

Fire company starts new phone information service

By LISA HILL
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

A new telephone service providing fire safety information to people in the Central Region — the first of its kind in the area — was started yesterday by the Alpha Fire Co.

"There is no other service like this on the East Coast," said Tom Hand, chairman of the Fire Prevention Committee of the Alpha Fire Co.

The service, called STOP (Safety Tips on Protection from Fires), was designed by Alpha's Fire Prevention Committee to answer fire safety questions on topics ranging from precautionary measures to installation of wood burning stoves, Hand said.

Callers can contact STOP by dialing 237-8270. After listening to a brief introductory message, the caller should identify himself and ask his question, Hand said.

Questions will be recorded by an answering machine and checked by the committee. A return call to answer the question will be made by a committee member, he said.

STOP was unveiled at Alpha's second annual open house last weekend held in recognition of National Fire Prevention Week.

Other displays at the open house included: a safety program, "Learn Not to Burn," coal and wood burning stoves; boating safety; and fire extinguishers. Alpha's fire fighting apparatus was also displayed.

The fire company provided opportunities for visitors to extinguish a small fire with a portable fire extinguisher.

Police report Pizza Hut robbed

The State College Police Department said an armed robbery took place at the Pizza Hut, 2609 E. College Ave., 1 a.m. Saturday.

Police said a white male wearing jeans, a tan down parka and sunglasses entered the store and pointed a canister filled with an unknown substance at a cashier. The man took an unknown amount of money, police said.

University Police Services said someone defaced on the Nittany Lion statue, then poured French dressing on it and wrapped it in toilet paper early Saturday morning.

Timothy Doyle, 736 E. Foster Ave., told State College police a briefcase, chain saw, circular saw and other tools were stolen from his car on Saturday. Police estimated the value of the items at $388.

Vanessa Thompson, 520 Curtin, told University police her jacket was stolen from her dormitory room. Police estimated the value of the jacket at $45.

Mary Snodgrass, 217 E. Nittany Ave., told State College police a man on the fire escape next to her apartment was looking in her window yesterday.

Richard Wenzel, 725 Beaver, told University police his jeans, wallet and watch were stolen from his dormitory room on Sunday. Police estimated the value of the items at $306.

Car rocked by Phillie fanatics

A car driven by a State College woman was damaged early yesterday morning by a crowd of people celebrating the Philadelphia Phillies' victory in the last game of the National League playoffs, the State College Police Department said.

Bernadette Lewis said she was driving east on Beaver Avenue on her way home from work when she saw a crowd of people in the street. She said a policeman waved at her with a flashlight to slow down, but did not tell her to turn around or stop.

Lewis said damage to her car was estimated between $300 and $500.

about 12:45 a.m. and began to rock it, she said.

"I really got scared," she said. Lewis said she began to beep her horn and race her engine to try to scare the people away. The crowd began to kick and pound on her car, she said.

"I was prepared and scared enough to keep on driving, right over people," Lewis said. "That's a pretty terrible feeling."

Lewis said damage to her car was estimated between $300 and $500.

McCarthy to participate in presidency discussion

By LYNDA ROBINSON
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

Former Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, an independent presidential candidate in 1968 and 1976, will participate in a panel discussion on the modern presidency at 8 tonight in 102 Forum.

McCarthy will be joined by two professors of American history — Robert K. Murray of Penn State and Frank Freidel of Harvard. They will discuss the past experiences and future prospects of the modern presidency.

The panel discussion is part of a conference on "The State of the Presidency: A Modern Perspective," sponsored by the University history department and the Institute for the Arts and Humanities Studies.

The purpose of the conference is "to interest students in the state of the presidency at this moment and examine what direction it will take in the future," conference coordinator Richard Garner said.

Two lectures on the presidency also are scheduled. Freidel will speak about the legacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidency at 8 tomorrow night in 112 Kern.

Murray will speak on "Presidential Greatness: The Ratings Game," at 8 p.m. Oct. 22 in 112 Kern.

In addition to the panel discussion tonight, McCarthy will speak to a combined political science and American studies class at 11:10 tomorrow morning in 105 Ferguson.

At 8:30 tomorrow night McCarthy will give a poetry reading in 111 Forum.
