

Textile win sends Lion booters packing

By STEVE GRAHAM
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

Perhaps it was only fitting that the men's soccer team complete its somewhat maligned season with a shutout loss in the City of Brotherly Love.

Philadelphia is not only the place where Penn State coach Walt Bahr was reared on the game of soccer, it is also the home of Philadelphia Textile, the nation's third-ranked team that put an abrupt end to the Lions' season with a 2-0 victory Nov. 21.

At game time, the atmosphere was anything but brotherly love between these two Eastern soccer powers. Ironically, Textile All-American Tom McDonald, brother of Penn State defender Bill McDonald, scored what proved to be the game-winning goal when he blasted a shot past Lion goalkeeper Greg Kenney with about 35 minutes left.

For the Lions (15-6-1), it was a game they would just as soon forget about. And for Penn State senior midfielder Duncan MacEwan, it wasn't the best way to finish an otherwise illustrious career.

"It was a sad note to go out on," said MacEwan, who added that he hadn't been pleased with his play all year. "It was typical of the whole season. We were just stale, that's all. It's got to be a disappointment. Coach (Bahr) may not think so."

Although Bahr did not put it in the same terms as MacEwan, he was a little dejected that the Lions' season did not live up to what he had hoped.

"It's always easy to be the Monday-morning coach," Bahr said. "Two of the losses (3-2 to Lock Haven and 2-1 to William & Mary). I definitely think we could have changed the results. Two of the losses were toss-ups."

Perhaps the loss to Textile (15-1-1) was one of those toss-ups. In what had been a typical scenario all season, Penn State had the opportunity to draw first blood, but it couldn't capitalize. It was only a matter of time before the Rams scored a goal on their home field.

"In the first half," Bahr said, "I thought we played well enough to maybe be a goal up. At halftime, I thought we were going to get a goal or two."

"I just thought Textile had a better second half. We seemed to be a little flat in the second half. As a coach, you wonder what happened."

What happened was that the Lions produced very few scoring chances after halftime. It's had enough when a team doesn't convert on its opportunities, but it's even worse when a team cannot set up many attempts to score a goal.

"I really didn't think we created a whole lot," MacEwan said. "At the end of the first half, the game was ours for the taking."

Tom McDonald's goal took away even the slightest hopes of the Lions' advancing to the quarterfinals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. Then, about 16 minutes later, Ram defender Steve Perillo took a pass from Sean Fryatt and knocked in an insurance goal to lift Textile to the Mid-Atlantic Soccer Championship.

"The goalkeeper didn't have a chance on either goal," agreed Bahr, placing part of the blame on the Lion defense. "They were goals that we normally would have stopped. The second goal was the type of thing where we had control of the ball and lost it."

Shortly before Perillo's score, the Lions could see the writing on the wall. Greg Dennis, one of the mainstays of Penn State's highly-touted defense, was ejected from the game after a skirmish with a Ram player.

"It was probably my fault," Dennis said. "I kind of lost my cool. It was an ignorant thing to do. It was a stupid thing to do."

As a result, the Lions had to play shorthanded the rest of the game. But even that factor, Bahr and MacEwan agreed, didn't determine the outcome of the game.

Gerry Moyer

"After Greg went off, we kind of buckled up a bit," MacEwan said. "We thought, 'Well, we've got it all to now.'"

Now, the Lions have nothing to do. No sooner had they been invited to participate in the tournament, they've been ushered out of it.

But of course, there's always next year.

Cornell poses no threat as wrestlers open season

By PETE WALDRON
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

After a sixth-place finish at the NCAA Wrestling Championships at Princeton last year and an 11-6 record overall, Penn State, under fourth-year coach Rich Lorenzo, will hit the mats at 7:30 tonight at Rec Hall for its season opener against Cornell.

Nittany Lion captain John Hanrahan, a third-place finisher last year at the NCAA tournament at 167 and the winningest Penn State wrestler (33-6-0) last year, is anxious for this season to open.

"I am definitely looking forward to tonight's opener with Cornell," Hanrahan said. "One of the best things in wrestling is competing in front of a crowd. Tonight will be a good way to get geared up for the weekend tournament (Penn State Invitational)."

Filling the ranks for the Lions tonight will be sophomore Carl Des- tefanis at 118, sophomore transfer from the U.S. Naval Academy, Scott Lynch at 126, junior Bill Marino at 134, freshman Gary Kaschak at 142 and sophomore transfer from Bloomsburg Eric Childs at 150.

Also competing will be Eric Bru- gel, a freshman from State College, at 158, Hanrahan at 167, sophomore Bob Harr or freshman Steve Smith at 177, junior Joel Johnson, Penn State's recipient of the Kaye Vinton Award as most improved wrestler, at 190 and senior Jim Sleeper at heavyweight.

Cornell is expected to go with John Pappas at 118, David Chae — a former national prep champ from Livingston, N.J., — at 126, Mark Harbold at 134, Marty Heslin at 142, Mike Mankowich or Steve Snyder at 150, Dean Colucci at 158, Ken Griffin at 167, Bob Wirth or Terry Ken at 177, Bill Herz at 189 and Keith Hemp- ster or Charlie Brown at heavy- weight.

Although Cornell should pose no threat, Hanrahan said the Lions cannot take them lightly.

"The coaches told us it would really make their (Cornell's) season if they beat us," Hanrahan said. "They've probably been working hard trying to adjust to the Penn State style of wrestling."

"I imagine they have scouted us heavily and they would love to knock us off. It's going to be a good match — a good fight."

TAKE DOWNS: Hanrahan said senior Bob Bury, a NCAA qualifier for the past two years and former Lion co-captain, will redshirt this season.

Women harriers 10th at NCAAs

By CLINT LOPER
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

Youth prevailed in Wichita last Monday as the Virginia Cavaliers rolled to an easy victory in the women's cross country NCAA national championships.

Led by standout performer Allen O'Connor and a bunch of under- classmen, Virginia tallied a team score of 36 points, bettering Oregon (83), Stanford (165), Michigan State (122), North Carolina State (123) and eight other schools. There were no seniors on the top three squads.

Penn State finished a disappointing 10th, with 249 points.

Heather Carmichael, the fastest of the Lady Lions, finished 48th, more than 70 seconds off the pace.

She was followed closely by team- mate Patty Murnane, who was one of Penn State's top three runners all season, finished 84th (sixth among Lady Lions), and Miley finished 90th (seventh).

Schwartz said his team's lack of experience was probably a factor.

"When freshmen come into a big meet like this," he said, "they're going to be nervous. They're going to be nervous about the importance of the meet and they're going to be nervous about all the other runners and don't do so well."

Obviously Gerken and Miley looked around too much.

"I think I'm capable of running better than I did," said Gerken, who confessed to being scared by the size of the meet. "I hope so."

Miley said she felt the same way about herself.

Although Virginia won easily, Schwartz was not positive the Atlantic Coast Conference school had the best talent.

"They are very well-coached and they've got some tough kids," the coach said. "But Stanford's got good talent, too, and a lot of freshmen."

Arizona's Joan Hanson, who was third last year and favored to win by

Lady Lions capture back-to-back titles

Continued from Page 15.

"And I'm very pleased it was such a decisive win. We obviously dominated." Temple capitalized on its only shot of the game when Elaine Turchi took a pass from the right side and converted it into a goal with seven minutes gone in the first half.

Two minutes later, Finn sent a pass from Brenda Stauffer in on the right side and it was all Penn State from then on.

Tracy Houston found the opening on the netminder's right and pushed two goals in to give the Lady Lions a 3-1 lead and some insurance for the second half.

With 15 minutes left to play, Stauffer and Mahaffey brought the ball in after a corner and Finn fired it for the score. Seconds later, Stauffer blasted a shot by the upper right of the goalie on a penalty stroke for the final goal.

"This win was different from last year's," defensive back Cindy Meehan said. "It was as sweet as the second time around. It was not as big a deal. There was no ceremony before the game, and the rain was unbelievable. Then we rushed off the field. We didn't have time to celebrate as a team."

"We also know for a while that we were going to win. It was not as intense a game; it was more relaxed. But it's still great to beat Temple and prove we belonged there."

But Penn State's finest hour came in the semifinals against Iowa, a team it shut out earlier this season. Iowa also boasted a 23-4 record and the Big Ten championship.

But Finn scored twice and Houston once, and Stauffer tallied three assists and ended the game with another goal on the penalty stroke.

"We played a great game," Meehan said. "That was the best game we ever played. I think that gave us the confidence we needed to beat Temple."

Finn said ying Sharon Tinucci's father put the game into perspective.

"He said, 'You guys just dissected them.' We couldn't do anything wrong. Our passing was unbelievable."

Likewise, Rattray said they played a "picture-perfect game, we just clicked as a team."

The Lady Lions played just well enough to win, but no better, against seventh-ranked Dartmouth in the first round. They led 2-0 at the half, then sat on their lead but kept their opposition off the board.

"Sometimes we expect more of ourselves than we should," Finn said. "We were looking ahead to Iowa, saying just win this one because tomorrow will be tough."

Winning the championship also marked the finale of Finn's illustrious field hockey career. Though she made the All-American team, along with Stauffer, Finn decided not to play in the All-American tournament.

"I've retired from hockey," said Penn State's all-time leading scorer. "I'm happy with what I've done. I've done it at the beginning of the season, I had two things left and I've done them. I was working towards All-Americans and now this. It was a really super win."

The beginning of the season held many dreams for Rattray, and at first they were only that.

"I never even dreamed we could re- peat," she said. "We literally had four regular season starters back."

But what started as a rebuilding year ended with the championship. And to top it all off, the victory in the title game marked Rattray's 100th career win as Penn State's field hockey and lacrosse coach.

"The joke is I honestly didn't know," she said. "Then with one minute left, (they) told me, so I smiled and watched the puddles again. That's not as important as the game and how we played it." Maybe not, but it's a nice touch.

SIDELINES: Finn, Stauffer, and Houston all made All-Championship team at the tournament. Connecticut, beat Massachusetts, ranked No. 1 in the nation, 2-1 in the NCAA championship game.

Women spikers on course for NCAA encounter

By PETE WALDRON
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

It makes no difference what time of the year it is — fall, winter or spring — when returning to Happy Valley after any type of recess the same old question is always thrown around. You know, the easy conversation starter — "How was your break?"

Well, women's volleyball coach Russ Rose could not evade the million dollar question this time. In fact, he was more than willing to answer it.

When freshmen come into a big meet like this," he said, "they're going to be nervous. They're going to be nervous about the importance of the meet and they're going to be nervous about all the other runners and don't do so well."

Obviously Gerken and Miley looked around too much.

"I think I'm capable of running better than I did," said Gerken, who confessed to being scared by the size of the meet. "I hope so."

Miley said she felt the same way about herself.

Although Virginia won easily, Schwartz was not positive the Atlantic Coast Conference school had the best talent.

"They are very well-coached and they've got some tough kids," the coach said. "But Stanford's got good talent, too, and a lot of freshmen."

Arizona's Joan Hanson, who was third last year and favored to win by for the seniors and are looking forward in representing Penn State the best we can.

"NCAAs are more of a reward to the team for what it has accomplished all season. But no matters what happens — win or lose — the girls will always be winners to me."

However, there was one sour note preceding the national bid announcement. Earlier in the week the Lady Lions traveled to Evanston, Ill., where they split two dual matches with Northwestern. Penn State won the first match 15-8, 15-12, 12-15, 15-10 but the Lady Wildcats came back strong to take the second match easily, 15-4, 15-4, 15-8.

Rose did not hold the same excitement he had when speaking about the NCAAs.

"Northwestern played a flawless second match," Rose said. "We played with a lot of confidence the day before, but it seemed they made some good adjustments. We took it to them the first time, but they came back fired up."

Despite the setback at Northwestern, Lady Lion captain Ellen Crandall had no reservations about talking of her break.

"I think it is great that we are going to nationals," Crandall said, "and I am psyched to play at home. I think we could have done better at Northwestern. If we won both matches we would have had a bye in the first rounds."

"But just getting a bid is great. And I would rather play Sunday than not at all. I think it is going to take a real team effort to win NCAAs."

If the Lady Lions win this weekend, they will play fourth-seeded University of Pacific Dec. 12th at North- western. That winner will then battle the winner of the Northwestern (seeded 12th) — Cal Poly San Luis Obispo (fifth) on Dec. 13th for the regional championship. Winners will advance to the semi-finals and finals on Dec. 18th and 20th, respectively, at UCLA.

I UNDER THE NET: This is the second straight time Penn State has received a bid to a national tournament. Last season, Penn State finished 13th in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Championships.

JOHN HENRY SHIRTS FINE NECKWEAR
MICHAEL'S CLOTHING CO.
for gentlemen
FRASER ST. MINI MALL 238-4050
OPEN DAILY FROM 10-5

2 Ric's Roast Beef
for $3.00
(Regularly $2.50)
301 S. Allen St.
on the Atrium
Offer good thru 12/7/81

Cross Country Ski Sale
30 • 50% OFF
epoke *BONNA
SILVERLIN Alps
PEDALS
321 East Beaver Ave. Open Thurs. & Fri. 'til 8:00 237-5981

the Scorpion
832 W. Calder Way
Proudly Presents
"DADDY LICKS"
Rock 'n Roll from Allentown, PA
TONITE ONLY
(Catch HRB & Billy Price next Wed.)

Education is an end in itself.

PEDALS
321 East Beaver Ave. Open Thurs. & Fri. 'til 8:00 237-5981

THE COLLEGE OF SCIENCE STUDENT COUNCIL
WILL MEET THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3rd
7:30 p.m. 221 Boucke to discuss Winter Term activities
Everyone Welcome

THE HOLIDAY HAIRCUT
ASK FOR JULIE DESMOND
at The Golden Comb
234 E. College Ave.
237-1881

THE STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION will hold an organizational meeting on Thursday, Dec. 3, 1981 at 7:00 p.m. in the Living Center, Human Dev. Building
PROGRAM: REGISTRATION THROUGH THE 3 YEAR PRE-PLANNED PROGRAM

This is your first chance to get involved in college.

Specifically we're looking for freshmen and sophomores who have the desire to work in advertising. If you enjoy sales, marketing, creative advertising, or have a special artistic talent, we might have a position for you.

We're The Daily Collegian, Penn State's student newspaper, voted the most progressive newspaper in the United States. Offering you the chance to meet new people and develop new skills.

If this sounds good to you, come in and fill out an application. Be sure to tell us what area you would like to work in.

For more information, contact Paul Rudoy, Sales Manager at 865-2531.

You can't get experience like this anywhere else on campus.

the Collegian and the Collegian
126 Carnegie Building, University Park, PA

Two Dollars Off!
Any 16" 2-item or more pizza. One coupon per pizza. Expires: 12/7/81
234-5655
421 Rear E. Beaver Ave.

One Dollar Off!
Any size pizza. One coupon per pizza. Expires: 12/7/81
234-5655
421 Rear E. Beaver Ave.

Free Mushrooms
Free mushrooms on any 16" large pizza. One coupon per pizza. Expires: 12/1/81. With a value of $1.25
234-5655
421 Rear E. Beaver Ave.

Regular Roses!
$5.66 dozen
Cash and Carry
Woodrings
South Allen St. 236-0569

TONIGHT Menagerie
7 for 1 from 4-8 p.m.
No Cover!
THE SABLEWOOD
101 HILBERT ST.
Serving Pops-Coke

HAD MONO RECENTLY?
If you have had mononucleosis in the past few months, you may have developed antibodies to this disease. These antibodies can be used as controls for MONO TESTING. If you qualify we will pay $50.00 for a PASMIA DONATION. Please call or come in for details.
Hours: Mon-Thurs. 8-6:30 p.m. Fridays 8-3:30 p.m.
SERA-TEC BIOLOGICALS
Rear 120 South Allen 237-5761

Regular Roses!
$5.66 dozen
Cash and Carry
Woodrings
South Allen St. 236-0569

The Pathfinder going out of business sale
*Up to 50% Savings
Everything Must Be Sold!

Gigantic Savings on: Men's & Women's Sweaters
by Robert Bruce, Cambridge, Crazy Horse

Outerwear
by North Face, Woolrich, Sierra Designs and Levi

Flannel Chamois and Wool Shirts
Insulated Boots and Hiking Boots by Herman, Wolverine, Timberland
Plus: Tents, Packs, Sleeping Bags, Knives, Hats, Gloves, Socks and More

Up to 50% Savings
All Sales Absolutely Final

137 E. Beaver Ave.
Hours: 9:30-9:00 Daily
Open Saturday 9:30-5:30

the Pathfinder