

Marino paces gymmen to victory

By MARIA MARTINO
Daily Collegian Sports Writer

Thanks to various minor injuries, men's gymnastics coach Kari Schwenzfelder had to change his lineup this weekend, but things could hardly have worked out better.

The Lions scored 267.95 points and easily won the Farmingdale Invitational at Long Island, N.Y. And they did it with Terry Bartlett nursing a sore back, Gregg Simon, an injured knee, and with-out Kari Viscardi, who hurt his right knee last week.

"It was an excellent win," Schwenzfelder said, "considering we had half the lineup we had last weekend in terms of strength. And we still improved by almost four points. They started to show the potential I think we'll have."

Junior Steve Marino won all six events the first day in the compulsories, where his all-around score of 5.9 was almost a career high and several points better than his score at Farmingdale last year.

Plus he beat Mario McCutcheon, who competed at the World Games in Moscow, in the process.

The next day, Marino scored a 55.6 in the optional routines, easily making the cut-off score of 112 in the Olympic compulsory routines, which automatically qualifies him for the U.S. championships in spring. Only a dozen or two athletes achieve that mark of excellence in any given year.

"He got off to such a great start," Schwenzfelder said. "We knew he needed 56.1, but he went 56.6 for 112.5. That almost assures him an additional year on the national team."

Both Simon and Bartlett scored more than the required 52 points in the compulsories to qualify for the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship.

And during warmups, injuries still plagued the Lions as Tim Darling stutter-stepped and his right ankle popped out then popped back in, causing a small fracture.

In the individual finals, a healthy Marino placed in five events, winning the parallel bars with a 9.25 and taking second on the vault with 9.55.

Penn State's Bill Stanley mastered the pommel horse and received his second 9.80 in as many meets, while Lion captain Randy Jepson earned the same score on the still rings to win that event.

"That's a beautiful score," Schwenzfelder said. "These two guys were the two things in the meet. They were fabulous. Everyone flipped over them."

Lion swimmers break on by St. Bonnies for 1st win

A "broken down" men's swimming team defeated St. Bonaventure at home on Saturday, 78-85, to win its first dual meet of the season.

The term "broken down" does not exactly refer to the dictionary definition, but instead refers to a method of training.

Penn State coach Lou MacNeill said that by being "broken down," the team is practicing hard twice a day, which makes the swimmers exhausted and sore. This method of training, according to MacNeill, helps the swimmers work out harder before the meets.

"When you are broken down you are hurting so much more to get ready for a meet," MacNeill said. "The Bonaventure coach didn't believe that we practiced an hour and a half before."

Sprinter Don Enright, who won the 50 and 100-yard freestyle on Saturday by swimming his best times of the season, believes that being broken down will be an advantage before Easterns.

"We are practicing pretty hard and in the dual meets we are swimming tired," Enright said. "This should help us in the long run."

Being broken down had no effect on distance swimmer Rick Kennedy. Kennedy shattered his record in the 1000-yard freestyle, cutting his time from 9:59.71 to 9:44.83.

"I was trying to hold a strong pace," the sophomore said. "When I looked up at the clock I was surprised at the time."

The diving team continued its success as Dale Dmitriev and Mike Cocciaello won the one-meter and three-meter dives, respectively.

Wrestlers win tourney

One of the attributes of a champion wrestler, in any sport, is his ability to bounce back after a bitter and hard-fought defeat. It is often the difference between a losing and winning team.

Penn State's wrestling team showed it has that type of character by winning this weekend's Mat Town USA Tournament at Lock Haven. The Lions totaled 115 1/2 points to capture the title while Michigan State placed second with 109 points.

The victory came on the heels of Wednesday's 19-17 loss at Michigan.

"The loss to Michigan hurts," said Carl DeStefanis, one of three Nittany Lions to win individual titles. "But, I think we bounced back instead of letting it affect us."

Besides DeStefanis' title at 118 pounds, the Lions also received championship performances from Scott Lynch (136) and John Hanrahan (167), who both defeated All-Americans in the semifinals.

"The whole team wrestled well, but special credit goes to DeStefanis and Lynch," Penn State coach Rich Lorenzo said.

DeStefanis shut out Slippery Rock's Tony Calderaio, who was champion in his sport, 8-0 in the semifinals, and beat Michigan State's Harrell Milhouse 8-5 in the finals. Lynch pinned Tennessee All-American Mike Giustizia in the semifinals, and beat Michigan State's Jim Mason 9-4 in the finals.

"It was a big win but it still doesn't affect my goals to do well in the nationals," DeStefanis said.

Hanrahan's 8-1 victory over Lock Haven's Doug Buckwalter clinched the victory for Penn State.

The Lions got fine showings from several other wrestlers, including 134-pounder Bill Marino, who finished second after losing 2-1 to Bloomsburg's Don Biese.

Other Lion scorers were: John Manotti, third at 134; Eric Childs, fourth at 136; Eric Brugel, fifth at 150; Joel Johnson, fourth at 190; and Jim Sleeper, fifth at heavyweight.

"They're still young and young kids tend to be a little inconsistent," Lorenzo said. "But they're progressing well and are starting to believe in themselves."

Pacific ends lady spikers' season

Women's volleyball coach Russ Rose was hoping for an upset against the University of Pacific at the NCAA Women's Volleyball Championships Saturday at North-western. His wish almost came true.

The Lady Lions battled Pacific all the way down to the fifth game, but critical mistakes hurt Penn State and the ball dropped on the wrong side of the net. In the draw-out contest the Lady Tigers nixed Penn State's dream of reaching the Final Four — 15-10, 13-15, 10-15, 15-12, 15-13.

"I thought we played really well," Rose said. "It was an emotional game. We had the chance to put Pacific away but we didn't do it. We made spurs of crucial errors."

Right now Rose said he has an empty feeling in his stomach. He knows and as everyone has been telling him, the Lady Lions should have beaten Pacific. Rose also knows if Penn State had come out on top, right now he would probably be making plane reservations to California for the semifinals and finals next weekend at UCLA.

"The sad reality is Penn State could have been at the Final Four," Rose said. "Everyone keeps telling me we were the 'class of the show' on Saturday—I got a lot out of those girls. We earned much respect from playing Pacific."

blocker Lori Barberich. Barberich was the leading passer and hitter at 32 percent. Senior co-captain Ellen Crandall, who was the leading blocker, hit for 24 percent. Freshman Marcy Leap came off the bench and sparked Penn State with three kills.

Rose had much praise for senior setter-backrow specialist Lisa White.

"Lisa probably played the best match of the year," Rose said. "She was the key thing that kept us in the match."

Rose said he thinks Pacific has a good chance of winning the NCAA championship and what hurts him the most is that the Lady Lions were only two points away from beating them. Rose said one of the major factors hurting Penn State was the toughness of Pacific's schedule.

"We were not in as many power-filled matches as Pacific," he said. "We are the new kid on the block. Pacific has a lot of experience."

SPRINKS AND DIGS in other quarterfinal action nation Southern California knocked off top ranked Hawaii, UCLA defeated Stanford, No. 2 San Diego State topped Santa Barbara. Those three winners plus the winner of the Pacific/Cal Poly match will advance to the semifinals next weekend at UCLA.

Fencers get Garret 100th win at Penn State

It has been said that nice guys finish last, but an exception to that rule can be found at Penn State. Men's fencing coach Mac Garret has finished first 102 times in 10 years at Penn State.

The latest trio of victories occurred Saturday at Lafayette when Penn State fencers defeated the host 25-2, topped Rutgers 26-7 and shut out Pace 27-0.

Winning isn't a new experience for Garret. In 28 years at Illinois, his dual meet record was 237-65. In that span he coached two NCAA titles and 16 Big Ten champions. His 10-year record at Penn State is 102-20 (84 percent) compared to 81 percent for football coach Joe Paterno.

"It's (topping the century mark) feels great," Garret said. "I didn't have any doubt that we weren't going to get it."

Garret's confidence was warranted as the Lions showed no mercy on their opponents. In defeating Lafayette, six Lion fencers — Chris Balestracci, Jeff Brown, George Vandemark, Joe Hayes, Mike Corona and Scott Hollenbeck — had a 3-0 record.

The foil and epee squads both went 9-0 and the sabre were 7-2. In the romp over Pace, John Papp, Marty Simowitz, Vandemark and Hayes all went 3-0.

"Our overall skill was better than Lafayette or Pace," Garret said. "Our fencers were better groomed in the fundamentals."

The meet against Rutgers was much tougher than the score indicated. Ten of the 27 matches went to 5-4, with the Lions winning seven. Team captain Stu Rothenberg was the only Lion fencer to go 3-0. Rothenberg was 8-0 for the day.

"That (5-4 matches) was a hell of a lot of boats to go to the last touch," Garret said. "We didn't have an easy time of it."

Garret said he was letting his team go home for the holiday but hopes the fall doesn't affect his fencers adversely.

"One of the first things we'll have to do when we get back is to get back into condition," Garret said. "Physical capability and endurance are needed so not to diminish the fencers' efforts."
