

Brad Rush (7) and the ice hockey team will face off against Division II power Cortland State in the Lions' toughest match of the season, at 9:15 tonight and at 8 tomorrow night in the Indoor Sports Complex.

Icercers host top Division II foe

By PAUL ALEXANDER
Daily Collegian Sports Writer
With the beginning of Winter Term and a few patches of snow on the ground, it seems appropriate that the ice hockey team will face its toughest opponent to date when it hosts Division II power, Cortland State, tonight at 9:15 and tomorrow night at 8 in the Indoor Sports Complex.
The Lions have hopes of an undefeated season shattered at Canisius on Nov. 14 by the score of 6-4.
"Everything that could've gone wrong did," Penn State tri-captain Joe Battista said. "We came out flat and we weren't playing our aggressive style of hockey."
"It was our first poor performance. I don't want to offer any excuses, but the long trip and final exams sort of had the team down."
But the Lions came right back the next day to defeat an equally talented Erie College team, 7-4.
"The markings of a good team is the ability to come back and that's exactly what we did against Erie," Battista said.
Sophomore Clark Dexter has scored two goals in each of Penn State's last three games and is really playing great hockey, Battista said.
By the same token, Battista, after gaining three points last weekend, has now scored 37 career points and quite possibly this weekend could become the first defenseman in Penn State history to score 100 points.
The Lions are now 7-1 and have already entered into the crucial part of a very demanding schedule. Cortland State may very well be the Lions' toughest opponent this season and there certainly isn't any love lost between the two teams.
Last year the Lions traveled to Cortland State and surprised everybody when they managed a 4-4 deadlock. The next day, however, was a different story. The Lions lost the game 6-1, but held their own in what resembled a free-for-all brawl.
The Lions aren't looking for any bravado this weekend, but a hard-fought battle

Swimwomen glide past Syracuse, fall to UNC in triangular meet

By CHRIS WIGHTMAN
Daily Collegian Sports Writer
Penn State rookie coach Bob Krimmel predicted right when he said that out of the three matchups in the triangular meet at McCoy Natatorium yesterday, the best would be the women's swim team against its annual rival from Syracuse.
"We swam well today and I was pleased with the girls' performance," Krimmel said.
However, like in all cases, the coach was nervous before the meet began. "I was probably more worried than the girls," he said.
The coach's worries deepened when senior Sandy Bival, a returning All-American, was pulled from the first event of the day because of an elbow problem.
Bival was replaced by freshman Shirley Walsh, who swam butterfly in that first event, the 400 medley relay. The coach's worries decreased when the relay team took the event.
Luckily for Penn State, Bival, its star swimmer, came back from her ailment and won the 100 butterfly later in the meet. Bival said the elbow problem was just some arthritis she has had since childhood and it presented no major problem. She also said she felt very strong during the race, which rid the coach of his nervousness all together.
One of the major highlights of the meet for the Lady Lions was the outstanding swimming of sophomore Linda Krauser and senior Cindy Augst.
Krauser clocked an excellent time of 10:38 in the 1,000 freestyle while Cindy Augst, who has been hampered by shoulder problems for the past two years, swam a 25:36 in the 50 freestyle, which was her best time in the past two seasons.
Krimmel said Augst's performance was very encouraging and that she will be a big plus for the team.

On the diving end of the team, another prediction came through for the coach as the Lady Lions' diving team had no trouble in disposing both of the visiting teams.
Bob Goldberg, coach of the diving team, was very pleased with the team's display.
"We really did well," said Goldberg, who said he thinks this year's diving team is one of the best ever at Penn State.
In the one-meter diving competition, Penn State placed first and second against Syracuse to take eight points. Against North Carolina, the team placed first and third and took six points.
Freshman Mary Ellen Clark had an outstanding day in the one-meter dive by taking two first places and her teammate, junior Patti Jones, also did well by taking a second and third.
Coach Goldberg termed the three-meter diving event as "wild." The women executed high difficulty dives and were erratic on some of them, he said. Goldberg also said the difficult dives are necessary for the women in order to gain experience for nationals.
In the three-meter dive, the Lady Lions scored a second and a third against Syracuse and placed third against UNC. Freshman Cathy Wiest blew a highly difficult reverse two-and-a-half somersault, which cost her a first place finish. She had to settle for third.
Mary Ellen Clark and Patti Jones dove unofficially in the three-meter dive and ended up winning it. Goldberg said with five top divers on the squad it is difficult to judge who will do better on a given day. He also said the women had no pressure, on them because they did very unofficially, but nevertheless he thought it was a great performance.
"We have terrific potential in five great divers," Goldberg said. "It will just be a matter of sticking it all together. But most of the meet we'll win."
The Lady Lions now go on to the PSU Relays, which will be held beginning at 1 p.m. today and at 9 a.m. tomorrow at McCoy Natatorium. The competition, which Krimmel said will be very tough, includes North Carolina, Pitt, West Virginia and East Carolina.

Navy faces a sub-par Army team

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For the third time in the last four years, Navy's season won't end against rival Army.
Navy, 7-2, will play in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 30 against Ohio State, the Midshipmen's third bowl appearance since 1977.
But for Army, 3-7, tomorrow's nationally televised football showdown here with Navy is again the Cadets' last chance to salvage a little success from a disappointing season. Army has lost three straight to Navy, which now leads the series 38-37-6.
"As long as we beat Navy, that's all that matters," said Army defensive tackle Kevin Dodson of the attitude at West Point, adding that he doesn't feel that way.
Neither does Army coach Ed Cavanaugh, but a victory over the Naval Academy would sure shorten a long winter for the second-year coach.
"It's an outstanding Navy team that well deserves a bowl bid," Cavanaugh said. "They're a real solid football team. Their defense does a great job, led by an outstanding nose guard (senior captain Tim Jordan)...but offensively they're really tough, too. That new quarterback (sophomore Marco Pagnanelli) is a threat as a runner and a good passer."
"We really have to play an outstanding game with a minimum of mistakes to stay with them," Cavanaugh said. "If we can stay with them in a big game like that, then anything can happen."
Navy coach George Welsh, seeking his eighth win over Army in nine years, said he hopes his team isn't overconfident. "Our players have been talking about Army since the pre-season.

the Tin Drum
A brilliantly imaginative allegory, this is the story of Oskar, a young Polish boy of extraordinary will. Confused and terrified by the adult world of sex, violence and Hitler's rising Nazism, he refuses to grow after the age of three. But Oskar's mind and emotions continue to develop inside his stunted body and he shrewdly observes the world around him.
