Homeless icers set to defend league title

What's the only athletic team at Penn State that can win a league championship but still cannot call University Park home?

Well, it's the men's ice hockey team. This season's team, like the 1978-79 squad, will practice and play its games in Mechanicsburg, 98 miles south of campus.

New coach Mark Horgas said, "It puts tremendous sacrifices on the players. Every Friday and Saturday is shot from now until the end of March because we have to travel so far to practice on weekends."

"This is the most responsibility placed upon me," Horgas said, "but I don't foresee many difficulties."

Last year's team posted a 13-5-1 record on its way to capturing the championship in a five-team league that consists of Villanova, Drexel, West Chester and Delaware.

Horgas said he expects Villanova and Delaware to be Penn State's toughest competitors this season. Besides the league teams, the hockey team will face off against Lehigh, Fordham, Penn's J.V., and Navy.

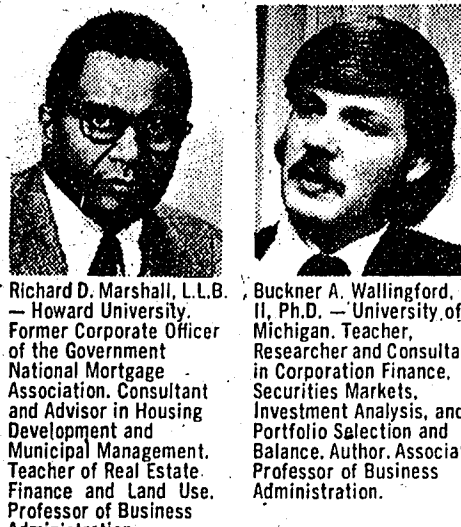

Sizing up the team's strengths, Horgas said, "Basically, we have everybody back. We lost three seniors, but we're loaded."

"That has to be an added advantage," player Tom Horgas said. "It usually takes time for a team to jell. The team should be in better overall shape."

Emotion on Mountaineers' side

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Pitt has the edge in size, speed, record and ability, concedes West Virginia University Coach Frank Cignetti.

But when his Mountaineers play Pitt, their oldest and dearest rival on Saturday, Cignetti says West Virginia will get an advantage — emotion.

"I know the atmosphere for this game will be incredible. It should be super," Cignetti said. He was referring to the fact that the 34,000-seat Mountaineer Field, where the Mountaineers have played for the past 55 years, will no longer be used for games after Saturday.

"Our players, coaches and fans look forward to the Pitt game more than any other," Cignetti said. "And we'll be playing for the last time in a stadium that has produced a lot of exciting memories. We will be out there to add one more."

But Cignetti concedes that's easier said than done. The 12th-ranked Panthers are 7-1 and have won six games in a row. West Virginia (5-4) has won five of its last six, including a 34-23 come-from-behind win over Virginia Tech last week, in which the Mountaineers trailed 23-0 at the half.

Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill said he fears West Virginia will get an emotional and a psychiatric lift from the partisan Mountaineer Field crowd. He said the Mountaineers got such a lift in 1975, when WVU scored a stunning 17-14 upset over the Panthers on Bill McKeen's last-second field goal.

"It will be 20 times worse Saturday than it was in 1975," said Sherrill, who was an assistant to then Pitt coach Johnny Majors that season.

Tony Constantine, a veteran Morgantown sportswriter who has seen every game played in Mountaineer Field since it was opened in 1924, except for one, said the 1975 game was the most exciting ever played in the stadium.
