

Golfwomen finish 17th at Lady Tarheel tourney

Sometimes the saying "patience is a virtue" doesn't always hold true. Especially when you have to wait three weeks to face any competition.

The women's golf team had not faced any competition since Oct. 11, when it captured the Eastern Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championships, prior to this weekend's Lady Tarheel Invitational in Chapel Hill, N.C.

And the long layoff may have been a factor as the Lady Lions placed 17th among a 27-team field.

In light of the team's gradual improvement throughout the fall campaign, Penn State coach Annette Thompson said she was disappointed with the Lady Lions' performance.

"We just didn't get our scores in the 70s," Thompson said. "Our scores didn't improve from last year."

Lady spikers confident in home stretch; face Pitt tonight at home

By BOB GROVE
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

Junior All-American Ellen Crandall arrived at the women's volleyball team's practice yesterday just as her teammates began a light jog around Rec Hall's South Gym. And as she changed her shoes, her teammates kidded her about when she would join them.

"This week will have a big effect on everything," junior Jan Mosier said. "It's not us winning or losing, it's how we play together. We didn't play together at all Friday."

Almost as quickly as she confessed that running was not one of her favorite activities, Crandall had her shoes on and had joined her teammates, who had decided to wait for her by jogging in place nearby. Many of them were laughing as Crandall caught up, and assistant coach Carol Ford just shook her head and smiled.

Maybe Crandall didn't like that feeling of being left behind by a team that firmly believes it will soon realize its year-long goal of being on a plane headed for Santa Barbara, Calif., and the national championships early next month.

Despite the fact that coach Russell Rose said they have not played well for almost three weeks and that they have lost their last two matches, the Lady Lions remain confident they will play their best volleyball three weeks from now at the regional championships. The Pittsburgh Lady Panthers, probably the only legitimate threat to spoil Penn State's plans, will play a visit to the Lady Lions at 7 tonight at Rec Hall to play a match that may well illustrate how successful their plans will be.

"It has a lot going for it," Rose said. "But obviously, they're not unbeatable. We've got some good competitors here. I don't have to get them pumped up—the motivation to compete is already there."

"Now, mentally, they should be concerned because they're not playing well. But it could be just a kind of slump. I still think we can win the regionals."

The Lady Lions' only victory against Pittsburgh this season came at Rec Hall in the finals of the Penn State Classic. A repeat of that performance, Rose said, might be just what his team needs to bring it out of its "slump."

"A lot will depend on (tonight)," he said. "If we win, we'll have added confidence. We'll be able to believe in ourselves just a little more. If we don't win, it will just give Pitt that much more confidence."

Rose was quick to say, however, that he wasn't thinking in those terms—a statement which should come as no surprise to anyone who has watched his team collect 25 victories this season.
