

Netmen travel to Navy Invite

By STEVE TOW
Collegian Sports Writer

The loss of scholarship players may hurt the men's tennis team this year, but the lack of an individual standout may be the solidifying ingredient the Lions need. "We've got a lot of support within our team," newly-appointed captain and No. 1 singles player Jeff Factor said. "Everybody gets along."

Penn State will be traveling to Annapolis today to compete in the Naval Academy tournament after finishing a disappointing fourth in the Bloomsburg Invitational two weeks ago.

Lion Coach Holmes Cathrall was obviously unhappy with the results of that tournament. "If you don't win, you don't feel good about it," he said. "When you're fourth, you don't feel happy."

Actually, Penn State's performance was not as bad as it seems, with some surprises coming from No. 2 singles player Virgil Christian. Christian upset the second seed in the Bloomsburg tourney, but was beaten in the following round.

"I think he did well, he came back and beat the second seed," Cathrall said.

Despite losing all the doubles players last year to graduation, Cathrall has been able to turn the doubles into one of the Lions' strengths.

"Doubles will be really strong," Factor, who is also a doubles player, said. "We'll (Factor and Christian) do well as first doubles. He's a lefty and I'm a righty — we complement each other really well."

One bright note for the Lions after Bloomsburg is that they finished just one point behind Navy, the host team for this weekend's tournament.

Women golfers open season

By JOSEPH BARRETT
Collegian Sports Writer

The women's golf team tees off in its first tournament of the season today at Ohio State University's Lady Northern Invitational. Coach Mary Kennedy expects big things to happen there, and elsewhere, for the Lady Lions.

The three-day, 54-hole tournament is packed with fine golf teams that represent a 12-state area, but one can understand Kennedy's optimism. All of last year's team, a team that won three of four spring tournaments and a berth in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament, is back for the 1982-83 campaign. Furthermore, the Penn State squad returns in improved form.

"They're playing better," Kennedy said. "They're concentrating better. I think what they've learned last year is carrying over and I'm looking forward to a really fine season."

A fine season, in Kennedy's eyes, would be capped off by a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. (On Aug. 1, Penn State left the AIAW, as did many Division I schools).

However, the NCAA has reduced its tournament field this year from 24 to 17 teams, so it will be significantly harder to qualify.

The Lady Lions hope to gain the extra edge they'll need by scheduling more challenging tournaments.
