

Reagan 'silly,' Khadafy says

Continued from Page 1.
selves write some reports about these false matters, like assassination or something like this. Anyhow, we want investigation, to see the truth, and let the American people and the Libyan people and the congress of America to know the truth, who is liar: Reagan or Libya.

Q: Well, on another economic matter, Colonel, the American . . .

A: I am challenging them. I am challenging them to make this investigation.

Q: You challenge them to make an investigation of this plot?

A: Yes, yes, yes.

Q: On an economic matter, sir, the American oil company Exxon has decided to end its operations here in Libya. Why did they make that decision? Was it political, or economic?

A: Yes, I said it is in accordance with the demand of Reagan administration, and this company (unintelligible) under the pressure of Reagan administration to get out.

Q: Have other companies indicated to you that they're going to leave too?

A: Not yet, but we did all the preparations to face any position like this, and it is evidence that the policy of Reagan is destroying the interests of the American companies and the American people.

Because the company got benefit from its work here, and also Libya, by this cooperation, this company and other companies, American companies, gets benefits of course, but (off-camera voice: mutual benefit), Reagan policy destroyed this interest, this benefit of this American company.

And he is going to destroy the interests of the other American companies and the interests of the American people itself. And the people, American people must know and the American congress must know and all the American companies must know. This bad policy which is destroying its benefits, its interests in Libya.

Q: In other words you're saying, Colonel, the administration, the Reagan administration is forcing the oil companies to leave Libya?

A: Yes, it is true.

Q: But won't that hurt your country, sir, since America is one of your best customers for your oil? You get a lot of revenue from the United States.

A: Huh?

Q: I said, won't that hurt Libya, because America is one of Libya's best customers for oil?

A: Sorry, I don't get you. (off-camera voice, apparently translating.)

Q: I say, won't, if the American oil companies pull out of Libya, won't that hurt your country? Because the United States is a big customer for Libyan oil.

A: Anyhow, we did all our best to face this position.

Q: You don't need America as a customer for your oil? You'll sell it elsewhere?

A: Of course we need them, but if they go we have to do without them.

Q: I'd like to ask you a kind of ambiguous kind of a question. Why do you think the United States, this great power, is picking on little Libya? Is it something you've done or is it something they've done? But why would they do that? Why would a president . . .

A: You have to ask Reagan. You have to ask United States government. You have to ask them. Why? We also very surprised. And you ask why.

Q: Sir, if you could talk to President Reagan, what would you tell him, right now?

A: Huh?

Q: If you could speak to President Reagan, right now, what would you tell him?

A: We have to tell him, what is the reason? Are you mad? Why are you acting terroristic against us, against this small people? We are a small people, that wants to be free, to be nonaligned, to develop our country. But they are against us, for nothing.

Q: So you're waiting for the U.S. government to give you evidence of a plot against the life of President Reagan? That there is no Libyan plot.

A: We are ready to make judgment this investigation, to see this evidence. Because we are sure we haven't sent any people to kill Reagan or any other people in the world, and we want to see these big lies. But anyhow, finally I want to say, we as I said, emphasize again, we feed up as a people, as a country, as a person, as citizens, because of this terrorist policy against us. And we have to face this difficulty.

Q: You once told me that you were ready to go to war against the United States. Do you still feel that way?

A: We are ready to face America and to (off-camera voice: defend), we will not avoid a war with America in the Mediterranean sea, and in our territories.

Washington lights

The Washington Monument is usually illuminated at night, but not with the framing of Christmas tree lights.

Student admits to grade changing

By RON CROW
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

A Material Science 201 student confessed to changing his grade by stealing several grade sheets from Associate Prof. Peter Thrower's grade book before returning photocopies of the sheets late Fall Term, but denied taking any of the class's homework assignments.

Thrower said the student, whom he declined to identify, changed two of his quiz grades and traced over the other grades on the sheet in his own handwriting. He added two points to his grade.

"I don't know why he would go to all that trouble just to give himself two points," Thrower said. "This wouldn't do him that much good."

"After the story came out in the Collegian, I was reasonably sure who did it," Thrower said.

When the grade sheets were returned, Thrower said, the numeral seven was written differently. Three people in the class wrote their sevens that way, he said.

"After that it was just a process of elimination," he said. "Also, when I was trying to reconstruct everyone's grades by having them bring in their quizzes this student couldn't find two of his quizzes. These were the same quizzes that were changed."

After Thrower spoke to his class about the stolen grade sheets, the student who stole the sheets talked to another professor and friend about the situation. His friend advised him to admit to stealing the grade sheets.

The student confessed to John H. Hoke, head of the metallurgy department, who then told Thrower. Thrower said the situation was then in the hands of University Police Services.

Hoke said the student said, "I guess I'm the one you're looking for."

"I think the opportunity struck him and he just did it on the spur of the moment," Hoke said. "He then tried to extricate himself and just got in deeper and deeper."

Hoke said the student will probably face automatic dismissal. Donald T. Suit, director of the Office of Conduct Standards, would not comment on any disciplinary action that had been taken. But, Thrower said the student will probably be suspended for three terms.

"This is very sad for me," Thrower said. "I hate to see anyone in that sort of position."

"This is still an unsatisfactory situation because we don't yet know who was taking the homework assignments."

The Resident Assistants of Centre Halls and CHRA present:

STUDENT ORGANIZATION WEEK Dec. 7-10, 1981

Monday

December 7:

8:00 UCC Guest speaker - Tom Swerzenski

9:00 Colloquy Guest speaker - Dan Bollag

Simmons Piano Lounge

Tuesday

December 8:

A Coffeehouse with

MENAGERIE

8:00-9:15

McElwain Piano Lounge

Wednesday

December 9:

8:00 USG Guest speaker - Bill Cluck

Simmons Piano Lounge

Thursday

December 10:

8:00 ARHS Guest speakers - Chris Caukins and Avery Rose

9:00 Black Caucus

McElwain Piano Lounge

REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED