forbidden in guidelines outlined by former Attorney General Edward Levi. But Berman said the proposed charter does not contain such a ban, and that it should because the nation needs a law protecting organizations not doing anything illegal.

Berman's view, presented to the Senate Judiciary Committee, was supported by spokesmen from the Center for National Security Studies, a Washington study group.

in all four cases was believed to be Legionnaires' disease, he said. "All of the 14 confirmed cases involved men between the ages of 29 and 58," Brown said. "They were all veterans. The average age was about 60. Most of the patients had a significant smoking history."

Legionnaires' disease got its name in July 1976 when it struck a large number of persons attending an American Legion meeting in Philadelphia. Brown said many of the cases might have gone unidentified if doctors had not been on the lookout for the disease.

There are 56 nominees, including 37 individuals and 19 organizations, for the prize shared last year by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for their Mideast peace efforts. Observers in Oslo, where the peace prize is awarded, said they consider it unlikely that Carter would win this year for his Camp David summit, which led to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. It was doubtful the award would again be decided over the Mideast issue, they said.

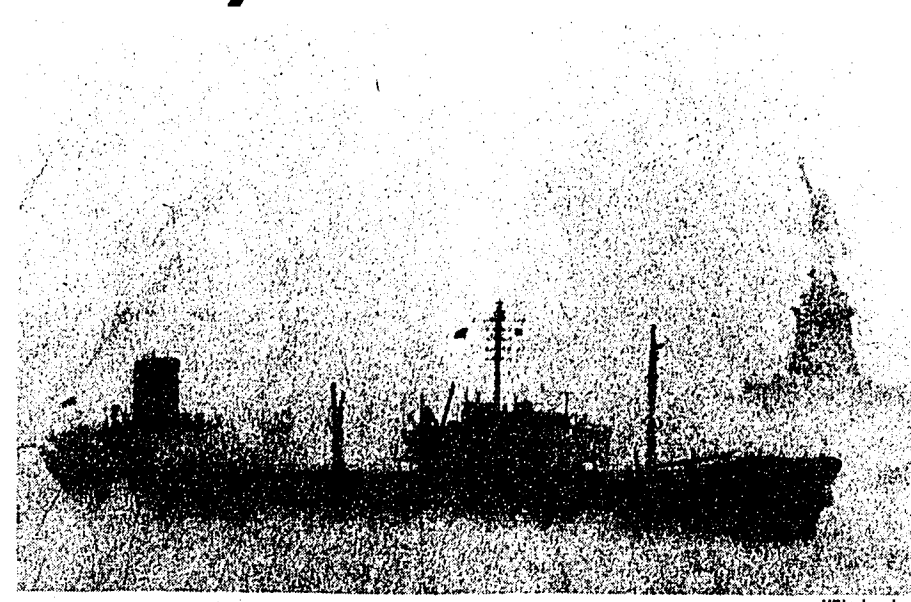

the windfall tax once it captures 90 percent of the revenues projected from it between 1980 and 1990. The revenues will go to the U.S. Treasury. The committee's decision on the education exemption was a setback for New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne and his National Citizens' Coalition for the Windfall Profits Tax, which is pressing for a heavy tax.

Under the present system, inmates sometimes enter a rehabilitation program simply to "put on a good show for the parole board" in order to get out of prison as soon as possible after serving their minimum sentences.

"I'm not saying that an inmate will come out of prison infinitely better (under the new system)," Rhodes said. "That is a myth... obviously prisoners are not schools or hospitals, and they sometimes teach people the worst lessons of criminal behavior."

Rizzo had said earlier that he was giving serious consideration to running for the Senate seat. Three Democrats and two Republicans have announced they will be candidates, or have formed exploratory committees for a campaign for the seat.

Early snow covers East Coast

The Statue of Liberty provides only meager guidance to a ship approaching New York City beset by rain, fog and snow yesterday.

By the Associated Press
An "abnormal" October snowstorm surprised the East Coast yesterday, burying summer's foliage with accumulations up to a foot deep. Homes went dark and schools closed as leaf-laden trees toppled onto power lines.

It was the earliest snowfall of the century in the suburbs of Washington, D.C., where more than 72,000 utility customers lost their power and a layer of slush up to 3 inches deep made driving treacherous.

In West Virginia, where the storm dumped 12 inches in Canaan Valley, the Monongahela Power Co. reported 10,000 to 20,000 persons lost their electricity in several counties when tree limbs snapped under the heavy, wet snow and ripped down power lines.

In Virginia, a power company reported 78,000 customers were without power, including 17,000 in the Harrisonburg area, where the snow was 10 inches deep.

Among the few who benefitted were the ski resorts of New England. The Killington Ski Area at Sherburne, Vt., opened yesterday, the earliest in its history.

Numerous minor accidents were reported on slick roads in several states.

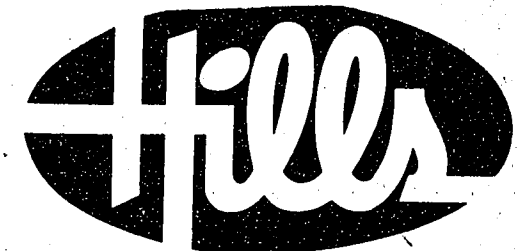

In New York, a school bus carrying 23 high school students crashed into a ditch moving machine during a snowstorm at Pleasant Valley, N.Y. Several students and the bus driver suffered cuts and bruises.

Castro to address U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Ending three days of suspense and rumor, Cuba announced yesterday that President Fidel Castro will fly to New York today to address the U.N. General Assembly as leader of the world's non-aligned nations.

Federal and city security officials made immediate plans to guard against any attempt by anti-Castro Cuban exiles (terrorists to assassinate the bearded leader, the Western Hemisphere's top Communist, Castro will address the assembly Friday.

A coalition of anti-Castro groups said up to 4,000 Cubans will demonstrate outside the United Nations during Castro's speech. A virtual quarantine will be placed around the Communist leader, sealing off entire city blocks from vehicles and pedestrians.

Cuban Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmieca informed the United Nations that Castro would fly to New York today and address the General Assembly Friday for the first time in 18 years.

The exact time of Castro's arrival was kept secret for security reasons, but diplomats speculated it might be in the early morning hours.

An advance party of scores of Cuban officials arrived earlier to look over the U.N. complex and its surroundings and meet with U.N. officials on the details of Castro's two-day visit, said a U.N. spokesman.

Besides the General Assembly speech, the activities may include a separate address to the group of non-aligned nations, a news conference, private talks with diplomats and a reception given by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

An official U.N. spokesman said Castro would speak to the assembly at 11:30 a.m. His speech will last an hour and 15 minutes — far shorter than his 4½ hour address in 1960.

During his two-day visit Castro will reside at the Cuban Mission to the United Nations, the spokesman said. Waldheim

Ford not a candidate, he says

Gerald Ford

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Gerald Ford said yesterday he has discouraged a New Hampshire grocer's efforts to get the Ford name on New Hampshire's presidential primary ballot next year.

"I've written to the gentleman and told him I'm not a candidate, I have no plans to be a candidate and he should abide by that," Ford said at a news conference.

The grocer is attempting to get Ford's name on the 1980 New Hampshire ballot through citizen petitions.

"If I were a candidate, my credibility on the issues would be undercut," Ford said. Asked if he would accept a draft for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, Ford replied: "I've never ducked a responsibility. If that extremely remote possibility took place, I'd feel obligated."

In Washington, sources said Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling will announce Friday he is forming a national campaign to draft Ford for the nomination. A Ford aide in Palm Spring, Calif., said the former president had heard of Snelling's plans, but was not cooperating with them.
