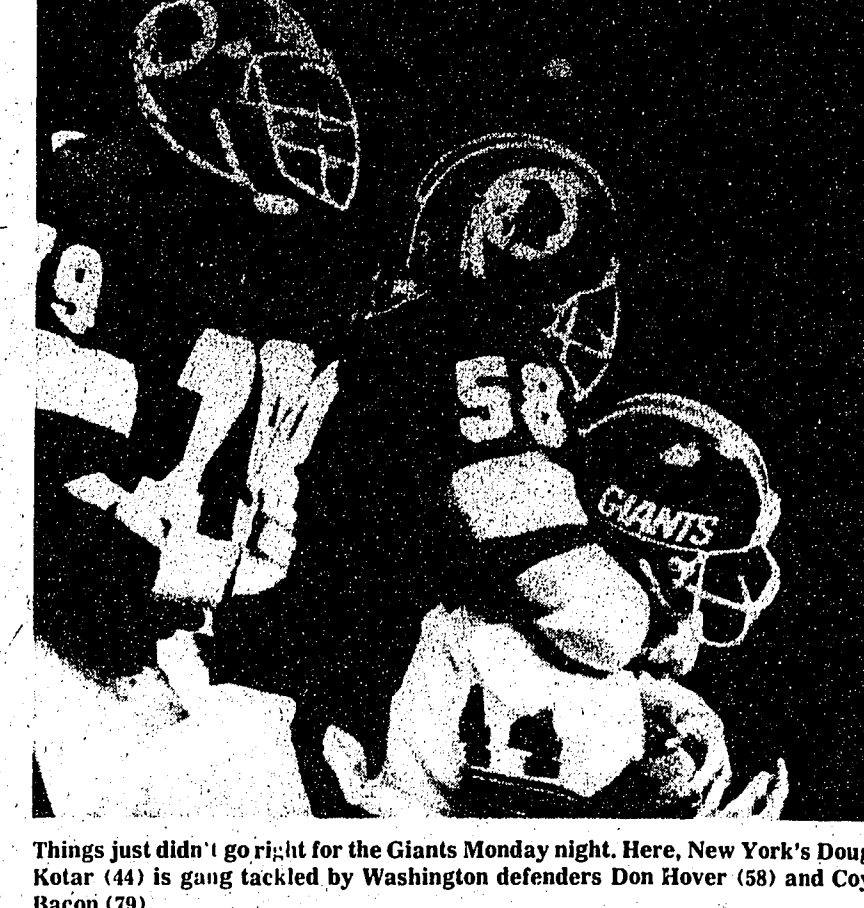

McAvoy criticized the relative ease with which panies which teach people to fly and then license them. "The FAA has designated so much of its authority it's pathetic," McAvoy told The Times.

Feldman said, "In the absence of specifics, we see nothing wrong with the system, which has licensed thousands of thousands of qualified pilots."

Both Feldman and McAvoy, who was interviewed by telephone in Cincinnati, said Mullen had the necessary time and money with which to obtain the advanced ratings in a relatively short period.

Giants aid their own 'Skinning'

Things just didn't go right for the Giants Monday night. Here, New York's Doug Kotar (44) is gaily tackled by Washington defenders Don Hover (58) and Coy Kucan (79).

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins made it look so easy. Then, again, nothing appears difficult against the hapless New York Giants.

For the third week in a row, Washington scored 27 points. They couldn't have done it Monday night on national television without the help of the Giants who came to the Redskins' aid whenever they needed it.

The Redskins won the NFC East game 27-0 on Joe Theismann's 7-yard touchdown run and 4-yard TD pass to Clarence Harmon and defensive end Karl Lorch's 31-return of an intercepted pass for a score. The touchdowns were sandwiched by two Mark Moseley field goals of 46 and 40 yards.

The Giants, however, were cited for eight penalties costing 72 yards, seven of which kept Redskins' drives alive.

To say nothing of the charges and countercharges between New York's Brian Kelley and Gary Jeter and Washington's Benny Malone over biting, kicking and just general talking too much.

Jeter: "I had to hit Malone upside the head. He bit me. He's a cannibal," Kelley, who was cited for kicking Malone: "It's personal between him and me. He was talking. Saying how great he was." Malone: "He Jeter had his hand in my mouth trying to mash my teeth and I bit him. They do all the talking. They all say they're going to get me, get me late, hurt me, ruin my career. I'm not going to let anybody wreck my career."

You've got to take into consideration this wasn't the real Giants' team," said Washington Coach Jack Pardee. Steinbrener said he didn't want to get in the start of a four-game road trip. "Nobody can get an offense together with all the injuries to the offensive line and to the running backs that they've had."

"Next time we face the Giants, it will be a better team," he said.

Maybe, but not if they continue to self-destruct.

"The thing that satisfied me the most was that we weren't on a roller coaster, we weren't up and down," said Pardee. "We were consistent, offensively and defensively."

The Giants, winning in their first three games, didn't have much to say although Coach Ray Perkins commented: "We played 60 minutes of football. I'm proud of that and even though we lost."

Crum: "With Pitt's offense snapping the ball 88 times against Kansas and North Carolina, we've built around the running of Amos Lawrence, points will be put on the scoreboard."

Reportedly wants Jackson traded Martin: Feuding not Yankee way

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson's running feud with owner George Steinbrenner said he didn't want to get involved in the latest controversy which grew out of the Catfish Hunter Day Sunday at Yankee Stadium. Tally was equally close-mouthed.

In Cleveland, where the Yankees played the Indians in a night game, Steinbrenner said he had talked with General Manager Dick Tallis about possible trades — "not just Jackson" — but denied he had specifically put the finger on Reggie.

"I have said that I get tired of picking up the paper every day and seeing a headline about this player saying something about that player or the owner," Martin said.

"It's not the Yankee way. It's disruptive. I don't like it," Steinbrenner, meanwhile, held a drawn-out meeting in his New York headquarters with Tallis. Afterward, Steinbrenner said he didn't want to get involved in the latest controversy which grew out of the Catfish Hunter Day Sunday at Yankee Stadium. Tally was equally close-mouthed.

However, a Yankee source said Martin twice had stormed into Tallis' office in recent days and requested that some provision be made for trading Jackson. Steinbrenner reportedly said he didn't want to get involved in the latest controversy which grew out of the Catfish Hunter Day Sunday at Yankee Stadium. Tally was equally close-mouthed.

Reggie, a teammate with Hunter on Oakland A's championship teams in 1972-73, said he had brought to the stadium a golden replica of the World Series trophy with 26 golden banners appropriately engraved: "World Champions 1972-1973-1974-1977-1978. To Catfish Hunter From Reggie Jackson."

"George wouldn't let me present it on the field," Jackson told the New York Daily News. "I don't know why. I am not trying to be different. I am giving it because Cat and I have been together 10 years."

Steinbrenner did deny that he had nixed Reggie's special act. "I didn't know anything about it," the owner said. "Last week when Reggie Morabito (publicity director) had told me Reggie wanted to present the players' gift to Catfish, I said OK if that's what the players wanted."

Morabito confirmed Steinbrenner's statement. "There were so many gifts to be presented and such little time we had no way to squeeze it in because of the tight time schedule," he said.
