

Easter Bunny Lydia Holdsworth (9th-elementary education) offers a goodie-laden basket to one of the children from Wingate Head Start Program at yesterday's "Easter Kindness" party hosted by Chi Omega sorority.

Preschool Easter party

By LAURA MULLITY
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

The sisters of Chi Omega sorority hosted 26 preschoolers from the Wingate Head Start program yesterday afternoon at an Easter party, complete with games, an Easter egg hunt and, of course, the Easter Bunny.

"It's really good for the kids to get out like this. A lot of these children are really isolated. Even coming to State College is a big treat."

—Brenda Kerns, family involvement associate of the Head Start program

The 4- and 5-year-olds from low-income families were treated to an Easter story, a game of "Bunny Says" and a rendition of "Little Rabbit Foo-Foo" by the Easter Bunny, Lydia Holdsworth (9th-elementary education).

Chi Omega members have participated in many similar events in conjunction with other fraternities and sororities, but "Easter Kindness" was sponsored solely by their sorority, Gennaria said.

Drug, alcohol program budget cut

By PHIL EVANS
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

Cuts in the Centre County Drug and Alcohol program budget for the next year will force county programs to stretch to the limit, CCDA Specialist Michael J. Barrett said yesterday.

The 1981-82 budget approved by the County Commissioners contains cuts of about 20 percent as compared with 1980-81, Barrett said.

This cut has forced the CCDA to cut funding for the programs it contracts out.

The CCDA program provides treatment, prevention and intervention services for anyone with an alcohol or drug problem.

"I welcome the cuts in a way if they cut down on red tape," Barrett said. "But, the programs still have to be accountable for what they do."

Losses in funding for programs such as the On Drugs intervention program have already decreased county-wide service.

Counseling Services Inc., located in Bellefonte and designed to provide outpatient counseling to individuals, families and groups, also received a partial budget cut.

Program Director Robert Gibson said his budget of about $40,000 was cut for the coming year by 3 percent or about $1,300.

"The cut makes it more difficult to provide a diversity in service," he said.

The cuts will not affect the services the program directly provides, but extra services such as traveling to follow-up on patients will be lost, he said.

"It's like losing 10 pounds," Gibson said. "You can still get by with the same pants, but the fit just isn't the same."

Gibson also said the loss of funds could force his program and others like it to serve unwillingly more people who can pay for their treatment with insurance than those whose cannot afford treatment.

Inpatient Hospital Services, which provides medical detoxification for clients, was cut by 3 percent for 1981-82, Barrett said.

Barrett said he could not provide dollar figures for the cuts.

On the county level, the budget cut may also hinder services by making Centre County a training ground for caseworkers who eventually will move to Harrisburg, he said.

Barrett said county employees are paid $3,000 less than those on the state level and have 60 fewer paid sick days than state workers.

He said his program is also hurt by the budget cut because county employees are civil servants and therefore are eligible for yearly pay raises if their performance has been satisfactory.

NOW FANNY IS EVEN HARDER TO RESIST. SHE'S IN PAPERBACK.

FANNY, that bawdy, sensuous heroine of Erica Jong's latest bestseller, has seduced readers as well as reviewers from coast to coast.

The New York Times Book Review calls FANNY "an explosion, a surge of literary energy. Erica Jong has taken a quantum leap beyond her earlier fictions, FEAR OF FLYING and HOW TO SAVE YOUR OWN LIFE... an entertaining novel but also a novel of ideas... a prodigious work of fiction."

The Philadelphia Inquirer raves "I laughed all the way through... FANNY is superb." And the New York News Says FANNY is "a good-humored romp on the wild side of life in early 18th-century England. It's

PennDOT to 'Keep Pennsylvania Beautiful'

By DENNIS SNYDER
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

The mention of the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation often brings thoughts of winter, snowplows and potholes to mind. But come April 25, PennDOT will be more concerned with glass, paper and tin as it sponsors its annual "Keep Pennsylvania Beautiful Day" campaign.

The campaign, designed to clean litter from state highways, is open to anyone interested in participating.

Thomas Ickes, department engineer for the Clearfield district, including Centre County, said the department's goal is to have 30,000 volunteers picking up litter this year.

"Litter and debris removal from Pennsylvania highways is big business," Ickes said. "Litter pickup on our state highways alone cost nearly $2 million last year."

Ickes said coordinators have been named for each of the nine county maintenance offices in the district.

Volunteers can sign up now with the department through the county coordinators, who will assign work areas and provide volunteers with orange safety vests and litter bags. The coordinator for Centre County is Paul Wood, East Bishop Street, Bellefonte.

Wood said the campaign is an offshoot of the national "Keep America Beautiful" campaign, and has grown in popularity, especially with local youth groups like the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

However, Wood stressed that it is not just limited to the young.

"We'd like to see as many people as possible participate," Wood said.

Frank Yacubucci, community relations coordinator for the Clearfield district office, said he would like to see more participation from University students than he has seen in the past. He said fraternities and sororities could get involved.

"College students can do their part, too," Yacubucci said.

Dennis McHugh, a member of Eco-Action, said that while Eco-Action endorses the clean-up campaign, the project does not solve the problem of litter prevention. McHugh said the people who are cleaning up the litter are not the same people who are causing it.

"The individual who throws the object out the window is the one who is responsible," McHugh said. "The source of the problem is the throw-away mentality everyone has."

McHugh said he would like to see more peer pressure put on those who litter and also more recycling. He also said mandatory deposits and returns on glass bottles could be a possible solution.

People would be less likely to throw objects away if they had put deposits on them or could get money for returning them, he said.

"All glass is recyclable," McHugh said. "Why are we waiting around when you can mandate a bottle bill (a mandatory bottle return policy)?"
